Chapter 28

Gwendolyn took a seat next to her grandfather. She did not expect that the guest Michael had mentioned earlier was Patrick.

If she had known it earlier, she would not have stayed.

Meanwhile, Felicia walked up to Patrick. "Patrick, let's take a seat over here."

She wanted to hold his hand, but he avoided her. At that moment, Felicia felt embarrassed. It was then she remembered that they had nothing but a fake marriage.

The man had no feelings toward her at all. Hence, she had to work hard to make him fall in love with her.

Returning to where he sat earlier, Patrick asked Michael, "Old Mr. Ashton, may I know who this lady is?"

He gazed at Gwendolyn. The latter knitted her brows. She did not understand the intention of him asking that question.

Before Michael could say anything, Felicia quickly piped up, "Her name is Gwendolyn Ashton, our housekeeper's daughter."

Then, she shifted her gaze at Michael as though she was hinting at him not to disclose anything to the Lowen family, especially when Gwendolyn had such an embarrassing past.

Michael's expression changed subtly. However, he was someone who took his pride more seriously than anything else. As such, he admitted Felicia's words in silence.

Gwendolyn's eyes became dim when she heard those words.

She should not have come home. Now that she had visited her grandfather, it was time for her to leave.
