

CEO Daddy 121

Chapter 121 Just Once

Kelvin fell silent and lowered his head. Kerr had never made grave mistakes, but now he had clearly struck his father's last nerve.

"Vedder is downstairs, My Lord," Kelvin brought up nervously.

Jack looked at Kelvin but said nothing.

Kelvin nodded.

"I'll talk to him," he murmured.

Kelvin then turned around and left the study, shutting the door behind him. He sighed as he went downstairs to talk to Vedder who he found waiting anxiously.

"What did the lord say?"

Vedder stepped forward, almost trembling with unease.

He and Kelvin were trained together. Since they came to the Gu family house, Kelvin became Jack's assistant while Vedder became Kerr's. With that, Vedder was as in trouble as Kerr for allowing him to become close to Nicole.

"He was too enraged to say anything. We better get that woman to leave the young master as soon as possible, or we'll both get fired or worse."

Kelvin looked worried.

"I've tried talking the young master out of it, but he won't listen to me. You should try talking to him," Vedder rambled.

He had tried reasoning with Kerr before about Nicole, but it did not work.

"Fine, I'll try. Better me than the lord dealing with his son himself."

Kelvin thought that this was the only way to keep Jack and Kerr's relationship intact.

"Be careful. You have no idea how much the young master cares about Miss Ning," Vedder reminded Kelvin.

Last time he commented about Kerr and Nicole's relationship, Vedder saw the most unhappy expression on Kerr's face. If Kelvin accidentally pr iled.

"No matter who I am, one thing won't change," Kerr said firmly.

He believed that Nicole was not a vain woman, and she would never give up on him because of material things.

Nothing could tear them apart.

"And what's that? Ah! Stop it!"

"I'm yours."

Kerr stopped tickling Nicole for a moment and looked deeply into her eyes. She smiled at him. He had never felt this happy and satisfied in his entire life.

"We better turn in. We didn't get a good night's sleep last night, and you haven't been sleeping well."

Nicole held Kerr's face in her hands.

She worried that he was not taking care of himself.

"I'm not tired at all. As long as you're with me, I'll never be tired."

It was too late to stop him now.

"But I..."

Nicole saw the raw emotion in Kerr's eyes. She opened her mouth to say something but once again found herself silenced by his gentle kiss. A few heartbeats later, she gave up and allowed him to be unruly.

"Just once,"

Kerr whispered in her ear.

Nicole's face turned red.

Chapter 122 Just Want A Little Sister

The night grew deeper. Lying in Kerr's arms, Nicole watched the beautiful, calm, moonlit night outside her window. It was as if a violent storm had not come to disturb the world last night.

It was late, but Nicole was still wide awake, listening to Kerr's steady breathing.

"Why are you still up?"

Kerr gently stirred and kissed the top of Nicole's head.

"Have you been up? How did you know I wasn't asleep?"

Nicole tilted her head to look at Kerr whose eyes were halfway closed.

Kerr was half-awake at best. She had tried not to wake him up.

"I can't sleep with you still up. I can tell you're awake from your breathing."

The woman Kerr loved was by his side. Of course he could feel her breathing. People said that when you were in love with someone, you would be able to memorize everything about them including the way they breathed. Kerr knew that now to be true.

"Can you really or you're just sweet talking me?"

Nicole started fiddling with Kerr's hair.

"I've never sweet talked anyone but you."

Kerr looked at Nicole seriously.

He had never sweet talked anyone because he did not have to. Women were constantly throwing themselves at him, but he had never been especially interested in any of them. Nicole was different. She held his heart in her hand.

"Then I will expect your sweet words from now on."

Nicole had never asked Kerr about his past, but she knew about the constant parade of women that circled him. She could not change the past, but she could make the present and the future wonderful for both herself and Kerr.

She only needed to be in Kerr's present and future.

Drugged one night by her ex-boyfriend, a mysterious man took advantage of her in an ecstatic night filled with sex.

