Chapter 1321 Do Not Dodge If You Dare

Andy's usual suave and gentle demeanor was gone and in its place was a barbarian waiting to attack.

He narrowed his eyes and said unhurriedly, "I will accomplish the things my brother wasn't capable of doing, and I will carry out my grandpa's unfulfilled wishes. The first step would be to defeat you."

It turned out that Andy pretended to be reserved usually, but he was actually a competitive and aggressive individual.

He knew that the Jordan family was going to choose a son to become the family's ambassador soon. Even Old Master Jordan had already decided to lead the East faction in his attack to overthrow Nathan as General of the North.

He wanted the Jordan family's new ambassador to take over as general.

Andy knew that his grandfather's prime candidate was his brother Lucius.

But ever since Lucius was defeated by Nathan, his reputation had declined.

So Andy knew his opportunity had finally come.

If he were able to defeat Nathan and redeem his family's honor, he would rightfully become the Jordan family's new ambassador.

He might even be able to replace Nathan as General of the North.

In the past, Nathan used to treat the Jordan family with respect.

However, the Jordans kept causing troubles and was unreasonable in their dealings lately, which enraged Nathan.

Hence, he decided to teach Andy a harsh lesson.

He said frostily, "If you want to beat me, join the army and kill the enemies near the border to gain merit first. What makes you think that being able to kill me single-handedly means that you have truly defeated me?"

"Besides, you're just an arrogant nobleman who had two to three days of training. Do you really think you can compare to veterans who have seen pools of blood and mountains of corpses? What a joke!" he said condescendingly.

Nathan's snide remarks made Andy flush with anger.

He yelled furiously, "We shall find out after a battle!"

Right after that, he moved faster than the speed of light and darted towards Nathan.

Andy's combat style resembled that of the military since he came from a military family. His movements were direct yet brutal, and they didn't involve any fancy techniques.

He relied purely on speed and strength to crush his opponent in minimal moves.

Andy launched a flurry of offensive attacks against Nathan as soon as he's within range.

Everyone at the scene was stunned.

The Jordan family's subordinates watched in anxiety and excitement as the fight broke out before their eyes.

On the other hand, Penny and her family were worried and afraid that Nathan would get injured by Andy.

Nevertheless, countering Andy's relentless attacks was a breeze for Nathan.

He remained calm and undisturbed, as if he were saying, Who cares what you do to me? I will be optimistic and handle every attack you throw at me confidently.

Andy unleashed dozens of moves in one breath, but he didn't even manage to strike the surface of Nathan's shirt.

The more he attacked, the more fearful he became. Seeing Nathan standing unperturbed before him, he couldn't fathom what was going through Nathan's mind, and he started losing confidence in himself.

When Andy missed his last attack, Nathan said flatly, "Is that all you got?"

He's challenging me?

Andy's face reddened as he bit the bullet and yelled, "Don't dodge this one if you dare!"

Nathan replied, "Alright!"

He then stepped forward and threw a punch.

Bam! His punch was seemingly casual, but it was actually extremely powerful in strength.

Andy's expression changed drastically as Nathan's fist flew towards him.

Letting out a moan, he garnered all his energy and threw Nathan a counterpunch to defend himself.

Bang! The two men's fists collided.

Andy let out a muffled grunt. The back of his hand had swelled to the size of a hot cross bun, indicating that the bones of his palm were likely fractured. His entire right arm turned limp like a strand of overcooked spaghetti, and he could no longer lift his arm up.

After Nathan crippled Andy's right arm, he prepared to crush Andy's two legs with a powerful kick to teach him a harsh lesson.

But right at that very moment, a loud voice suddenly said from outside, "Nathan, wait!"

Nathan stopped as soon as he heard the voice.

Drenched in cold sweat, Andy felt as though his soul had been bought back from the grim reaper.

The Jordan family's subordinates also heaved a huge sigh of relief.

They wouldn't know what to tell Old Master Jordan if Andy had been crippled or even killed by Nathan.

All of them looked towards the entrance of the restaurant.

What they saw was a tall, skinny young man walking into the restaurant with several bodyguards.

The young man had fair and flawless skin and exuded an aura of superiority that came naturally, it was the kind of aura that could not be imitated or cultivated.

Some of his bodyguards carried black suitcases, while others walked in like they were trained gunmen.

Anyone could easily tell that these men were the best security detail team from the military.

The young man was none other than Wyatt Windsor, the son of President Hansel Windsor whose term of office was expiring soon.

