Chapter 241

Gwendolyn pushed the car door open, got down from the car, and vomited by the roadside.

Patrick, who was in the car behind Zayden, frowned as he observed her discomfort. Why did he let her out of the car in the freezing wind? I'd be surprised if she didn't vomit.

His breath became slightly heavy and tinged with rage.

At that point, Zayden's driver got out of the car and helped her into the house, while Zayden sat in the car for the entire time without getting out.

When Patrick saw Gwendolyn arriving home safely, he said indifferently, "Go home."

As soon as he finished speaking, he leaned back in the seat and closed his eyes.

Suddenly, he realized why Zayden had failed to court Gwendolyn even after she had been by his side for five years.

Zayden was an absolute gentleman. He did not pull any tricks, even when facing the girl he liked.

Patrick curled his lips upward slightly. Luckily, I'm someone who will use some techniques, which led to the opportunity to meet Gwendolyn.

Gwendolyn was shaken awake by her three children the next morning and was in a daze seeing them in front of her when she opened her eyes.

"What time is it?"

Justin answered calmly, "Eight o'clock."

When they were both having their breakfasts, Alice arrived and saw the scene of the two of them sitting opposite each other, eating.

She smiled and asked, "Are you only having breakfast now?"

Gwendolyn stood up immediately and walked toward Alice when she heard her voice.

"Old Mrs. Lowen, you're here."

She held her arms and invited her to the couch.

When Gwendolyn was about to pour some tea for Alice, the latter pointed to her seat and urged, "Gwen, go and eat. You don't have to care about me."

Only then did Gwendolyn sit back at her spot and eat small mouthfuls of her oatmeal porridge. After that, she drank some of her soy milk.

Immediately, she felt comfort in her stomach.

Alice cast a glance at Patrick, and a smile flashed across her eyes.

"Pat, I want to go shopping today. Can you let Gwen accompany me and consider this as part of the job?"

Patrick placed his cutlery down as he had already finished eating. He lifted his coffee for a sip and knitted his dark brows slightly.

"Grandma, what about getting Felicia to accompany you?"

Gwendolyn wore a white dress that touched the floor. It matched the Starry Tears on her neck very well.

She realized that no matter what outfit she wore, whether it was a simple dress or an elegant gown, the necklace complimented them very well. She now understood why it cost so much.

It was worth every cent.

Gwendolyn got into Alice's car, and they made their way to a mansion on Corvin Street.

The historic-looking mansions along the street were mostly resided by affluent families.

The main door of the mansion was made of high-quality wood with gold trimmings. It looked massive and heavy, like a solid wall.

When Alice's car stopped at the entrance, the servants went out to open the car door.

"Old Mrs. Lowen, how do you do?"

When they opened the door for Gwendolyn, whom they did not recognize, they greeted her respectfully, "Greetings, miss."

Gwendolyn nodded slightly to acknowledge them.

Alice walked up to her and held her hand. They walked toward the door with their arms linked.

Displeased that Alice had also introduced Gwendolyn as Patrick's girlfriend, she strode up to them.

"Old Mrs. Lowen, Mr. Lowen changed girlfriends really fast."

Candace rolled her eyes at Gwendolyn and gave her an arrogant sneer.

“He just got engaged to Felicia yesterday, and today he's gotten a new girlfriend. Everyone here now knows what kind of person Patrick is. He's a jerk.”

Candace was full of spite as she narrowed her eyes.

Gwendolyn was used to Candace's sarcasm. She held on to Alice's hand, trying to reassure her not to dwell too much on Candace's comments.

Alice had mingled among the elites for many years. Although she was a kind-hearted person, she was never a coward. She would never allow herself to be bullied in any way.

She looked at Gwendolyn and shook her head before turning to Candace.

“You're right! She doesn't look like a mother at all.”

“Indeed, she's so young and beautiful. Unbelievable.”

Gwendolyn balled her fists as she listened to the remarks about her.

She bit her lip gently. Her three children were God's greatest gifts to her, so she would not allow Candace to defame her.

Soon, she relaxed and did not mind the jeers from other people.

Gwendolyn raised an eyebrow. "Mrs. Ashton, Patrick likes me because I have three children. He found the children cute, and he noticed their mother was cute, too. So what if I've had kids? As long as Patrick loves me, there's absolutely nothing you can do about it. He will still love me, regardless of what happens."

All of a sudden, everybody around her was stunned, speechless. Although she isn't a good woman, how can we judge if Mr. Lowen loves her? If she becomes his wife, we're in no position to disrespect her.

If Gwendolyn could show up at the socialite gathering, it meant she had already been accepted by the Lowen family.

On the contrary, nobody else had ever seen the other woman, who kept accusing Gwendolyn of stealing her fiancé, at the socialite gathering.

Therefore, she was not accepted by the Lowen family.

"I'm sure you're relieved now, Mrs. Surrington!" Gwendolyn replied.

