Chapter 1141

1141 The War Has Started: Finn in Danger

“How do we fight for more time?”

“By using George to threaten Jeanne.” Alex explained, “Jeanne is the mastermind behind all this, and the only way I can think of to keep her in check is George.”

“George is Fourth Master’s son.” Finn had no choice but to say, “While threatening Jeanne, we’re also threatening Fourth Master.”

“For the country, many people will have to be sacrificed. Edward will understand.”

“I don’t think we have to use George to achieve that,” Finn expressed his opinion. “Moreover, we might not be able to achieve what we want.”

“If you have something to say, just say it.” Alex had been trained since he was young to learn all kinds of political tactics, so no one knew how shrewd he was.

Perhaps even Edward did not know.

At that moment, Finn wanted to negotiate with Alex. “It’s true that George is very important to Jeanne, but is George important to the Sanders? Using George to threaten Jeanne could only threaten her but not the Sanders. I even think that if we use George to threaten Jeanne, the Sanders will be ruthless to George! It’s undeniable that if the Sanders do anything to George and hurt him, Jeanne might break off ties with them, and you’ll have achieved your goal.

“But have you thought about it? Jeanne has already helped the Sanders. Even if she no longer helps them, they’re already on the right track. So, if you threaten Jeanne, it won’t help much with what you’re going through now.”

There was silence on the other end.

Alex seemed to be thinking about what Finn said.

“There’s another important point.” Finn did not hide anything. “The harm caused to George will not only concern Jeanne but also Fourth Master. Jeanne will break off relations with the Sanders because of this, and Fourth Master will also break off relations with you because of this. I hope you can be more cautious when it comes to family.”

“That’s why I said I envy Edward. It’s because there are always people around Edward who sincerely care about him,” Alex said bluntly.

“You have one too.” Finn said, “You have Fourth Master, don’t you?”

The other party was stunned.

“Between you and Jeanne, Fourth Master still chose you.”

It was obvious that he had chosen Alex. Otherwise, Jeanne and Edward would not be at odds with each other as they were now.

“I have an idea that can distract the Sanders and buy you some time,” Finn immediately said.

He finally revealed his plan.

In fact, Alex had expected that.

Finn would not take the initiative to call him unless it was something very important. Otherwise, he would not waste his time.

"I have a copy with me. It's about all the crimes the Sanders' have done to control the economy of Harken. Once it's exposed, the Sanders will be too busy taking care of themselves. After all, this is related to the Sanders' reputation. As the leader of the country, Warren will have to convince the public. If it causes internal strife and causes the citizens to revolt against the Sanders, it would be difficult for the Sanders to manage Harken. So, they'll think of ways to suppress this matter first," Finn said straightforwardly.

They had to rejoice that at least for now, the Sanders were in the open while they were in the dark.

The people in the dark could operate on more things and did not have to worry too much.

"This was something that Fourth Master had me prepare the day before he was arrested. However, before he could give me any instructions the next day, we lost contact. I've always thought that Fourth Master might come out, but I didn't expect that a week has passed and there's still no sign of him coming out. So, I could only bypass Fourth Master to report to you." Finn explained his reason.

"Publicize it." Alex did not hesitate to give him an order.

"Alright." Finn agreed immediately.

"Other than distracting the Sanders, try to think of a way to force them to release Edward."

"I know." In fact, Finn already had everything planned out.

Otherwise, he would not have gone to look for Alex.

"Be careful," Alex reminded him.

Once the Sanders found out that this matter was related to Finn, Finn would become the Sanders' next target.

“Yes.”

The other party did not say much and hung up the phone.

Since he had achieved his goal, there was no need to say more.

Finn also quietly put down his phone.

In fact, he only contacted Alex a week later because, on one hand, he wanted to wait for the progress of Edward's imprisonment. If it was just a smokescreen, he would not be in a hurry for quick success and would wait for Edward to come out before making further arrangements. However, that was obviously not the case. The Sanders wanted to imprison Edward so that they could achieve their goal against the Duncans. Hence, he could not wait any longer. On the other hand, Alex's reminder just now was right. Once he announced all the things the Sanders did, he will be involved, and the Sanders would probably deal with him. Once he was targeted, he would not be able to be in charge of many things. Therefore, he needed some time to arrange Gary's follow-up treatment.

Chapter 1142

1142 The War Has Started: Finn in Danger

Finn picked up his phone again and called his assistant. “Inform Gary's family to come to my office.”

The assistant looked at the phone in a daze.

Gary's family? Was that not Monica? Would it not be better for him to tell Monica, his ex-wife?

Of course, his assistant only dared to tease him in his heart. With Dr. Jones and his aloof attitude lately, he did not dare to joke around.

After a short while, someone knocked on Finn's door.

He raised his head and saw Monica standing politely at the door. “Dr. Jones, are you looking for me?”

Her tone was distant, polite, and even a little respectful.