To take her revenge, she married the man, and used him.

"As long as I'm alive, I'm still his legal wife, while all of you are just his mistresses."

She remained adamant even when he was involved in scandals with other women.

Eventually she stormed off after she learned that he had betrayed her again. But life brought her back to him a few years later, to his astonishment.

er. Can I have a younger sister?"

Jay looked at Nicole with wide eyes full of expectation.

"What?"

Despite being startled by Jay's presence, Nicole was still a bit sleepy. She was puzzled by Jay's words.

With a big smile on his face, Kerr stroked Jay's hair.

"You will have a brother and a sister, and you must protect them."

Kerr did not mind having many children. He and Nicole would have more children in the future, and Jay would love them like family.

He would treat his children and Jay equally no matter how many he and Nicole had.

"I will, but don't let Mommy have too many babies. I don't want her to get tired,"

Jay mused.

Nicole felt stressed.

"A brother and a sister? I don't want to."

She lay on the bed and pulled the quilt over her head.

"Don't worry, Mommy. When my little brother or sister arrives, I won't take you from them, but for now, can I stay in bed with you, please?"

Jay struggled to get out of Kerr's arms, but Kerr did not let go.

"You're not a baby anymore, Jay. You can't sleep in the same bed as your mommy anymore."

Chapter 123 Being Taken Away

Kerr told Jay seriously as if enforcing a new rule.

It was his turn now to sleep in the same bed as Nicole.

"You're a grownup. Why can you sleep in the same bed as Mommy and I can't?"

Jay crossed his arms on his chest and looked at Kerr sternly as if challenging him to answer his question directly.

"If I don't sleep in the same bed as your mommy, how will you have a little brother or sister?"

Kerr reached for a night robe and put it on. He picked up Jay and walked to the bathroom.

"Then when will I have a little brother or sister?"

Although Jay was a bit disappointed that he could not sleep beside his mother anymore, the thought of having a little brother or sister soon filled his heart with excited joy.

He could show him or her off to Callie who also had a brother. He wondered if his future little sister would be as lovely as Callie.

"Soon."

Nicole overheard Kerr and Jay's conversation in the bathroom and felt inexplicably happy.

This was what she wanted.

Nicole slipped out of bed and put on some clothes. She was making the bed when someone knocked on the door.

"Come in. It's open."

Nicole tied her long hair into a ponytail.

"Your breakfast, Director Ning."

Jared walked in and set the food box on the table. He felt relieved by Kerr's absence.

"Thank you, Jared. I'm sorry to have bothered you during the past few days."

Nicole helped Jared pour the porridge into a bowl.

"You're always welcome, Director Ning."

Jared bowed and left the room.

Hand in hand, Kerr and Jay walked out of the bathroom and sat at the table. The three had breakfast quietly. From time to time, Kerr fed Jay his food.

"You should go back to work after breakfast. You must have a lot to do,"

Nicole told Kerr as she passed the bread to him.

"No hurry. When y

more time with Nicole. He grabbed her by the arm and dragged her into a business car parked outside.

"Where are you taking me?"

Inside the car, Nicole saw two more men who were dressed like the first one.

Her heart started racing. She did not know who these men were.

She asked them a lot of questions, but they kept silent.

The trip took forever. Nicole's patience was just about to run out when the car pulled over in front of a villa.

"We're here."

The man from the hospital opened Nicole's door.

Nicole hesitantly stepped out of the car and examined the villa in front of her. The place obviously belonged to someone either incredibly wealthy or noble born.

Slightly frowning, Nicole headed toward the front door.

The door then swung open, and a gentle, deep voice called from inside.

"Miss Ning, I've been expecting you."

Nicole walked in on a middle-aged man rising from the living room sofa. He smiled at her.

He was dressed in a dark gray suit and looked very energetic. Nicole could tell that he had been living the great life, although she did not really know him.

"Who are you? Why am I here? Don't you know that I can sue you for taking me here against my will?"