Wyatt was President Windsor's son with his late wife. After the death of his first wife, he remarried Camilla Quinn.

Hansel and Camilla did not have any children since they tied the knot.

Therefore, Wyatt was Hansel's only child.

Nathan was surprised to see Wyatt as he didn't expect the latter to show up over here.

He was able to become the General of the North for several reasons. The first was because he had made countless contributions to the North.

Another important reason was because both the President and the First Lady were exceptionally kind to him.

If he had not gained the President and First Lady's recognition, he wouldn't have been able to become a general at such a young age.

Naturally, Nathan have a great sense of respect and gratitude for Hansel and Camilla.

Therefore, he was also very courteous when he saw Wyatt. In a surprised tone, he asked, "What are you doing here, Wyatt?"

Wyatt smiled and answered, "Haha, I made a trip here from Brimmopolis specially."

Nathan was even more surprised when he heard this.

Wyatt continued to explain while smiling, "I heard about the little conflict between you and the Jordans. Given that my family has good relations with both your family and the Jordan family, I do not wish to see such conflict between the two of you, so I specially made a trip here to play peacemaker. I hope that for my sake, you two can take a step back and reconcile. How does that sound?"

Nathan said calmly, "I can turn a cold shoulder to anyone else, but you are the one that I won't. I can promise to end things right here, though I'm not sure if the Jordans will cooperate."

Wyatt then turned to look at Andy.

Clutching his injured right arm, Andy said to Wyatt respectfully, "Your word matters the most. Regardless of how big the dispute is, my family will let it go."

Wyatt said with a happy smile on his face, "Very good. It's great to hear that both of you are able to let bygones be bygones. Tonight, I will be hosting a banquet at the Channing International Hotel, and both of you will get first dibs on liquor. Many socialites of the South will be present, so let us three sit down and have a good feast."

Nathan suddenly recalled that Wyatt had a reputation for being a womanizer, and he would often invite socialites to accompany him during banquets.

Nathan absolutely despised such gatherings.

So he declined Wyatt's offer, saying, "I'm so sorry I have to turn you down. My family has experienced trauma today, so I would like to spend time with them at home. You go on ahead and enjoy yourself tonight."

Wyatt responded, "Indeed, Nathan. You rarely have time to spend with your family usually, so you should take the chance to accompany them tonight."

Nathan chatted with Wyatt for a short while, then excused himself and said goodbye.

He left the restaurant with his family and drove home.

gloomy.

Andy, who was standing beside Wyatt at this moment, said cautiously. "Wyatt, Nathan only said all those things out of respect for your parents. He doesn't actually think much of you. Look at how he refused your invitation to tonight's banquet. How impudent!"

Wyatt responded coldly, "He is nothing but a pet dog raised by my father and stepmother. I have never taken him seriously before."

Andy laughed and said, "Indeed. How could Nathan ever compare to you? It is said that the President actually wanted to make you General of the North that year, but the First Lady sang praises about Nathan and convinced the President to make him general instead. So, just like that, Nathan was promoted to his current position as General of the North."

Wyatt glanced at Andy, then said placidly, "Those are just rumors, and they're simply not true. Nathan was able to become general because of his contributions to the North. This cannot be denied.”

Andy then replied with a smile, “Yes, yes. Nevertheless, I believe that if you were chosen as General of the North instead, your leadership skills would not be inferior to Nathan’s.”

This time, Wyatt did not refute Andy’s claims.

His face darkened, and there was a hint of resentment in his eyes.

Andy got his right arm treated at the hospital, then he turned up at Wyatt's banquet that night.

An exceptionally stunning beauty named Fion Xavier attended the banquet with him.

Fion was from a prestigious family, and she was a top student who had studied overseas. Besides having extremely good looks, she also carried herself with utmost poise and decorum.

Her appearance overshadowed the other socialites at the banquet.

Even the usually snobbish Wyatt was star-struck when he saw Fion.

Holding a glass of champagne in his hand, Wyatt checked out Fion who was wearing a white off-shoulder evening gown. Clearly, she stood out among the other socialites. He asked Andy with a smile on his face, "Who is this gorgeous lady?"

Andy grinned and answered, "Wyatt, this is Fion Xavier, and she comes from a prominent scholarly family.”

Then, he turned to Fion and said, “Ms. Xavier, this is Wyatt Windsor, the true prince of our nation!”

Wyatt’s father was the president of the nation, so one could say that his nickname ‘The Prince’ was well-deserved.

Wyatt stretched out his arms towards Fion and said with a smile, “It’s a pleasure to meet you, Ms. Xavier!”