Finn did not show any reaction. Instead, he nodded. "I want to talk to you about your father's treatment."

"Alright."

Monica walked over to Finn and sat opposite him.

Finn took out a treatment plan and said, "I've already sought help from international medical institutions for your father's illness. They'll come to the hospital next Monday to treat your father. According to the situation I've provided and the answer they gave me, there is a 60 percent chance that your father will wake up."

At that, Monica still got a little emotional.

She had no hope that her father would wake up, but now that she suddenly had a glimmer of hope, she could not help but feel a little excited.

"They are very professional in this field. Many cases of patients waking up happened because of them." Finn continued, "So, there's a high possibility that your father's condition will turn for the better."

"What do I need to do?" Monica tried her best to control her emotions.

"Just cooperate with the hospital for treatment." Finn said bluntly, "And prepare enough money for the treatment."

"Alright." Monica agreed immediately.

"There's another thing." Finn suddenly fell silent.

Monica looked at him.

To be honest, as a patient's family, she was most afraid of a doctor's silence. She felt that silence contained too many uncertainties.

"I have some personal matters to attend to, so I might not be there for your father's upcoming treatment," Finn said bluntly.

Monica was stunned.

What did he mean? Did Finn say that he would not be part of her father's treatment plan from now on?

"He's the person in charge of the international medical team. This is his photo, and his phone number is on the back. I've already told him about you, so you can look for him directly for anything related to your father. On top of that, the cardiology expert, Dr. Curtis, will be your father's new attending doctor, and I've handed over your father's case to him. If you have any problems, you can also look for him directly."

"Does that mean you're resigning?" Monica asked.

Did something big happen that he had to resign?

"Sort of," Finn said.

It could be considered a resignation. After all, he would not be coming to the hospital for a long time.

As for whether he would have the chance to come to the hospital again, that would depend on his fate.

Anyway, it was not up to him to decide.

“Why now?” Monica asked him.

Why did he have to resign at this time?

Could he not delay it for a few days?

She did not think that the other doctors were not capable enough. Rather, it was just that Finn had always been her father’s attending doctor and knew everything about her father’s condition. She was not sure if the other doctors could do as well as Finn.

However, Finn did not answer Monica.

There were many things that he could not tell her.

“Is it because you broke up with Sarah?” Monica asked.

She really did not expect that a breakup would make Finn make such a decision.

She had originally thought that Finn and Sarah did not have any feelings for each other. Yet, now that Sarah had dumped him, he could not accept it?

“If it is, I can help you persuade Sarah. She’s still young, and her feelings are unstable. I believe that if I persuade her and you coax her, she won’t fall in love with someone else—”

“It has nothing to do with her,” Finn interrupted her. “It’s my own private matter. You don’t have to guess.”

“If that’s the case, can you not resign now?” Monica asked him, trying to make herself look calm.

Could he not stay until the medical team arrived in South Hampton City?

Could he not wait until her father's condition had really improved before resigning?

Must he leave now?

"No," Finn replied.

Monica's throat moved.

In fact, she knew very well that she had never had a say when it came to Finn. She could not convince him of anything, and he would never listen to her.

Chapter 1143

1143 The War Has Started: Finn in Danger

However, she thought that when it came to public welfare, at least Finn was still a selfless person.

She said, "Okay."

Since she knew that she could not influence his decision, she could only accept it.

Finn stared at Monica and watched as she suddenly compromised.

A second ago, he might have wanted to hold her back, but at that moment, he had given up.

The resemblance of their feelings for each other was uncanny. At one moment, it could be so passionate, and at another, it could be dead.

"In that case, I won't disturb you anymore, Dr. Jones." Monica stood up from her chair and said, "Thank you, Dr. Jones, for treating my father during this period of time."

She was very rational, polite, and distant.

After that, she turned around and left.

"Monica," Finn suddenly called out to her.

Monica stopped in her tracks but did not look back. It seemed that she would never turn back.

"Take good care of yourself," Finn said.

She should take good care of herself in the future. If she really had depression, she had to see a doctor. There was no way for depression to recover on its own.

However, Monica did not respond.

Aside from their relationship as a doctor and the patient's family, they had no relationship at all. Hence, she would pretend she did not hear the words that would only be said between friends.

Finn stared at her back which was getting further and further away...

He still managed to maintain his rationality.

Finn then made a phone call. "Post what I'm sending you on the internet."

"Now?"

Once the call ended, Finn began to pack up his things. He was abnormally calm about what would happen next.

Half an hour later, the entire Harken was in an uproar because of an anonymous report that was posted all over the internet.

The report pointed out that when the Sanders was governing Harken, they repeatedly tried to control their economy by secretly controlling Lawrence Enterprise and then Cardellini Enterprise. Now, they were targeting Swan Enterprise. The report listed all the despicable means the Sanders used.

