Chapter 351

When Zayden heard those words, he turned his head around slowly. However, his gaze was blank, and his eyeballs were not moving.

Gwendolyn nodded at the housekeeper. "Bring me his dinner. I will feed him."

Zayden sat on the bed quietly. His face had become much thinner, and his chin was sharper than before.

As a tall man with long limbs, he seemed especially thin in the hospital gown.

She walked over to his bedside. "Zayden, I've come to see you again. You have to take some food."

While speaking, she propped the overbed table up. Then, the housekeeper brought the dinner and laid the food on the table.

She began to feed him while holding the bowl. "Open your mouth."

Zayden pursed his lips. "Gwen, I... I can do it myself."

However, Gwendolyn refused, "Let me serve you this time. Once your eyes have recovered, I won't feed you even if you pay me to do so."

Her tone was light, and it sounded like she was joking.

In actual fact, she was filled with sorrow. He is such a dashing and outstanding man. How could he become blind? Life is unfair. He is such a kind-hearted man and is polite to everyone. Back then, he even offered his help to a stranger like me. A kind-hearted man like him should not have ended up in such a pitiful state.

He did not seem to have much appetite. He only used his fork to pick up the food once. After that, he did not touch the food anymore.

Gwendolyn walked over, sat on the edge of his bed, and eyed the food on his table. The food looked very bland.

“You should eat more,” she said.

Patrick threw an indifferent glance at her. “Where did you go?”

He had a bad mood, as she was not around when he woke up. Hence, he totally had no appetite.

Gwendolyn used her hand to pick up a piece of food and put it into her mouth.

She nodded and remarked, “It's delicious. You should hurry up and eat more. These are prepared by Ms. Ziegler.”

As he did not want the Lowen family to be aware of his injury, his meals had been prepared by Camille daily.

Actually, he had employed a few housekeepers in his own mansion, and they could have prepared his meals for him.

However, Gwendolyn trusted Camille more, so she let her prepare his food instead.

Patrick glanced at her hands and said coldly, “You can wash your hands now. Your food has already been heated up. Hurry up and eat.”

In his mind, he was only concerned about how she had not eaten.

Kevin glanced at her leg and said indifferently, "It's just a minor injury. I'll prescribe a cream that helps with removing scars. It'll not affect her as long as the scar will be gone."

Patrick finally felt relieved after hearing that.

He stood up and hugged her.

"Let's go home."

Patrick was slightly frustrated after staying in the hospital for so long. Initially, he was eager to go back to the office to work, but Gwendolyn did not allow him to do so. To ease her mind, he would go home and recuperate.

Gwendolyn waved at Kevin. "Bye, Mr. Chavez."

Kevin accompanied them to the elevator. Once the elevator door closed, Gwendolyn hugged Patrick's arm tightly. "Patrick, you're not allowed to get yourself injured again. I'm not as weak as you think I am."

Patrick cast a sideways glance at her. He enjoyed gripping her beautiful, pointy chin.

“Okay!”

Gwendolyn let out a sigh of relief. Finally, he's out of the hospital. I have to become stronger. This way, I won't bring more trouble to him.

When they arrived back at Star Mansion, Gwendolyn got him to lie down on the bed to rest. Obediently, Patrick lay down and beckoned to Gwendolyn.

Gwendolyn held her little hand. "Let me bring you to change your clothes. Justin and Julian will bathe Sirius. Then, we will head out."

She had not been home for days and decided to bring the three to walk around. That year was not the best. She had no time to accompany them and felt quite guilty.

That day, Patrick was discharged from the hospital. Later, she planned to ask Liam and the rest to keep an eye on Patrick, as she planned to spend a whole day with her three children.

Gwendolyn chose a pastel blue dress and coat for Juliette. Then, she tied her hair into two ponytails.

Juliette looked into the mirror and felt that she looked beautiful, just like a little princess.

She laughed, spread her arms, and hugged Gwendolyn.

"Mommy, I'm so happy you're home. You're not allowed to leave us ever again."

Juliette had been crying almost every night these few days. She kept saying that she missed Gwendolyn and often thought the latter did not want them anymore.

Hence, she was extremely upset. Even though Justin and Julian accompanied her to bed, she did not sleep well.

Gwendolyn caressed her little head. "Of course. Mommy will never leave for such a long time again."

This time, she had to be away because of Patrick's injury. Moreover, he was injured because of her, so she wanted to take care of him.

He reached out a hand and grabbed Gregory's chin with his cold and strong fingers, causing Gregory to frown in pain.

“Patrick, we're in a police station. There are surveillance cameras here. Aren't you afraid?”

Patrick glanced placidly at him. “I've already hacked into the system and switched them off.”

He told him the truth. When Gregory heard those words, he turned to look at the surveillance cameras, and his expression changed significantly.

“You! What do you want to do to me?”

Patrick had already stuck the needle into his neck coldly. He slowly injected the liquid in.

“This drug can test if you're telling the truth. There is only a small amount of it in this world. You're considered lucky to be able to test it out.”

Patrick appeared to be a businessman, but he had a personal laboratory. The research he engaged in was the most advanced.

The drug was invented in his laboratory.

“Test it out?”

Patrick pulled out the needle and threw it into a trash can casually. His smile grew more sinister.

Gregory leaned his head on the table. His eyes widened.

Didn't he say I can live if I don't lie? However, I spoke the truth. Why is my chest hurting so badly? I can't breathe!

Patrick ignored him and pulled open the door to leave.