Fion was rather stunned to hear that Wyatt was the Prince, but she did not expose any intentions to butter up to him. She simply replied, “Pleased to meet you too, Wyatt!”

Wyatt withdrew his arms after that.

He was a little taken aback by Fion’s apathetic response as the socialites he met in the past had all tried to suck up to him.

However, this was the first time he had come across such a reserved lady like Fion.

Fion's character left an indelible impression on him.

He looked at Fion from head to toe, causing her to look away and lower her head in embarrassment.

Wyatt thought to himself pleasingly, Not only is this lady an unrivalled beauty, but she is also from a scholarly family. Pure and untainted, she naturally garners respect and admiration. What a rare catch.

While he was busy checking her out, Andy stared at him.

Little did he know that Andy had specifically brought Fion to the banquet to dig information on him.

Although Fion was no doubt a stunning beauty from a scholarly family, she was by no means pure and innocent. Instead, she was shrewd and cunning.

She had enrolled in finishing school for many years to refine her skills and etiquette as an upper-class socialite.

Besides etiquette, she had also learnt music, chess, and various other art forms. On top of that, she had attended a class on the psychology of men, so she knew how to entice men with her words and actions.

It could be said that her skills were better than that of ancient concubines. She understood men well, and she knew how to please them in the bedroom better than ancient concubines.

When Andy saw how interested Wyatt was in Fion, he knew that his plan was working.

He deliberately commented, "Haha, Wyatt and Ms. Xavier, you two continue chatting. I will go and say hi to my other friends."

Half an hour after he left, Andy went back to check on Wyatt and Fion. He saw that they were standing side by side, looking into the starry sky with champagne glasses in their hands. They talked and laughed as though they were a couple.

Before they knew it, it was almost midnight.

Fion exclaimed, "Oh my, it's getting late. I should be heading back."

Wyatt enjoyed Fion's company very much. The two of them shared many common interests, and time seemed to fly by quickly as they chatted.

He felt like he had found his soulmate in Fion.

When he heard Fion saying she wanted to leave, he said reluctantly, "Ah, It is late. Why don't we look for a place to have supper, then I'll drive you home?"

Fion smiled and answered, "It's alright. I drove here myself."

Before Wyatt could respond, she added, "Hmm, there will be a charity auction tomorrow to raise funds for poor and blind children across the country. If you are interested, you can join me."

Chapter 1324 Do Not Bother With Such People

Meanwhile, in Riverside Garden, Channing, Nathan had just put his daughter to sleep and was ready to call it a night with Penny.

Right before going to bed, Penny suddenly remembered something and said to Nathan, "Hubby, a charity auction will be jointly hosted by the Red Cross Society and Cartier Jewelry Company tomorrow. They specially sent an invitation card to Cross Group, inviting us to attend. Will you be free to go with me?"

Nathan answered with a slight smile, "Sure. Businessmen are expected to be socially responsible, so we should give back some of our earnings to the society. Since it's a charity event, we should not miss it."

Penny responded, "Okay then, we'll go together tomorrow."

The next day, after night fell and the city lights lit up, Nathan and Penny drove to Victoria Hotel with Colin and Frida.

The charity auction that was hosted by the Red Cross Society and Cartier Jewelry Company was held in Victoria Hotel.

Cartier Jewelry Company was going to put up a range of classic jewelry pieces for auction. All proceeds would be donated to blind children in the impoverished regions of the nation so their eyesight could be treated.

When Nathan and the others arrived at the hotel, they noticed that the outdoor parking lot by the entrance was filled with luxury cars.

It seemed that many members of the upper echelon had turned up for the charity event.

Nathan, Penny, Colin, and Frida walked into the hotel and headed for the auction venue.

VIP guests were assigned private rooms, while ordinary guests had to squeezed into the main auction room.

room since they were VIP guests.

They attended the auction with the intention of donating to underprivileged children, and they had no desire to show off their deeds. Hence, they were happy that the organizers had arranged a private room for them.

Escorted by an usher, Nathan and his group walked towards Room 009.

Suddenly, a beautiful woman can be seen heading towards their direction in the corridor. It was Fion Xavier.

Penny's expression changed when she saw Fion.

It turned out that Penny and Fion knew each other. They had been classmates in junior high and senior high.

In elementary school, Fion had been the best student in her class, and she was also the prettiest girl in school. So it was no surprise that her teachers and schoolmates adored her.

No matter where she went, she was treated like a princess.

However, things started to change when she entered junior high.