Chapter 124 How Much Is He Worth

There was no fear in Nicole's voice, although her heart was pounding wildly in her chest.

But she had to be brave. Otherwise, people would walk all over her. She could not afford that.

"You are indeed an unusual woman. You are fearless and calm under dire circumstances. No wonder the young master's wrapped around your finger."

Kelvin spoke calmly and invited Nicole to have a seat.

"Don't worry. I won't hurt you, but please know that if I wanted you dead, you'd be dead."

Nicole hesitated but eventually took the seat in front of Kelvin.

She knew he was serious about getting her killed if he wanted to. He had not done anything to hurt her, but Nicole was not about to let her guard down.

"The young master? Are you from the Gu family?"

Taking in the surroundings and the people in the room, Nicole immediately realized the truth.

"How clever. I guess I won't have to beat around the bush with you."

Kelvin raised his hand, and the man in black who was standing behind Nicole put the tray in his hand on the table.

"There's a blank check. Write any amount you want."

Nicole glanced at the check and then looked at Kelvin.

"I don't believe in free lunches. What do you want from me?"

All good things came with a price. Nicole had always believed that.

"Very well. Take the check and leave the young master. You can go anywhere in the world and start anew. I'll even make arrangements for you."

Kelvin believed that most people could be tempted by money. It was certainly possible that Nicole would leave with the money he was offering, and Kerr would be left heartbroken and disappointed.

Drugged one night by her ex-boyfriend, a mysterious man took advantage of her in an ecstatic night filled with sex.

To take her revenge, she married the man, and used him.

"As long as I'm alive, I'm still his legal wife, while all of you are just his mistresses."

nd her about the people she was challenging.

"There are only two ways for us to solve this problem, Miss Ning. You either take the check and cut ties with the young master, or you disappear from the face of the planet with your son Jay."

Kelvin tossed a black pistol on the table.

The loud clap of the drop startled Nicole. Setting her gaze on Kelvin, she took a deep breath, walked to the table, and picked up the check.

"I need three days to get my affairs in order. I don't want to do things sloppily."

Nicole held the check in her hands.

"I can only give you two days. Two days from now, I will send a car to pick you and Jay up. I hope you hold up your end of the deal. You will certainly regret it if you don't and in the most painful way possible. I can make sure of that.

I don't compromise with deal breakers," Kelvin warned.

"Fine."

With a grim face, Nicole left the villa. The same car that picked her up from the hospital was the same car that took her back.

Watching the car drive away, Nicole sighed with relief, but she could not completely relax.

Chapter 125 The Password Is Her Birthday

Kelvin sat back on the sofa after Nicole left.

Heaving a sigh of relief, he picked up the glass of water from the table and took a sip. Vedder went downstairs and found him.

"She's not going to honor your deal."

With a sigh, Vedder placed a recorder in front of Kelvin. His tone was calm but determined.

"You don't know that. Besides, no one wants to die. I'm sure that woman doesn't." Kelvin frowned slightly.

"You want to bet? I'm sure she won't leave,"

Vedder said firmly.

"If she stays, I'll kill her and her son."

That was the simplest but worst plan. There was no telling Kerr's reaction.

"You won't dare. The young master will have your head." Vedder knew that if it were not for Jack, Kelvin would not consider murder to solve the problem with Kerr. "Have you seen Jay Ning?" Vedder asked.

Kelvin shook his head.

"That boy is a spitting image of the young master. He must be his son."

Vedder then stood up and walked out, leaving Kelvin in the living room sighing.

Kelvin's eyes suddenly lit up. Vedder had just given him an idea.

At the hospital, Nicole headed back to the ward.

She was about to enter her room when she saw Harley coming from the other end of the corridor.

"Doctor Su, can I leave the hospital now?"

Nicole had to leave the hospital and figure out a solution. She could not just sit by and do nothing. Her next moves would decide her future.

Her happiness was on the line. She would never give it up easily.