Firstly, about Jeanne’s right to inherit and operate Lawrence Enterprise, Jeanne was actually not a child of the Lawrence family and had no right to inherit it. However, in order to get the Lawrence Enterprise, the Sanders had allowed Jeanne to get it reasonably and legally. Then, because Jeanne was the daughter of the Sanders, Lawrence Enterprise naturally fell into the Sanders’ hands. There was also clear evidence that the person in charge of Lawrence Enterprise was Quinn, which further confirmed that accusation.

Secondly, Cardellini Pharmaceutical had just overcome a crisis, but the fact that they were on the verge of bankruptcy a while ago was a known fact. Everyone also knew that Michael was the one who controlled Sunny Pharmaceutical and wanted to take down Cardellini Pharmaceutical. If one looked closely at Michael’s identity, one would know that Michael had a close relationship with the Sanders because Michael’s resume was filled with his work for the Sanders. Therefore, it could be inferred that Michael’s attack on Cardellini Pharmaceutical was directed by the Sanders. It was because the Sanders wanted to obtain Cardellini Pharmaceutical and monopolize the pharmaceutical market.

There was an even more damning piece of evidence. The original head of Cardellini Pharmaceutical, Gary, had a heart attack. During his heart transplant surgery, a very serious medical accident occurred. However, the accident was not an accident. The report listed many things that happened, and the details were so detailed that everyone believed it was all true. The test results of the chief surgeon showed that someone deliberately drugged him, causing his cardiovascular disease and ultimately causing the surgery to fail. The person who drugged the chief surgeon had also been exposed on the internet. After a lot of digging into the person's identity, the suspicion was on the Sanders.

Thirdly, all the people in charge of Swan Enterprise were detained. There seemed to be a legitimate reason, but so far, there had been no definite progress. The news released every day was just some trivial reasoning, without any real evidence at all. All the businessmen knew that the business world was like a battlefield. One minute of delay could cost them a huge loss. In other words, the Sanders was deliberately making things difficult for Swan Enterprise by stopping all of Swan Enterprise's business transactions. They did not need to find any false charges for Swan Enterprise because if they continued to drag things out like that, Swan Enterprise would soon be exhausted of funds. The Sanders had the intention of making the Swan Enterprise go bankrupt. That's why they have locked up the Swans and would only release them at the appropriate time. When they're released, Swan Enterprise would declare bankruptcy, and the Swans would not be of much use. Without the Swans' control over Harken's economy, the Sanders would be able to smoothly control all of Harken's economy!"

Chapter 1144

1144 The War Has Started: Finn in Danger

All of the facts made everyone believe that it was all true.

Once people believe it was true, the Sanders would be met with criticism.

At that moment, all the citizens of Harken requested that the Sanders come forward to respond to the report posted and explain the current situation.

When Warren saw the news, he was furious.

Everything had been going smoothly until such a big thing popped up out of the blue. All the things that he had been doing in secret recently had been exposed!

Who was it who could investigate all of his shady matters so thoroughly?

Edward and Nox had been captured, so who else was there?

Could it be the descendant of the Duncans? Was it because they had threatened to expose his identity, so he resisted them?

“Father, what should we do now?” Chester asked.

Warren’s expression was unsightly.

Chester had no choice but to bite the bullet and report the current situation. “Now, apart from the public’s reaction to us and the demand for a response from the Sanders, some officials have also begun to make a fuss. They also want you to give them an explanation for the anonymous accusations against us. Otherwise, it might lead to a strike!”

“Impudent!” Warren slammed his hands on the desk in front of him.

At that moment, he was fuming.

Chester did not even dare to breathe.

“Who did this?” Warren asked fiercely.

It was as if he wanted to tear that person into a thousand pieces.

“I think it might be Finn,” Chester suddenly said.

Warren’s eyes narrowed. “Finn?”

“He’s Edward’s private doctor, and he’s also a cardiologist at South Hampton City Central Hospital. He usually is in contact with Edward. We have even verified Finn’s identity before and had Michael verify if Finn was a descendant of the Duncans for us. Although the final result was that he was not, he is definitely not a simple person. However, because there haven’t been many conflicts between us, we didn't pay much attention to him. We didn't expect that our negligence would allow him to take advantage of the situation!"

"How can we be sure that this matter is related to him?" Warren asked coldly.

After all, he was the leader of the country, and there were many things that he could not do personally. There were some things that he would leave to Chester to do, so he only had a vague impression of Finn. As he did not know Finn well, he did not know why his son would suspect Finn.

They simply could not waste their time on some people who were not important.

"First of all, Edward and Nox are imprisoned and have no contact with the outside world. Thus, we can rule out the possibility that they did it. Secondly, I just said that Finn and Edward are related. In other words, it's very likely that Finn also knows everything, including the existence of the Duncans' descendant. Lastly, Finn is Gary's attending physician. When I found someone to drug the surgeon who operated on Gary, only Finn was with the attending surgeon in the operating theatre. I just read the anonymous letter carefully, and the details of the surgery were written so clearly. It's impossible for it to be so detailed unless it was personal experience. Therefore, we can conclude that it was Finn."