This was because Penny Smith became her classmate.

Whether it was academic grades or physical appearance, Penny constantly surpassed Fion.

In addition, Penny had a gentler demeanor compared to Fion, so she was more popular among her teachers and classmates.

Because of this, Fion felt a great deal of resentment towards Penny, and she would try to topple Penny whenever she could.

This rivalry only ended when the both of them were admitted into different universities.

Looking at Penny that very moment, Fion was well aware of her shotgun marriage.

She also knew that Penny had mysteriously become the president of Cross Group recently.

"Who knew, you actually managed to transform your life and become the president of Cross Group. How did a little piece of trash like you achieve such success? Could it be that you became someone's mistress to climb the social ladder?" she added scornfully.

Nathan's face darkened when he heard this, and he felt the urge to punch the woman in the face.

However, Penny held him back, she bit her lip and said, "Hubby, just let it be! Let's not bother with people like this."

Nathan glanced at Fion coldly and warned

With a ghastly expression on her face, Fion went back to Room 001.

At that time, Wyatt was busy chatting with Andy and a few other friends while his bodyguards stood in the corner of the private room.

When he saw Fion's disturbed expression, he asked, "What's wrong, Ms. Xavier? Didn't you just go to the ladies' room to touch up your makeup?"

Fion forced out a laugh and answered, "I'm fine!"

Seeing her forced laughter, Wyatt responded calmly, "The look on your face doesn't say you're fine though. You can tell me."

She then said softly, "It's not a big deal. I just bumped into a former classmate whom I have a bad history with. Her husband said some nasty things to me and humiliated me."

“Andy, bring your men along and look for the couple who bullied Ms. Xavier. They are to kneel down before Ms. Xavier and apologize to her,” he instructed.

Andy answered, “Of course!”

However, Fion interjected, “Hold on! Wyatt, this is just a small matter. Please don’t make such a big deal out of it, or I will feel uneasy.”

Wyatt looked at Fion and said sympathetically, “You’re too kind, Ms. Xavier. Alright, since it is your wish, I won’t go after that couple for the time being.”

A hint of conceit flashed across Fion’s eyes.

Soon, the charity auction began.

Red Cross Society to help blind children.

Many big shots at the auction started making their bids.

For them, it was like hitting two birds with one stone. By winning the bids, not only they could give the beautiful pieces of jewelry to their female partners to please them, but they could also gain reputation as philanthropists. So, these big shots bid as much as they could.

Very soon, the organizers brought out the most eye-catching jewelry of the night. Known as 'Eternal Love', it was a pair of diamond rings which were the final pieces of jewelry designed by the world's top designer Lady Caitlin before she retired.

Back in Room 009, Penny caught a glimpse of the diamond rings and whispered excitedly, "How beautiful!"

Nathan looked at her and said with a smile, "Honey, since you like it, I will buy it for you."

Seeing that the starting bid was twenty million, Penny shook her head and said, “The starting bid is twenty million. It’s too expensive.”

Nathan smiled and responded, “It’s not expensive if you like it!”

Although Penny now had a sizeable net worth, she was still unwilling to spend such a great amount.

Nevertheless, Nathan told her, “I still owe you a grand wedding, honey. If I buy this pair of diamond rings, we can use them as our wedding rings during our ceremony later!”

It turned out that Nathan had promised to hold a grand affair to celebrate their wedding.

However, it was still less than a year since the death of his father.

In the past, the usual mourning period after the death of a loved one was three years. But in modern times, the mourning period was one year.

Since it was considered unlucky to get married during this period, Nathan decided to hold a grand wedding with Penny after his mourning period ended.

When Penny heard that Nathan wanted to use the pair of diamond rings as their wedding rings, she blushed and didn't refuse any further.

Shortly after, the 'Eternal Love' rings were officially put up for auction.

Nathan placed his bid for twenty million through the device in the private room.

In the main auction hall, many big shots followed suit, and the bid price was quickly raised to thirty million.

The market price of the diamond rings was estimated to be around thirty million. If the price exceeded thirty million, no one else would bid further.

So, Nathan placed his bid for thirty-five million.

The crowd in the main auction hall gasped softly, and they started guessing among themselves who the bidder in Room 009 was.

Fifty million!

Everyone present at the auction was dumbstruck.

Seeing that someone else had directly placed a bid that was fifteen million higher than his bid, Nathan frowned slightly.

Penny advised him, "Hubby, It's fine. The price is simply too high."

However, the person in Room 009 bid eighty million instead, which was a huge jump over what he had offered.