Harley nodded.

"Your physical indexes are almost normal now. If Kerr agrees, you may leave the hospital. I can arrange your discharge."

Harley did not really think that Nicole was seriously ill. Kerr was just overreacting.

"I have to leave the hospital and take care of something today. Will y t him concentrate on his meeting. I'll just wait for him in his office. It's not an emergency anyway."

Jared nodded, and Nicole headed to Kerr's office.

She approached Kerr's desk and picked up a pen sitting on it. Once again, Nicole imagined Kerr holding the same pen.

She pulled Kerr's office chair away and saw a safe under the desk. She wondered what could possibly be inside.

Nicole knelt in front of the safe and hesitated. She then went ahead and entered her birthday as the combination. To her surprise, the safe door flew open.

An envelope was sitting inside the safe. She suddenly thought of something. Nicole reached for the envelope and opened it with trembling hands. It contained 2,642 dollars.

The corners of her mouth lifted up slightly. This was her hard-earned money. She did not expect that Kerr had kept it. She put the money back into the envelope and put the envelope back in the safe. Then, she stood up and walked to the French window.

The door of the office swung open.

"Who are you? Who allowed you to come in here?" a serious female voice asked.

Nicole slowly turned around and saw a young woman in a black suit. She must be a new secretary.

Chapter 126 Make It Up To Me

"Are you Kerr's new secretary?"

Nicole had been in the company for a while, but she had never seen the girl in front of her before.

"Yes. And who are you? I'm afraid I can't allow anyone without an appointment in the CEO's office."

The girl had a wary look on her face. When she was hired, Jared had specifically told her that she shouldn't let anyone in Kerr's office without permission.

"You can go back to your work. He won't mind if I wait here."

Nicole didn't mind the new secretary's attitude, nor did she want to make things difficult for her. All she wanted was to quietly wait for Kerr to come back.

However, the girl was having none of it. Just when she was about to order Nicole out, she heard someone opening the door behind her.

"Miss Ning, Mr. Gu will be done in about half an hour. Please have some water while you wait."

Jared came in and gently placed the glass of water on the table in front of Nicole.

"Mr. Kang, she..."

Jared's polite smile shifted to a hard stare once he turned to look at the new assistant.

"You can go now, Amanda. We don't need you here now. Just remember in the future that Miss Ning doesn't need an appointment to be let in. Understood?"

Upon hearing how Jared spoke of Nicole, Amanda quickly realized who she was.

"I'm sorry for any inconvenience, Miss Ning."

Nicole briefly waved a hand, gesturing that it was all okay. Then, she turned her gaze to the view outside the window.

Amanda Liang followed Jared out of the office and, nervously, risked a glance at him. The harsh look on his face didn't make her feel any better. But, to her relief, he didn't say anything and just headed straight back to the conference room.

Half an hour later, Kerr left the meeting with a folder in his hands and walked towards his office. The moment he pushed the door open, he found a slim figure standing with her back to him and eyes fixed on the large window behind his desk.

Kerr lifted the corners of his lips as he ca ke it up to me tonight."

Despite his words making her flush, Nicole nodded and asked him to let her go.

However, Kerr only loosed his grip around her arm so he could help her straighten her slightly wrinkled clothes.

"Don't forget to eat,"

Kerr urged Nicole thoughtfully.

"I will. Now, I should be going."

Nicole smiled, ready to leave, but Kerr took her hand.

"Come on, I really have to go."

He nodded and led her to the door by the hand.

"I'm escorting you downstairs."

Although he didn't want Nicole out of his sight at all, he knew that he must grant them both some space.

There was no need to rush anything when they still had years together ahead of them.

As soon as Nicole drove away, Kerr went back to his office, and Jared followed him a couple of minutes later with a package in his hand.

"Mr. Gu, we've just got this. It's addressed to you."

Jared glanced at the package once more. He didn't know why, but he had a weird feeling about it.

Kerr raised his head and looked at it, but he didn't mean to reach out.