Warren nodded.

Naturally, he agreed with his son's reasoning. However, he was still very angry.

He had captured Edward and Nox, but he did not expect that Finn was also involved.

That had ruined his big plan!

"Father, I think the best way now is to kill Finn." Chester said viciously, "The only person who can prove that our family has done all these shady things is this anonymous informant. Since we've locked onto the person, we have to silence him. Then, we'll come out and deny these allegations. Anyway, in this anonymous letter, a lot of it is logical reasoning, and there isn't much evidence. We can also use this logic to refute and even arrange for a witness to prove our innocence."

“Let’s do that.” Warren knew that they did not have much time to waste. “Immediately arrange for someone to secretly get rid of Finn. Be quick! I will discuss with the Minister of Internal Affairs how to clear our name. We’ll give a reply to the public tomorrow morning.”

“Yes.” Chester was extremely respectful.

As he turned around to leave, Warren suddenly called out to him, “Chester.”

Chester quickly turned around. “Yes, father.”

“Don’t let Jeanne know about this” Warren reminded him.

“Father, do you still don’t trust Jeanne?” Chester asked.

After spending the past few days together, he believed Jeanne completely.

After all, Jeanne had done her best to attack the Duncans’ power. Moreover, he had to admit that everything was developing in a good direction.

If not for the sudden incident, he even believed that they would get their desired result in less than a week.

Yet, someone just had to appear out of nowhere.

Chester’s expression was also very ugly.

“It’s not that I don’t trust Jeanne, but I’m afraid that she’ll be swayed by her emotions.” Warren said, “If I recall correctly, Monica and Finn are also related.”

“Yes. Finn is Monica’s ex-husband. Monica chose to divorce Finn for Michael. Most importantly, Finn is now Gary’s attending physician.”

“That’s why I’m worried that Jeanne will do something irrational for Monica. You should know how close Monica and Jeanne are!”

“I know.” Chester quickly nodded. “I won’t let Jeanne know.”

“You have to be careful.”

“Yes, father.”

“Go on,” Warren said.

With that, Chester left respectfully.

Not long after he walked out of the study, he bumped into Jeanne.

Jeanne had come to look for Warren, and when she saw Chester, she greeted him politely, “Brother.”

“Are you looking for father?”

“Yes, I saw the news today. I think it’s harmful to our family, so I want to discuss with father how to resolve our family’s crisis.”

“I’ve discussed this matter with father, so you don’t have to interfere. You should focus on finding the descendant of the Duncans and creating conflicts with them. Leave the rest to us.” Chester blatantly rejected her help.

“Does father think the same too?”

“Yes.”

“Alright. Then, I’m not worried anymore. I believe that you can handle it.”

Chester smiled gently. “I’m glad father has such a sensible and intelligent daughter like you.”

“You’re too kind,”

“I won’t say more. I have work to do.”

“Take care.” Jeanne smiled.

Then, she watched Chester leave. It was obvious that he was in a hurry.

That meant that Finn was probably in danger.

Chapter 1145

1145 Monica Risked Her Life To Save Finn

At South Hampton City Central Hospital, Finn sorted out everything he had and handed over all the work.

Just as he prepared to leave, his phone suddenly rang.

Finn glanced at the caller ID on his phone. After looking at it for a while, he put his phone in his pocket and left the office.

He walked past Gary’s intensive care unit.

From a distance, he saw that Monica was also there. She was expressionless as she looked at the person lying inside.

Having heard his footsteps, Monica turned her head and took a look.

She looked at Finn, who had already taken off his white doctor's coat and was now wearing casual clothes.

She still did not show much emotion. She even walked away from Finn the moment he walked over.

Finn pursed his lips.

Just like that, they brushed past each other.

Finn looked at Gary.

According to Gary's current condition, with the treatment of an international expert doctor, the chances of him regaining consciousness should be very high.

That was all he could do, and it was the last thing he would do for Cardellinis.

He stayed with Gary for a while before leaving the hospital. After leaving this hospital, his life and death were up to fate to decide.

He got into his car. As soon as he started the car and drove out of the garage, he saw a familiar car following behind him.

Logically speaking, Monica would usually stay in the hospital during the weekends, and she rarely left halfway.

Finn looked away and did not think too much about it.

In reality, Monica followed behind him not because she wanted to follow him, but because she had just realized that her antidepressants had run out. She had made an appointment with a psychiatrist to get the medicine and receive treatment.

Sometimes, she was so busy that she did not even have time for herself.

She drove at a steady pace to the counseling center.

It was past 3 p.m. in the afternoon. Although it was not the peak hour for traffic and not many cars were on the road, there were still quite a few.

Anyway, the traffic was heavy, but it was not congested.

The car drove for a long distance.

