

Chapter 127

Leon immediately called his grandfather and asked him if Emily had come home.

Kevin was a little surprised to receive Leon's call. However, he soon understood what was going on.

On the phone, Kevin asked Leon, "You get some more people to keep an eye on her. She's a girl, after all, so don't make it too hard for her."

"Are you doing this for George?"

"George is your brother. He didn't do anything wrong."

Leon didn't say anything and just hung up the phone.

Kevin knew what Leon had in mind.

Forget it, since he had already planned to leave this matter to Leon, he should stay out of it.

George was still a child after all. His mother was ambitious, and his cousin was not a good one. They tried to take the Hunters for themselves. Not to mention Leon would not allow it, he could not allow it!

Thinking about it, Kevin especially wanted Leon to take full charge of this matter.

He was very relieved. After all, Leon was the child he brought up. Although he was ruthless, he would not do anything harmful to others.

However, Audrey was not a well-intentioned person. He was most worried about George.

If George was sensible, he could distinguish between good and evil.

But Audrey was his mother after all.

Kevin shook his head, turned around, and walked upstairs.

The villa was not only quiet but also lonely at this time.

A University.

Ten o'clock in the morning.

Alyssa sat in the library reading a book, thinking about that figure she saw in the morning from time to time.

She felt that she was right. That person should be Emily.

At that moment, Ella walked to her. She stood in front of Alyssa for a few seconds and realized that Alyssa didn't even notice her.

Ella called out softly, "Alyssa?"

Only when she heard that someone called her name, Alyssa came back to her senses.

"Ella, when did you get here? I didn't even notice you were here."

"I've been here for a minute. You've been staring. What are you thinking about?" Ella smiled at Alyssa, "Are you thinking about your studies?"

Alyssa shook her head, "I don't like studying as much as you think I do. I just thought of something trivial."

"Do you need my help?"

"No."

Ella looked at Alyssa and smiled.

"What are you smiling at?"

"I feel like you're different than before after this winter break. It seems like you gained something in Hassan's company. Last time when I had my birthday, I wanted to ask Hassan about your situation in his company. But he left before I had a chance to talk to him. What do you think of Citic? Is it really strict?"

"Not only are they strict, but we are also very busy. Your cousin looks like a good-looking guy, but he's really a vampire. He pays me the least amount of money a month and makes me do the most work."

"Really? Hassan said that interns don't need to work overtime. I thought you didn't have to work overtime!"

"It's true that interns don't need to work overtime. But if you really don't, you won't need to work the next day. Everyone else works overtime, and if you don't, you won't be able to keep up with them."

When it came to Citic, Alyssa naturally thought of Hassan.

Hassan was a black-hearted capitalist.

Ella laughed at Alyssa's words, "Hassan would be very happy if he knew you said that about him. He is very strange and likes to be called a black-hearted capitalist!"

Alyssa also laughed at Ella's words.

This was the Hassan she knew.

"By the way, are you tired of working at Lloyd Group all this vacation?"

"No, my dad and my brother won't give me any hard work. However, I have learned a lot. It's still useful to follow the meetings at the top."

Ella felt that what she learned in school was abstract. The knowledge seemed useful in the business world, but in reality, it was not useful at all.

She still needed some practice.

Alyssa told Ella about the cases she took on at Citic.

Ella also talked about the cases she encountered at Lloyd Group.

"I can't believe that Hassan abandoned your proposal!"

"That's not Mr. Wood's problem. I didn't do a good enough job. If I could have done that project as well as Mr. Wood did, then my proposal wouldn't have been abandoned. So it's still my problem."

"But you're already great." Ella looked at Alyssa, who had grown so fast, with envy on her face, "My family didn't even let me do any projects independently. I still feel a bit regretful when I think about it now. You've handled so many cases."

Alyssa smiled. Her grandfather and father certainly loved her as much as the elders at the Lloyds. When Ella wanted to go to the Lloyd Group to gain work experience, her family arranged it for her. Although they didn't want her to be too tired, they would give her some small projects.

But her grandfather and father simply wouldn't let her get involved in the Grahams' business.

In the past, when she was still with Ryan, Ryan would certainly instigate her relationship with the Grahams.

She would also naturally feel that her grandfather and father did not trust her abilities.

But in reality, they just didn't want her to get too tired.

The Grahams only had one daughter.

In the end, everything of the Grahams would be hers alone.

She cherished her life more now.

She could be with Leon.

Her grandfather and parents were also by her side.

Seeing Alyssa dazed, Ella gently pulled her hand, "Alyssa, what's wrong with you? Are you okay?"

Alyssa shook her head, "I'm fine. It just occurred to me that I haven't been home for a long time. I don't have class this afternoon, so I won't come over. I'm going to go home."

"Okay, I'll go study then."

"Okay."

At noon, Alyssa said goodbye to Ella.

Alyssa ordered lunch and called Leon to ask him to wait for her.

Leon was looking at the restructuring of the HR department when he received Alyssa's call.

Hunter Group had undergone a top-level restructuring and had made new personnel changes.

The previous adjustments did not satisfy him. After a few changes, he was able to finalize some of the personnel. But the position of Vice President of Hunter Group was still empty.

Leon hadn't asked Grandpa yet. He wanted to have a chat with Alyssa first.

Alyssa soon arrived at Hunter Group and brought the meal she had bought to Leon. She opened the lunch box and helped him set up all the food.

"What are you looking at me for? Hurry up and eat." Alyssa handed Leon his chopsticks, and then she sat down and opened the lunch box. Her lunch box had three levels, and the meal inside was much richer than Leon's. There were all kinds of meat, eggs, seafood, and vegetables, and there was a layer of tempting fruit at the top.

"Why is your meal so rich?" Leon glanced at her lunchbox. Her lunch looked appetizing.

"Are you going to compare yourself to a pregnant woman?"