Reading his boss's lack of stance as a sign for him to do the honors, Jared unwrapped the package and revealed a small voice recorder. Immediately, he pressed the play button.

Nicole's clear voice burst out of it.

"How much is the CEO of the Gu Group worth?"

Chapter 127 At Her Wits End

"How generous! I need three days to get my affairs in order. I don't want to do things sloppily."

Jared's eyes widened in surprise as he heard Nicole's words from the recorder, and he looked at Kerr. But Kerr remained calm, as if what Nicole had said didn't matter to him at all.

"Mr. Gu, Miss Ning..."

"How are constructions of the Sea Heart Island progressing?"

Kerr glanced down at the documents in his hand.

"The development is ongoing, and it will take some time."

Jared stared at Kerr in confusion.

"Mr. Gu, do you believe the recording to be fake?"

"It's true. It is Nicole's voice. We need to speed up the construction of the Sea Heart Island, and strengthen security around Jay."

Kerr knew Nicole well. She must have her reasons. No wonder she suddenly came to him. It seemed that she had gradually begun to see him as someone she could depend on.

'Three days?' It seemed that he would have to cherish the sweetness that Nicole gave him as there were only three days left.

A slight smile tugged at the corners of Kerr's mouth, confusing Jared. Instead of becoming vexed by what Nicole had said, Kerr seemed almost happy, which was illogical.

But Jared didn't dare to question any further, so he had to resolve matters according to Kerr's orders.

Nicole didn't know where to go while she was driving the car. She couldn't reveal any of this matter to Avery or Baron. She couldn't bring the power of the Gu family down on them, and neither the Lin family nor the Fang family could oppose them.

While she was considering this, Nicole's phone rang. She looked at the caller ID and saw it was a call from Avery. She immediately answered it.

"Avery."

When Avery heard Nicole's voice, she seemed to have found someone she could vent her spleen on.

"Nicole, are you in the hospital? I'll come to you. I can't carry on like this."

Avery slammed the door shut while she held the phone tightly in her hand. Her anger was obviously detected from her tone.

Even though Nicole could only hear her over the phone, she could hear her impatience, and she couldn't help shaking her head.

"I'll come pick you up. I'm not far from your ho ery's anger surged to the forefront again.

"I still have an apartment where I once lived. You can stay there for a while."

Nicole's hopes were instantly shattered, and once again she lay her head on the table, feeling a sense of despair.

"Don't throw in the towel yet. There will be a solution. If you were a princess of a powerful and rich family, the Gu family will surely ask Kerr to marry you. In fact, I really believe that you are a princess."

Having known Nicole for so many years, Avery always felt that Nicole looked like a princess who had accidentally lost her way and ended up in the place where the common people lived.

"Thank you for your kind words, Miss Lin. If I do become a princess one day, I will not forget you."

Although Nicole said this, she didn't believe it even for a minute.

Even if she were a princess, she wouldn't solve every problem. A princess was seen as being noble, shining like a diamond in everyone else's eyes. But only the princess herself knew how she felt. It was the similar situation to Kerr's. To outsiders, he seemed to be a successful man, but only she knew how lonely he really felt.

At that time, Nicole had no clue that Avery's words would come true one day.

In the old house of the Gu family

After parking her car at the front gates of the Gus' home, Sunny got out of the car as soon as she saw Kelvin coming outside.

"Uncle Kelvin, is Mrs. Gu at home? I've come to see her."

Chapter 128 The More Suitable Successor

Kelvin bent slightly towards Sunny, and his face was composed with a respectful look.

"I'm sorry, Miss He. Mrs. Gu is out on business. I don't know when she'll return."

Sunny felt a little disappointed at hearing that. She looked at the villa and was filled with disappointment as she left.

On the second floor of the villa

Standing in front of the window and looking at the departing figure, Freya could not help but become gloomy. She lowered her head to examine the photo in her hand. If Kelvin hadn't told her that the child in the photo was called Jay Ning, she would have nearly believed that it was a photo taken of Kerr when he was a child.