Monica did not want to follow behind Finn, but because the counseling center was not far from Finn's house, that was her route.

However, she purposely stopped at a traffic light even when there were still a few seconds to go, which caused the car behind her to honk non-stop.

Monica watched indifferently as Finn's car drove further and further away from her.

As she was thinking about Finn getting further and further away from her, the light turned green again.

Monica drove forward unhurriedly.

On the quiet road, a sudden screeching of brakes could be heard. The next second, the entire street was in chaos.

Monica frowned.

In the distance, she saw a car retreating quickly.

An instinctive fear suddenly arose in her heart as she recalled the scene of her and Finn getting into a car accident.

Right at that moment, Finn's car suddenly lost control and drove crazily on the road. It was the same scene as the last time!

Did Finn offend someone again?

Was Michael not dead?

She really could not think of anyone else Finn could have provoked!

As a doctor, he should not have any enmity with anyone. Why was Finn being pursued so frequently?

Being pursued...

Monica's grip on the steering wheel tightened.

Finn, who was driving the car like a madman, naturally looked a little tense at the moment.

He tried his best to calm himself down and skillfully maneuvered the steering wheel to avoid the cars one after another in an attempt to escape.

He knew that the Sanders was going to make a move on him, but he did not expect it to happen so quickly.

He had originally planned to go back and help George settle down, but Alex's words had made him wary. Since Edward had handed George over to him, he had the obligation to protect George.

However, the current situation was much worse than he had thought. Perhaps he would not have the chance to make the arrangements himself!

His eyes narrowed.

After shaking off a car that was speeding toward him, he quickly made a call. "Teddy."

"Dr. Jones," the other party said respectfully.

"Take George and leave now. Don't go back to the Swans, and don't stay in my apartment anymore. Don't appear in public for a while and don't contact us. We'll contact you when everything is stable."

"Alright." Teddy quickly agreed.

Chapter 1146

1146 Monica Risked Her Life To Save Finn

After Fourth Master was taken away by the Sanders, Teddy knew that the situation had become serious. Therefore, he did not dare to ask.

Once Finn had given his instructions, he hung up the phone and immediately dialed another number.

He said quickly and anxiously, "I'm being hunted down by the Sanders. I'm now at Jade Boulevard, and I need support!"

After saying that, he did not get a reply from the other party, nor did he have the time.

Due to the distraction caused by the phone call, the car that he had shaken off was already dashing toward him.

Finn gritted his teeth.

He suddenly turned the steering wheel at an intersection. With no time to check if there was anything wrong with the direction he was going in, he stepped on the accelerator and drove in that direction. The moment he drove over, he suddenly realized that a black modified car was coming straight at him.

He stepped on the brake hard, and the violent screeching of the brakes sounded on the road again.

However, the car that was rapidly approaching in front of him and the car that was hot on his heels made it impossible for Finn to escape.

There was also no time to jump out of the car.

At that moment, the only thing he could do was to brace himself in a posture that could protect himself the most and wait for the impact.

The next second, his car was violently hit.

Finn felt the strong impact of the collision, but he suddenly realized that he was not being attacked by two cars. Instead, his car had been madly knocked away by a speeding car without any hesitation.

He was knocked out by a car that drove over.

The moment he was knocked out, the two cars crashed, from both sides, into that car that had knocked him out.

The entire street was filled with loud noises. It was as if the sky was falling!

When Finn turned around and saw the car, he was suddenly in a daze.

He did not even know what kind of situation he was in at the moment. He just stared at the familiar car, which belonged to Monica, crushed by the two cars until it was deformed.

He was very sure that the person in the car was Monica.

He saw her driving the moment he left the hospital, or rather, it looked like Monica was driving...

No. That was impossible!

Monica would never save him with her life.

He frantically pulled out his seat belt.

At that moment, all the airbags had deployed. Hence, he used all his strength to break free from the airbag and opened the door frantically.

Then, he quickly ran to Monica's car.

At that moment, he could not feel any danger even when the people had gotten out of the two cars.

The hand, which was hidden under his clothes, was holding a black pistol.

All his attention was on the deformed car in front of him. He did not dare to imagine if the person inside could still live when the car was so deformed.

Was the person inside still alive?

He reached out and knocked on the driver's door which was locked. Then, he went crazy and smashed the window of the driver's seat.

His vision was blurry. He could not even see everything in front of him clearly.

He only had one thought in his mind: Monica could not die, and he would not let Monica die.

He slammed his hand against the car window, one punch after another until his hand was covered in blood.

He could not feel pain, to begin with, and he felt even numb now. All he wanted was to break that glass and bring Monica out.

He could not even sense the two people, who got out of the two cars, approaching him.

From behind, a man took out a gun hidden in his clothes and pointed it at his head. All the man had to do was pull the trigger and Finn would be dead.

However, at that moment, Finn no longer seemed to care. All of his attention was on the car in front of him — on the woman in the car.