Thereafter, the police walked in and realized that Gregory had a heart attack. The police wanted to bring him to the hospital, but it was too late. He had already stopped breathing.

Gwendolyn bought her three children to the streets to shop. She first brought them to their favorite fast food joint. Normally, she did not allow them to eat junk food.

However, as she had not spent much time with them recently, she wanted to make them happy.

In the restaurant, Juliette chomped on a chicken wing happily, and her small mouth was oily. Gwendolyn furrowed her brows at that sight.

She looked at her two sons who were eating dignifiedly and elegantly, then looked at her daughter.

Her daughter had oil all over her face and hands. She could not help but wonder who her daughter took after.

Justin gave Juliette a napkin to wipe her mouth with. She then giggled merrily.

“Thanks Justin!”

The store manager took a quick look at Gwendolyn, who she had never met before, as well as Candace and Felicia, who were VIP customers and very important to them.

Although chasing customers out of the store was undesirable, she had to do so in order to appease the VIP customers.

Looking at Gwendolyn, she noticed that the clothes she was wearing had no logo, despite the fact that they appeared to be of high quality in terms of workmanship and materials.

However, she could tell from her years of experience working in a luxury goods store that the clothes Gwendolyn was wearing were not from any branded brands, so the latter was not a potential customer for them.

Shouldn't it be okay to offend her? Everything will be fine as long as Mrs. Ashton is satisfied.

"Miss, Mrs. Ashton is a VVIP customer of ours, and she dislikes being disturbed. You are welcome to return and shop later."

The store manager spoke in a very courteous manner, and several store assistants nearby grinned sweetly. "Please go this way."

They motioned for her to leave the store by raising their hands in unison.

While that was going on, Candace was gazing at the dress Felicia was holding.

"This dress is beautiful. You must look incredibly gorgeous in it, Fel." Having said that, she glanced at Gwendolyn and continued, "Unlike someone who can't afford it at all but still wants to come in and put on a show. What a pretentious woman!"

The store manager gave the store assistants a meaningful look. She would never allow anyone to cause a commotion in the store.

The next moment, all of the store assistants gathered around Gwendolyn. Julian and Justin fixated their gazes on them, fearing that their mother would not be able to handle the situation.

Both of them glared icily at the bad guys. If those people attacked their mother collectively, they would need to assist her.

Nevertheless, Gwendolyn did not give them a chance. When the two store assistants stepped forward, she threw them out, sending them crashing into the glass window. The pain in the backs of the two women was excruciating. They touched their backs and gave up trying to move forward.

As the store manager realized Gwendolyn was skilled in combat, she pulled out her phone and went to the entrance to call the security guards.

Noticing that everyone was terrified of Gwendolyn, Candace struggled and uttered, "Gwendolyn, let go of me!"

At that moment, Felicia exited the dressing room after changing into the dress. As soon as she saw her mother's face was red with a handprint on it, she shot Gwendolyn a piercing glance and questioned, "Gwendolyn, what are you doing? Are you the one who beat my mother?"

As she spoke, she took out her phone and called Zachary.

"Dad, Gwen slapped Mom. Come here quickly. We can't beat her."

She sobbed as she spoke as if she were being bullied.

All of a sudden, Gwendolyn let go of Candace. The latter lost her balance and collapsed to the ground, spraining her ankle.

Both Candace and Felicia were standing next to the guards while the former wiped away her tears and complained, "This woman is the one who assaulted me. She slapped me. Look at my face. I want to sue her."

Gwendolyn put down the magazine in her hand and glimpsed at the guards who surrounded her. She then shifted her attention to Candace.

"Do you plan not to wait for your husband?"

Didn't she ask my father to come and teach me a lesson? Well, I'm still waiting for him.

The latter's eyes turned cruel after hearing that. "He'll be here soon. Just you wait."

Felicia was glowering at Gwendolyn too. This woman is horrendous. Why is it so hard to get rid of her?

Soon, Zachary entered the boutique. Since Ashton Corporation was in the building next to the mall, he didn't have to spend much time coming over here.

Felicia and Candace even had lunch with him before visiting the boutique.

Gwendolyn spotted him the moment he walked passed the entrance. He was dressed in a silver suit, and his expression was solemn.

Candace wailed loudly almost immediately after she caught sight of him. "You're finally here, Darling. Look at what Gwen did to me! She slapped me! I was trying to advise her to visit you more often, yet she hit me."

All the executives had solemn faces and were persistent in punishing Gwendolyn for assaulting others.

However, when they saw their boss take the woman's hand and massage it worriedly, they didn't know how to react to the scene before them, especially the mall's manager, who was in a panic.

Oh no! I really want to slap myself right now. What did I just say? Can I take it all back?

Gwendolyn couldn't stop laughing when she saw Patrick bringing a large group of people with him. She felt he had gone overboard with it.

And as soon as she heard his question, she was speechless. Does this guy have to be so exaggerated?

While massaging her hand, Patrick shot an icy glare at Zachary. Then, he shifted his attention between Candace and Felicia.

“Mr. Carter, please ask you men to think through what they have done. It seems to me their eyesight is poor. How could they fail to differentiate dogs and humans?”

Candace's face instantly became dark when she heard that. How dare he compare us with a dog! Since Patrick was a man with a pretty face, one wouldn't expect him to be so brutal in cursing others.

As for Felicia, the moment she saw Patrick entering the boutique, she couldn't help but tremble in fear. She pulled her father's sleeve tightly and didn't