"What are you doing?"

Jack's cold voice spoke up behind her. It seemed that Freya had become accustomed to it, since she did not turn around at all when she heard him.

"Forget about Kerr and that girl."

Freya knew that Kerr had a crush on Nicole, and she knew that Jack would certainly object. She hadn't really worried much about her son as a child, but this time she wanted to help Kerr to fulfill his dreams.

It was also because she didn't want Kerr to turn into a second Jack.

"Do you even know what you are saying?"

Looking at Freya's back, a trace of anger emerged on Jack's face. 'Why did Kerr go against my wishes? And now, will Freya also help Kerr to rebel?'

"You know better than me what I am talking about, Jack. You and I reached this point only because of a marriage certificate. You know very well that the so-called love and harmony that we show others is only a pretense.

I know that you have never loved me, not since the day you married me. You don't love anyone but yourself. I don't want Kerr to become a second you.

I have never ever disobeyed you. But this time, I will support Kerr. This is my gift to him as compensation for my dereliction and irresponsibility as his mother."

Freya turned around to look at him. They had been married for more than twenty years. It was the first time that they had spoken so honestly or lengthily in private.

"Nonsense. If Kerr dares to be with that woman, pay to repair it. Or you can tell me how else I might compensate you?"

the man politely asked for suggestions from Nicole.

"No, it's not that serious. I have something to deal with, so I have to go now."

Nicole waved the matter off and was about to get back into her car, but as soon as the car started, she saw the man walking to her side. He tapped on her car window, and she had to roll down the window.

"Here is my phone number. If you have any problems, you can contact me at any time. I will really pay for any damages."

The man swiftly handed a silver business card to Nicole.

In fact, Nicole had no intention of holding the man responsible. But seeing that he was so serious, she accepted the business card, nodded to him, and then drove away.

Watching the car driving off, the man smiled.

When Nicole drove up to the hospital, she saw Kerr waiting at the door. She stopped the car and got out.

"Why didn't you go in?" she asked.

Kerr walked up to her, took her hand, and led her into the hospital.

"I was waiting for you."

His thin lips parted slightly. He said it as if it was a matter of course. He was always being waited on by others but after trying to wait patiently for Nicole, he finally understood the meaning of waiting.

Waiting on her was a mixture of nervousness, expectation, and deep concern.

It was bitter but also a little sweet.

"Kerr..."

Chapter 129 His Surprise

Staring at Kerr's back, Nicole opened her mouth to say something but changed her mind on second thought.

She knew he was trying hard to love her the right way and couldn't ignore how much he had changed for her. It was breaking her heart at the thought of having to let go of him.

But after a whole day, she hadn't come up with a solution.

"What's wrong?"

Kerr turned to Nicole with a loving look in his eyes.

Nicole reached out and put her arms around Kerr's middle, hugging him close to her.

"I just want to hug you."

She wanted to pour her heart and tell Kerr everything but knew that certain things were better if kept from him.

Kerr could see right through her. Yet he just held her back without questioning what was troubling her.

"I want to take you somewhere."

Kerr lifted Nicole into his arms and led her straight to the car. Once he had her placed on the passenger's seat, he went around the vehicle and got in the driver's seat. Then, he took off from the hospital.

"Where are we going? Jay is still in the hospital."

Although Nicole was worried about Jay, she also didn't want to turn Kerr down.

"Jared will take care of him."

With one hand on the steering wheel and the other intertwined with Nicole's, Kerr had a gentle look on his face.

It was quickly getting dark outside when Nicole looked around the road. Despite the awfully quiet streets, she couldn't see much nor tell where they were.

Even so, she wasn't worried since she had Kerr by her side.

All of a sudden, the lights on both sides of the road turned on each at a time as if they could detect their passing car. Slowly, the whole night lit up for them.