"Bang!" A gunshot sounded and echoed in the sky.

The chaotic street instantly fell silent because of that gunshot.

In an instant, the silence turned into screams, and countless cars drove away in a frenzy.

Chapter 1147

1147 Monica Risked Her Life To Save Finn

However, it was as if everything happened had nothing to do with Finn.

He was still punching the car window like a crazy man, and the back of his bloody hands looked hideous.

The bullet did not hit his head because the Duncans' reinforcements had arrived.

From afar, a sniper directly killed the man holding a pistol behind Finn.

The next moment, another gunshot sounded. The other man was also killed.

Very quickly, the Duncans' reinforcement appeared beside Finn and even planned to bring him away without hesitation.

Finn knew that it was not good for him to stay there for long. Since the Sanders were here to kill him, they would not give up so quickly.

However, the moment the Duncans' men approached Finn and were about to take him away, he frantically pushed them away.

"Don't come near me!" Finn said.

His voice was terrifyingly sinister.

At that moment, the Duncans' men could not help but feel a chill that seemed to come from hell. The man in front of them exuded a vicious aura that made them gasp.

After saying that, Finn punched the car window again and again.

The glass of a premium car was unimaginably sturdy.

When the Duncans' men behind him saw Finn's appearance, they did not dare to go forward and had to report to their superior. "Finn won't let us take him away now! He's been hitting the window of a car. It seems like he's trying to save someone."

"Help him save the person and protect him!" The other party gave the order.

"Yes," the man said respectfully.

At the same time, the person on the other end of the line dialed another number and ordered coldly, "Go and bring George back."

"Received."

Alex put down the phone, and his face darkened.

Edward, Finn, and Nox all had feelings and emotions. Once one was influenced by their feelings, many things could go wrong.

Therefore, he needed to leave himself a greater possibility.

He was not heartless, and he would not sacrifice anyone if it was not necessary. However, he would not be soft-hearted if he had to sacrifice someone.

...

On the streets, the Duncans' man, who had received the order, ordered everyone to help Finn to knock down the car window as fast as they could.

Finally, the glass cracked. Then, with a little force, the entire piece of glass shattered.

That was when he saw a figure covered in blood and with the airbag wrapped around her tightly, but her face was still bleeding profusely.

Her eyes were closed, and she was motionless. It was as if she was not even breathing.

Finn's hands, which were covered in blood and wounds, were close to her face, and his trembling fingers gently caressed her pale face.

He did not even know if Monica was still alive at that time as he could not even feel her temperature.

His fingers inched closer to her nose, bit by bit, to feel if she was really... dead.

His eyes were red, and he could not see Monica's face clearly. However, he forced himself to look at her clearly.

Then, he calmed himself down and tried to feel if she was still breathing.

At that moment, the entire world seemed to have fallen silent. It was so quiet that he could only hear the sound of his heart beating against his chest.

Suddenly, a tear fell from Finn's eye.

He seemed to have felt the slight warmth in Monica's breath — the warmth that came from her weak breathing.

She was not dead.

Even if her arms and legs were broken, it was fine. As long as she was alive, anything was fine.

Finn frantically pulled on the car door, and the Duncans' men were also pulling it open with force.

Finally, they managed to open the car door.

Finn got into the car, opened the airbag, and carried Monica out of the driver's seat.

Monica's entire body was covered in blood, but she did not respond or react. She just leaned on him.

Just like that, she lay in his arms, looking as if... she was dead.

Finn quickly carried Monica up and sat in the Duncans' car.

The Duncans' men quickly drove to the hospital.

Finn held her tightly in his arms the entire time as if he was afraid that she would die and he wanted to protect her with his life.

However, she was the one who had risked her life to save him.

Finn was overwhelmed with emotions.

However, he forced himself to hold it in.

The car arrived at the hospital in no time, and Finn rushed into the operating theatre with Monica in his arms.

Everyone in the hospital was shocked by the blood all over Dr. Jones's body and the woman who was covered in blood in his arms.

What was even more shocking was that the usually calm and emotionless Dr. Jones looked as if the sky had collapsed. It was as if the woman in his arms was his life.

He looked indescribably devastated.

After Monica was sent to the operating theatre by the doctors and nurses, the door of the operating theatre slammed shut.

Finn was standing stiffly at the door, with the Duncans' men all standing respectfully by his side, not daring to make a sound.

The corridor was very quiet.

Amidst the silence, a nurse came over and asked carefully, "Dr. Jones, do you want me to treat your wound? I see that your hand is seriously injured, and the other parts of your body—"

"No need." Finn refused.

The nurse wanted to say something else. However, when she saw Finn's expression, she held her tongue and did not dare to say anything more.

The corridor fell silent again.

Time passed by, and eventually, the door of the operating theatre opened.

The surgeon walked out, looking very nervous.

Finn looked at him.

