

Chaplain! 48

Chapter 48 Get Me The Invitations!

"You're talking to me about nutrition? You might as well ask me why I don't have any meat here?!"

She felt pissed, and her entire body was filled with rage. She had tears in her eyes as she screamed, "Please, go after someone else!

"Take your lies and unrealistic world away from me, please!

"If you don't want Olivia, I'll take care of her!

"Just take it as if I owed it to you, alright?"

Mary Grimm did not say a word, but she already lost her appetite.

She knew better than anyone else about how they suffered all these years.

Did she need to throw a tantrum to show how angry she was?

No. It was no longer necessary!

One look in her eyes was enough to speak a thousand words!

Follow current on storynovel.net

"Mother, Emilia! I know that you hate me!"

Oliver Walker bent forward and blocked the food on the table with his body as he said sincerely, "There are numerous misunderstandings here, and I can't explain it now, so it's getting worse.

"Olivia is my daughter, and I will be responsible for her!

"You are my mother! Even if you weren't the one who gave birth to me, you still gave me a second chance in life!

"I, Oliver Walker, isn't a heartless traitor! I will never leave after taking so much kindness from you!

"You are the closest family I've got, and I will protect you for the rest of my life. I...

"Why would I lie to you?!"

He did not know how to explain himself. He was also aware that if he told the truth, his mother-in-law and wife would never believe him.action

It felt as if there was a huge iceberg between him and his family.

It was something impossible to break through!

Mary Grimm scoffed, but she was not convinced.

Follow current on storynovel.net

This was because she has heard the same words coming out of her husband's mouth multiple times!

The only thing that was different here was that Oliver Walker was much better at acting, and she almost believed him!

'Bakk—'

Emilia stood up from her chair and threw the chopsticks onto the ground as she screamed, "Please! Stop it with the award-winning performance!"

"If you didn't lie to me, you would be the hero who came back from the frontlines in Indiana!

"I will give you another chance to prove yourself. There will be a health talk held by the godly doctor, Hendric Smith, who is from the International Medical Center here in the First Hospital tomorrow morning.

"You should know about these health talks, right?"

"Only those who are invited will get the chance to be treated by him!

"But I don't have an invitation. You'll have to get one!"

"If you have time to act in front of us now, why don't you do something practical?! At least give me something to trust you!"

"Please?!"

Follow current on storynovel.net

She felt even angrier, and her emotions were spiraling out of control, "You're doing nothing and leaving plot holes everywhere, but you want me to believe you?!"

Was this an opportunity?

It wasn't! She just wanted Oliver Walker to give up so that he would stop bothering her.

She was already drained!

She felt exhausted!

How precious were these invitations?

This man didn't even care about his daughter, and he even abandoned his wife. He even wanted to take away the only money left for them to treat their daughter. It would be impossible for someone like him to get the invitation.

However, she had no idea that Hendric Smith, the godly doctor who was the VIP of Colorado.....

Was the man whom she called a charlatan just right outside the ward!

In fact, if Emilia trusted him, Oliver Walker didn't need to do such things.

He had no other choice but to do so.

When Emilia said her request, Oliver's eyes turned red as he said, "Mother, Emilia! Please! Give me half an hour, and I will bring back the invitation card.

"I will make sure that the godly doctor will treat Olivia tomorrow.

"But...I only have one request. Please stop having these.

"I...I'll buy your some food, alright?"