Back then, Angeline brought a check along when she met Gwendolyn, and she wanted the latter to leave her son.

Gwendolyn refused the check, but she did whatever Angeline told her to. In spite of this, Angeline thought Gwendolyn was unwilling to follow her instructions and never believed her as the latter did not want the money.

Since Gwendolyn and Alice had shown up here, Angeline should be at ease.

Angeline lowered her head slightly. "Naturally, I'm relieved now."

Gwendolyn nodded in return. Then, she headed for the doorway.

As she passed by an area with black roses, a girl in a red dress was smiling cheerily and instructing the housekeepers to water the flowers.

"Be careful. Don't touch the petals."

"All right, miss."

The girl held a stalk of black rose near her nose and smelled it. She narrowed her eyes and murmured to herself, "Smells good."

When Gwendolyn walked past the girl, she nodded at the latter as a form of acknowledgment.

Gwendolyn passed by the housekeepers, acting as if nothing had happened. They immediately greeted her in fright once they saw her.

"Ms. Ashton!"

Gwendolyn nodded back in greeting with a smile.

After that, she went to the bathroom, leaving the scared housekeepers.

"Did she hear what we said just now?"

"I'm sure she did!"

"Don't be afraid. Even if she did, we just have to pretend we didn't say anything. In any case, it's a good thing that she heard it. She should know her place."

By the time Gwendolyn returned to the greenhouse, the gathering was already ending, and everyone was taking photos at the moment.

Alice beckoned her over while saying, "Gwen, come here."

Alice stood at the center, and Gwendolyn went to her side, standing in the first row. Beside her were Linda and Rosalie.

Candace was not even qualified to take pictures with them. She sat alone at the table while watching the other ladies happily take pictures.

Gwendolyn gave Rosalie her phone for the latter to input the number while mentally rejoicing that she had gained another potential customer.

After adding Gwendolyn's phone number, Rosalie saved her contact with a remark that read: Patrick's Plaything.

Her large eyes wandered as she sketched a plan to get closer to Gwendolyn from then on. If she could have a good relationship with Gwendolyn, then she would naturally meet Patrick sooner or later.

After Alice and Linda finished chatting, the former called Gwendolyn, "Let's go, Gwen."

Gwendolyn then bid farewell to Rosalie and Linda before getting inside Alice's car and leaving Corvin Street.

Inside the car, Alice held Gwendolyn's hand and apologized, "I'm sorry for making you go through all of that, Gwen. It's not like I can't help you, but I just hope that you can adapt to this kind of gathering since you will be attending more of them in the future."

Alice did not like this kind of gathering where the ladies from rich and influential families gathered. However, she was a part of the Lowen family, so she had an obligation to attend such gatherings.

Gwendolyn smiled and said, "I am fine, Old Mrs. Lowen. Please don't apologize."

Gwendolyn just felt that being able to watch Candace being isolated and sitting at the farthest table was undeniably pleasant. Candace definitely did not have a good time that day.

“That's good, then,” said Alice with a nod.

She felt that the younger woman was very caring and sensible, so she was even more pleased with her.

At her age, Alice was tired after having spent most of the day outside, so she had to go straight home to rest.

Patrick took a glance at Gwendolyn.

She is so beautiful today! Grandma took her to a gathering of those ladies, so she naturally had to dress up. I have never seen her with such a hairstyle and makeup. She looks stunning!

The man was originally using his phone to answer some emails. He then used this opportunity to turn on the camera and discreetly took a few pictures of hers with his phone. Staring at the picture on the screen, he only thought that there was a difference between pictures and reality.

She's even more beautiful in person than in the pictures!

Gwendolyn was silent for a while after asking her question. When she saw that he was still busy working on his phone, she reworded her question with a good temper.

"Mr. Lowen, can you tell me where Mr. Gomez is right now? My friend is looking for him."

Patrick looked up at this moment with raised eyebrows.

"He has returned to the base. Kevin and I sent him off on a plane just two hours ago."

Gwendolyn turned pale after hearing that.

"Where is the base?"

She planned to make Lucy go directly to the base to find Lucas. As long as Lucy could see him, she should be able to do something.

Patrick smiled and answered, "No one knows where the base is. It's the military base, after all, so it's a state secret."

Gwendolyn dropped a tablet of cold medicine in hot water for Lucy and placed the glass in front of her.

“Drink this first.”

Lucy picked up the glass and took a sip. She raised her head and looked at Gwendolyn with swollen eyes from all the crying.

“Gwen, am I a fool? Is this why I got deceived by men again and again?”

Jared made her believe in love, and the price for that was her life.

At first, she thought that as long as she did not get invested and did not care, she would not get hurt again.

Unexpectedly, she was deceived once again.

Lucas promised to donate his bone marrow to Melanie in a month, but he ran away.

Gwendolyn sat next to her and put her arm around her shoulders.