“Dr. Jones, the patient is bleeding internally and is in a coma now. Should we perform a craniotomy?” The doctor asked and then said, “But based on the current situation, I’m afraid that during the craniotomy process, she might—”

“Do the craniotomy.” Finn directly said, “The procedures will be handled later. If anything happens, I’ll be responsible for it.”

He could even pay with his life.

“However, I don’t have enough experience in craniotomy. I’ve asked the nurse to contact our specialist doctor, but since he’s on leave today, if he rushes over...” The doctor could not guarantee that Monica would be able to survive before the specialist doctor arrived.

Moreover, based on his experience and Monica’s current situation, even if they opened her head, they might not be able to stop the bleeding successfully. It might even accelerate her death.

“Help me change into my surgical gown,” Finn suddenly said.

“Dr. Jones...” The doctor was surprised.

Regardless of his current physical condition and the fact that his hands were in a terrible state, he was a cardiologist and not a surgeon.

According to the hospital’s rules, he was not qualified to perform that kind of surgery!

“I’ll open the head,” Finn said with certainty.

His voice was clear, and he did not seem to be joking.

“But Dr. Jones—”

“I said, I will bear all the consequences.” Finn enunciated each word.

Before the doctor could say anything, Finn instructed, “Go in and try your best to stabilize Monica’s condition as much as possible. I’ll come over as soon as I get changed.”

The doctor hesitated for a second.

However, that was the only way. If they did not deal with it effectively now, Monica would die.

Finn went to the doctor’s changing room and changed into his surgical gown. He then put on a pair of transparent surgical gloves on his bloody and ferocious-looking hands.

The nurse could feel the pain just by looking at it, yet Finn did not even frown.

With his clothes changed, he walked into the operating theatre.

He glanced at Monica’s pulse rate on the monitor and said calmly, “We’ll start the craniotomy for the patient now.”

Everyone in the operating theater listened to all his instructions.

It was extremely quiet inside the operating theatre. Only Finn’s instructions could be heard from time to time.

“Dr. Jones,” the assistant doctor suddenly called out to him.

He only saw after opening the head that there was a large blood clot in Monica's brain and that blood clot was threatening Monica's life. However, that blood clot was pressing on the central nervous system of her brain, so the risk of the operation was very high. If they were not careful, she could die in the operation.

Moreover, at that moment, it was obvious that Dr. Jones's hand, which was holding the scalpel, was trembling uncontrollably.

The assistant doctor could not help but call out to him because of his trembling.

Finn put down the scalpel.

Everyone was looking at him.

If he gave up now, the patient in front of him would die without a doubt. However, no one dared to ask Dr. Jones to do it.

Even the highest-ranking surgeon in Harken would not dare to easily treat that blood clot, let alone Finn.

In such a quiet operating theater, Monica's breath was getting weaker and weaker.

If that continued ...

"Dr. Jones." The assistant surgeon said, "How about we wait for Dr. West?"

Dr. West was currently the best surgeon in Harken.

Finn did not answer. He just walked away from the operating table and walked to a corner of the operating theater, seemingly to calm himself down.

However, at that moment, his fingers were trembling uncontrollably, and he could not calm down at all.

He simply could not accept Monica's death...

The atmosphere in the operating theater was a little tense.

Suddenly, the nurse said loudly, "The patient's heartbeat is accelerating!"

Finn looked over and saw that Monica's heart rate kept going up until it suddenly stopped.

"Prepare the defibrillator!" the assistant surgeon quickly instructed.

Inside the operating theater, they quickly made preparations, and the assistant surgeon began to electric shock Monica's heart.

Again and again, Monica's heart was electric-shocked. However, there was no reaction from the heartbeat monitor.

The assistant surgeon was sweating profusely. After repeated failed attempts at defibrillation, he began to have the thought of giving up.

That was when he saw Finn suddenly walk over, took the defibrillator from his hand, and began to rescue Monica.

He put the defibrillator on her heart, which had suddenly stopped, and delivered the shock again and again.

“Dr. Jones...” The assistant surgeon and nurse called out to him.

It had been such a long time. If the heart had yet recovered and started beating again, Monica could be declared... dead.

However, Finn did not seem to hear them as he kept delivering the shock.

“Dr. Jones, she can’t be saved.” The assistant surgeon and the nurse had to remind him.

Even if he continued to try to rescue her, it would be useless because it was really over. Monica’s life had really ended.

However, Finn did not give up.

He could not hear the voices of the doctors and nurses. All he knew was that he wanted to save Monica, and he would risk his life to save her.

At that moment, in the operating theatre, some of the nurses’ eyes were already red. It was because Dr. Jones’s appearance made them feel sorry for him.

Just how much did he love her that he refused to give up? That was why he was so desperate to pull her back from death like crazy.

Everyone did not try to persuade Dr. Jones anymore. Even though everyone knew what the result was, no one said a word because of Finn’s appearance.

