Chapter 2

Dexter, who was standing behind Cathy, was furious, “What are you talking about? You worthless daughter!”

Jillian snorted, “The Truth.”

She indeed didn't expect that the woman who was with Ronan would be Amber.

Originally thinking that it was just Ronan betraying her, in a fit of anger, he came up with this damaging trick to make him make a fool of himself to relieve her hatred.

But unexpectedly, not only did her fiancé cheat on her, but she also cheated by her half-sister.

What the hell!

Cathy was so furious that she raised her cane to smash down on her, but Ofelia, who was beside her, was stopping her.

“Mom, say what you have to say but don't get angry, be careful of your body. It is not good for you to be mad.”

Ofelia turned over to advice Jillian, “Jillian, don't make Grandma angry anymore, if this matter is Amber's fault, you can beat or scold her later, it's all up to you, but Grandma is old, listen to me, don't talk to her like that!”

That gentle and sensible look, if she didn't know better, she would have thought how kind she was.

Jillian sarcastically quirked the corner of her lips.

Her father, Dexter, saw her like this and became more angry. “You feel satisfied now, don't you? If you put your sister and your fiancé behind the bars! You'll make the Ramos family lose face with the Smith family. Do you even know your last name? Your sister is a star, what will she do in the future if word gets out? Does she still be accepted in the entertainment business? Do the Ramos and Smith families still want to see each other in the future? Have you thought about these?"

Jillian looked at him coldly, "So, that's all you can think of?"

Dexter was stunned.

"They cheated and betrayed me! But you still blaming me? So what do you want me to do with them? Turning a blind eye to their actions? Or wish them a good life together?"

Dexter was speechless, he paused for a seconds, before he said in a strong, angry voice, "You are not able to keep a man, but you blame someone else for betraying you? If you were a good one, would a man dump you and fall in love with your sister? What's the difference between not waking up after an accident and blaming the gods, and that worthless mother of yours?"

Jillian shook hard.

She looked at her father who was speaking so harshly to her. She just couldn't believe it.

Five years ago, Jillian and her mother discover that Dexter cheated, His other woman was Ofelia. She took Amber into their home, and she realized that she had a sister who was only half a year younger than her.

Her mother couldn't take the shock and drove her car into the river and died.

The Ramos family was afraid that Jillian would cause trouble. So, they sent her abroad without questioning whether she lives or dies.

In those years, she would have died abroad if not for a small inheritance from her mother.

She had always known that her father and her grandmother disliked her mother. Her heart chilled for a moment, before she gave a mocking laugh.

“Yes! I cannot keep a man, after all, my mother is very modest, I don’t inherit that skill of seducing a man, not like Amber.”

Ofelia’s face instantly turned pale.

Dexter was furious, “What are you talking about?”

“You know exactly what I’m talking about!”

“You!”

“Enough!”

The old lady standing at the side suddenly snapped out, Dexter was so angry that he wanted to say something else, but Ofelia pulled his arm next to him.

When Jillian looked up, she saw Harold Smith was leading Ronan and Amber out of the interrogation room together.

Harold’s face was very unpleasant.

Amber was holding onto Ronan’s arm, her beautiful face filled with grieving eyes, looking pitiful.

A crowd of people sprang forward, eagerly concerned, “Amber! Are you okay?”

Amber shook her head and said softly, “I’m fine.”

After saying that, she looked up at Jillian who was standing behind the crowd.

“Sister.” Amber called softly, coming up to her, looking at her guiltily and tenderly. “I’m sorry, we didn’t think you’d come over... me and Ronan... we didn’t mean it... Please forgive us!”

Jillian looked at her coldly, her face expressionless.

Harold also sighed and stepped forward and said, “This matter is our family’s fault to you, but it has happened and there is no way to fix it, if compensation is needed, as long as you ask, we will definitely give.”

Jillian sneered, “Compensation? Are you trying to get rid of me with money?”

Harold’s face turned pale and a touch of guilt flashed across his eyes. He stared back at Ronan and shouted angrily, “You’ve done it yourself, so why don’t you come over here and say something!”

Ronan was full of reluctance, and after a glance at Jillian, he finally came forward unwillingly under his father’s authority.

“Jillian, we’re not right for each other. Let’s break the engagement!”

Jillian was shaken.

Her heart felt like it had been cut by a dull knife and was overflowing with hidden pain.

She already knew the outcome, but when the moment came, she couldn’t stop feeling sad and a chill rose up in her heart.

She looked at the man in front of her and curled her lips, her eyes turned red.

“Ronan, how long have we been together?”

“Huh? Six years.”

She never expected the six years to be gone like that.

She caught them in an act, but no guilt afterwards, no redemption, not even an apology, just a cold “We’re not right for each other. Let’s break the engagement.”

Something cracked open from the bottom of her heart but she smirked her lips sarcastically and without hesitation she said, “Okay, I agree.”

Ronan was startled, a little surprised at her firmness. He frowned slightly and looked at her suspiciously, “Are you serious?”

“Yes, breaking off the engagement is fine, but I want those three newly acquired subsidiaries of Smith Group’s as compensation for me!”

“What? Are you crazy?!”

Before Harold and Ronan could speak, Dexter shouted out sharply.

Jillian looked at him coldly, “Why? Mr. Harold Smith said he will give me compensation for what his son did to. Right?”

“Shameless daughter! You-!”

“Okay.” Harold raised his hand, interrupting Dexter’s words and looking at Jillian calmly.

“I promise you your terms, and I’ll pass the company into your name just bring me the other half of the certificate of engagement so we can cancel it legally.”

“Okay, deal.”

As Harold led the lawyer away, Dexter glared at Jillian angrily, accompanied by Ofelia, who assisted Cathy in leaving.

There were only three people left in the empty corridor, Jillian, Ronan and Amber.

She didn’t want to dwell on it and turned coldly to walk out, but behind her came Amber’s eager voice.

“Sister!” In the next second, her way was blocked.

Amber had a pale face, sobbing, she grab Jillian’s arm and said, “Sister, I’m sorry, I really didn’t mean to fall in love with Ronan, please don’t be angry with us, everything is my fault, if you want to fight or scold, just do it!”
