

Fated to My Enemy

Chapter 119

Gunner was on the verge of shifting as I watched the SUV drive away with my mate. She was in silver cuffs like some kind of prisoner and not the Luna that she is.

"Blake," I heard Luca call out before I turned and hit Jerry square in the face. I've never felt a fury as I do right now. The council took away my mate and they were going to pay.

Council warriors surrounded me while Luca fought to get to me. Jerry held out his hand to stop them while he wiped the blood from his split lip.

"Who the fuck told you?" I roared, unable to hold in my fury any longer. I was ready to clean out the council and anyone who stood in my way of being with Ryley.

"What the hell is going on? Where is Ryley?"

Luca exclaimed over the chaos. I know Ryley wanted me to protect the boys but I couldn't let the council have her. She was mine and I don't care about the reasoning. She may be a Luna wolf but they had no right to take her

"Blake, I wish I could help you. I do. But my hands are tied. She is a Luna wolf and I need to handle this according to the laws in place. There hasn't been one born in years. He sighed, looking at me with pity. I didn't want his pity, I wanted blood.

I rushed towards him but it was Luca who stepped in front of him, holding me back.

"I'm sorry, Blake," Jerry said before he and his warriors got into their vehicles and drove away. My body was vibrating with the need to shift and rip something apart. How the hell can this be happening? And who the fuck would tell the council about her.

"Blake, I understand but you need to protect the boys. I've just been informed Alpha Dorian has crossed the border." Gunner let out a murderous growl.

"Found out who outed her to the council and contact Walter. We are going to need anyone and everyone if we are going to take down the council. She is mine and I won't let her go without a fight," I growled. Luca nodded just as an SUV pulled up in front of the packhouse. As soon as Dorian stepped out of the vehicle, all I saw was red.

"What the fuck is wrong with you?" I yelled, throwing him up against the SUV, my hands wrapped around his throat.

"I didn't tell. I didn't even know," he screamed but it was short-lived as I punched him in the face. The back of his head bounced off the door of the vehicle.

"You gave her up and she is mine. She will never be yours again. And if I don't get her back, you are the first person I'm coming for," my threat was a promise.

"I'm here for Channing. The council called me this morning." He sighed and I smashed him against the vehicle again.

"And you didn't think to warn her," I yelled in his face, unable to focus on anything but the rage. I thought my mate dying was the worst pain I had felt but this was worse. I was the strongest alpha in our world but it did nothing to protect her when she needed me the most.

"Dad?" I heard Aspen behind me.

"What the fuck is he doing here?" Channing growled out. I released him, taking a few steps back needing air. How was I going to explain any of this to the boys?

"Blake, where is mom?" I turned to look at him. My heart twisted painfully knowing I couldn't protect his mother.

"Son, you need to come home with me," before I punched him in the face, again. The force threw him back into the SUV.

"Leave before I kill you," I growled in his face, my fists around the collar of his shirt.

"He's my son," he groaned and Gunner let out a murderous growl, followed by deadly silence.

"He's my son. And as soon as I have Ryley back and she has my mark on her neck, they both will have my last name. Now, get the fuck out of my pack," I threw him against the vehicle one more time before letting him go. I turned around and walked towards my boys. Both looked at me with concern.

"He's my blood, Blake. You can't keep him from me. His mother isn't coming back." He called out. I whipped around, my nostrils flared as I fought against Gunner shifting and ripping this alpha apart. I could feel my skin ripple with the need to shift.

"Blake," Luca was quickly in front of me pulling my focus.

"We will get the lawyers to deal with the issue with Channing but right now they need you," Luca said.

"Make sure he fucken leaves," I ordered before turning around again. I grabbed both boys before dragging them into the safety of the pack house and away from Channing's sperm donor.

I didn't stop until I was in my office, the boys following me. I pulled out my phone to text my lawyers. I needed to get a temporary order of custody before Dorian could order one. I knew he wasn't listed on Channing's birth certificate.

"Dad, where's Ryley?" Aspen pleaded. I looked up from my phone. I could see they were both concerned and confused. There wasn't any way I could sugarcoat this. They needed to know the truth.

"The council took her. But I swear I will get back and as soon as I have her, I will mark her.

'How the fuck did the council find out?' Channing growled, his body trembling. I walked towards him, gripping his shoulder

"I will find out but right now I need to protect you. I need to get an order of custody and then I need to head to the council building to get your mother. There is nothing I won't do to get your mother back, I promise you. I promise you both. I will do everything, including wiping the entire council out."