As if she was in the middle of a spec ked over, watching her with a faint smile.

"Is this your idea of how a man proposes to a woman? In fact, I don't think you plan to marry me at all like this."

Nicole glared at Kerr, looking a little disappointed.

There were at least hundreds of bottles in that beach, how could she ever find the right one?

"I'll ask someone to get them out of the water so you can bring them home and take your time looking for it."

Kerr raised his hand to stroke her long hair, his eyes ever so cunning.

Nicole turned her gaze towards the sea once more. With her expression suddenly locking down, she couldn't help but feel that her journey with Kerr was as challenging as finding the right bottle amongst hundreds.

Even though she would take all the bottles for herself, it wouldn't be an easy task to find the one she wanted.

"Are you having second thoughts because of the challenge?"

Without concealing the hint of provocation from his voice, Kerr reached out to put an arm around her shoulders.

"What are you implying? That I'm easy to scare? I just don't see how any of this is fair. It feels like I'm begging you to marry me."

Chapter 130 I Will Never Accept A Woman Who Abandons Or Leaves Me

"Isn't it up to you to propose to me?" Nicole continued to ask.

She turned to look at Kerr, and both dissatisfaction and doubt played in her eyes.

"Do you want me to propose now? Okay, as you wish."

With his eyes fixed on her, Kerr held her shoulders, but before he could bend his knee, Nicole stopped him.

"I was just kidding. Do you think me serious?"

When Nicole saw Kerr's actions, she was surprised. Before Kerr could bend a knee, she stretched out her hand and grabbed his arm, stopping him from kneeling.

The moment Kerr bowed, Nicole sensed there was something wrong as her heart was racing.

She didn't expect that Kerr would really want to marry her. It was exactly what she had hoped for, but she couldn't feel happy when she recalled what happened this morning.

Kerr stood straight, watching the melancholy paint Nicole's face. There was an understanding look in his eyes. He was waiting for her to say something, but his intuition told him that she would remain silent and act tough.

A sudden ringing broke the silence between them.

Fishing his phone out of his pocket, Kerr looked at the Caller ID and tapped the answer button.

"What is it?" he said into the phone.

Head tilted quizzically to one side, Nicole gazed at Kerr. But she couldn't hear his replies above the hiss of the sea breeze.

She didn't know what the other party on the line said, but she saw Kerr hang up the phone immediately.

"Which do you want to hear first, good or bad news?"

Kerr mysteriously asked.

"The bad news."

Nicole had got used to dealing with bad news first. Only in this way could she enjoy the good news.

"You will be very tired for the next couple of days."

However, it wasn't really bad news for him to have Nicole with him all the time. Maybe the best way to protect her was to keep her in the Gu Group.

"What is the good news?"

In fact, Nicole had ventured a guess, but she was not sure. After all, the result y.

Kerr drove Nicole back to the hospital, and they had dinner with Jay. They played with him for a while and once he was tired, they tucked him in before leaving his ward.

Closing the door to Jay's ward, Nicole looked exhausted.

"Are you tired?"

holding Nicole's hand, Kerr questioned her thoughtfully.

"I'm fine."

Nicole walked in the direction of her own private ward. Although she had recovered and could leave the hospital, Jay still needed to be watched over for some time. So it was more convenient for her to stay at the hospital.

Kerr raised his wrist and studied his watch, and a triumphant smile formed on his face.

"Come. Let me take you somewhere."

He held Nicole's hand and led her out of the hospital.

Not knowing what he was up to again, Nicole followed Kerr, who seemed to be acting a little strangely today. He seemed to have planned a lot of surprises and wanted to treat her.

Sitting in the car, Nicole closed her eyes and leaned her head against the door. Without realizing it, she soon fell asleep. When the car slowly stopped, she was still sleeping soundlessly.

In the driver's seat, Kerr turned and looked at the perfect face of his sleeping woman. He smiled lightly, opened the door, and got out of the car. Kim was already waiting next to the car for him.