They even thought to themselves, ‘What if there’s really a miracle? What if a miracle really happened?’

“Dr. Jones.” As the nurse’s tears blurred her vision, she suddenly screamed, “There’s a number! There’s a number...”

Everyone looked at the surveillance equipment and saw that the heartbeat monitor, which had stopped for at least eight minutes suddenly, had numbers on it. 20, 30, 50, 60, 70... It slowly began to recover.

That was a miracle — the miracle of life.

Finn also glanced over and saw the heart rate steadily rising...

Then, his vision seemed to blur again. He did not know if it was sweat or tears, but it blocked his vision.

“Let’s begin to remove the blood clot,” Finn said.

In those few seconds, he had regained his composure.

The doctors and nurses seemed to have suddenly gained confidence as well. They felt that as long as they did not give up, anything was possible.

With that, the nurse helped Finn wipe his sweat and tears, while Finn picked up the scalpel again before cutting down with it.

If Monica could not make it through the surgery, he would die with her.

If she could survive, no matter what she would become in the future, be it brain dead, paralysis, epilepsy, low intelligence... as long as she was alive, he would be with her for a lifetime!

The surgery lasted for five hours. Little by little, Finn cleaned up all the blood clots in Monica’s brain.

During the entire process, Monica’s heartbeat fluctuated a few times, but she managed to pull through.

In the end, the surgery was a success.

Monica was pushed out of the operating theatre and directly sent to the intensive care unit.

Her life was no longer in danger, but he did not know what kind of side effects she would have after she woke up.

He did not even know if she could wake up.

Without taking off his surgical gown, Finn just stood outside the intensive care unit, looking at her.

Chapter 1150

1150 Monica Risked Her Life To Save Finn

He looked at her unconscious appearance.

“Dr. Jones, do you want to get your wound treated?” A nurse came forward and asked with concern, “Ms. Cardellini is out of critical danger for the time being. If she is to wake up, it will take at least eight hours. Dr. Jones, you can treat your wound first.”

However, Finn did not respond. His eyes were fixed on Monica as if he could not hear anything from the outside world.

Monica seemed to be the only person in his world

The nurse was helpless and could only leave again.

This time, if Ms. Cardellini were to wake up, she would definitely help Dr. Jones woo Ms. Cardellini.

She felt that Dr. Jones was the most devoted man in the world!

Outside the intensive care unit, other than Finn, there were only a few of the Duncans' men who were protecting Finn.

Ruby still did not know that Monica had gotten into such a big car accident, and Finn did not want to inform her either. Except for Monica, he could not think of anything else at that moment.

He just stood there like a stone.

However, one of the Duncans' men behind him suddenly approached him. When he was caught off guard, the man used force and knocked him out unconscious on the back of his head.

The moment he fainted, the Duncans' men quickly left the hospital with Finn.

That was... an order from above. Their superior had ordered them to take Finn away directly, no matter what method they used.

Therefore, they chose a simple yet crude method!

When Finn woke up, it was already nighttime. The room was very bright, but it was already dark outside.

He opened his eyes and saw someone in front of him treating his wound. At that moment, his wound seemed to have been treated, and the final dressing was done.

Finn took a few seconds to react. Then, he pushed the doctor in front of him away and got up to leave.

"Finn, you know that you can't escape, so why do you have to do this?" The doctor who was bandaging him stopped him.

Finn's eyes were cold as he looked at the man before him.

“You haven’t been by my side for so long, and you didn’t even address me when you saw me?” The man’s face darkened.

Finn was silent for a while.

In the end, he said respectfully, “Master.”

The master who had imparted his medical skills to him was the world’s top genius doctor, Kennedy Baker, who had once been world-famous but had suddenly disappeared from the world.

No one knew that his sudden disappearance was not because he got into an accident and died, which had spread like wildfire. Rather, it was because he returned to the Duncans’ side and became their full-time doctor. He had perfectly turned the Duncans’ descendant, Alex, into William Gates.

The most important reason why Alex could replace William Gates, other than the fact that he was constantly learning his expressions, movements, habits, and so on, was that the two of them had the exact same face.

Alex’s facial reconstruction surgery was done by Kennedy.

In this world, only Kennedy could turn two completely different faces into one without any flaws.

Then, there was also Finn.

After all, Kennedy was old, so he passed on all of his medical knowledge to Finn.

Moreover, Finn was extremely talented. It was only a matter of time before he learned everything Kennedy had.

“Sir told me to look after you.” Kennedy nodded at the way Finn addressed him before telling Finn his purpose there.

Finn clenched his fists tightly.

Of course, he knew who Kennedy was referring to.

It was Alex, and Alex wanted to restrain him.

“You’re the only witness to expose the Sanders. Nothing can happen to you for now. Stay here.” Kennedy told him clearly, “As for Monica’s situation, I will tell you when she makes progress. All I can tell you now is that she’s still unconscious.”