Whoever's in Room 009 is challenging me, I'm sure of it!

Wyatt was infuriated.

The gentle smile on his face had turned into a frown. Turning towards Andy and the rest, he complained, "Who's in Room 009? Eighty million is such an audacious bid. Are they trying to challenge me?"

They screamed so excitedly that it shook the very foundation of the hotel.

Even the staff of the organizing committee rushed to room 009 anxiously to verify if Nathan's bid was serious.

If it were frivolous, he would be fined.

Nathan replied with a smile, "Of course I'm serious. But, I want the donations to be allocated to the blind children's project. I want to ensure that all of the money will be used to cure their blindness."

The leadership of the Red Cross Society guaranteed on the spot that all the money would be used to treat blind children.

They also promised that during Nathan’s wedding, they would arrange for all the children who regained their sight to attend and bear witness to the ceremony.

whom Nathan had a bidding war with.

She couldn't help but look at Nathan and ask softly, "Hubby, do you know each other?"

Nathan smiled wryly, "Yes we do. This is Mr. Wyatt. I owe his parents a debt of gratitude."

Wyatt was also feeling awkward. Just when he was about to say something, Fion and Andy arrived.

Walking to stand beside Wyatt, Fion glared at Penny. "B*, it's you again! It was bad enough that you and your husband bullied me, and now you're trying to challenge Wyatt? Are you looking for trouble?"

Slap!

The moment Fion finished her sentence, Nathan slapped her.

The slap caused the corner of her lips to bleed and her carefully set hairdo to turned into a bird-nest like mess.

Pressing her hands to her cheek, she scowled, “You dare hit me?”

Nathan replied coldly, “I’ve warned you before!”

“Besides, you’re asking for it by running your mouth.”

With her hand holding her cheek, Fion trembled in anger but had nothing to say.

When Wyatt heard Fion call Penny a b*, he was caught by surprise. To him, Fion was an innocent and scholarly beauty.

However, after he saw Nathan slap her, he focused his attention back on Nathan.

As anger swelled within him, he glared at Nathan and spat, “Nathan, even if you want to beat a dog, you should always check who the owner is beforehand.”

“Ms. Xavier is a friend of mine. By hitting her, aren’t you disrespecting me?”

Fion raised her chin and glared angrily at Nathan and Penny.

Nathan calmly replied to Wyatt, “As a friend, my advice to you is that she’s bad company and doesn’t deserve you.”

“Stay away from her, for she will only bring you trouble.”

Irritation blossomed within Wyatt when he heard what Nathan said because he hated it when the latter lectured him.

He sneered, “Haha, if you said that Ms. Xavier isn’t any good, does that mean your wife is by default a good person?”

Frowning, Nathan answered slowly, “I have given you my advice as a friend. If you choose not to listen, there’s nothing I can do.”

Then, Nathan turned his attention towards Andy and Fion. He warned, “If you feel like you have scores to settle with me, just come for me directly. Don’t get Mr. Windsor involved. Or else, I promise that When Andy and Fion heard Nathan's warning, their faces fell and fear rippled through them.

They thought they could manipulate Wyatt to deal with Nathan and Penny, but now, they realized that they were way over their heads.

If they were exposed, they and their families would be annihilated.

However, there was no turning back now. All they could do was to follow through with their act.

Fion retorted, "I don't know what you're talking about."

Andy snorted, "Don't try and sow discord in our relationship with Wyatt. Wyatt himself can differentiate who his real friends are and who are the ones that are disrespecting him."

Turning towards Wyatt, Nathan noticed that the former was staring daggers at him.

That was when Nathan realized that the animosity Wyatt felt for him must have been accumulating for a long time.

It was impossible for Wyatt to view him with such hostility over a mere auction. Hence, Nathan was certain that Wyatt must have despised him long before this.

At that moment, Nathan couldn't help but recall an old rumor.

The President had chosen to groom Nathan over Wyatt. In the end, Nathan became the General of the North while Wyatt was left out in the cold.

Is that rumor true?

Is that the reason why Wyatt hates me?

Nathan didn't want to put too much thought on the matter because he knew he would never be able to pay the debt of gratitude that he owed the President and Aunt Camilla either way.

Even if Wyatt chose to be hostile to him, he would simply ignore the animosity.

Hence, he said to Wyatt, “Wyatt, you’re a smart man. I’m sure if you think calmly about it, you will know who your friends are and who is just trying to manipulate you. Anyway, I’m taking my leave.”

With that, Nathan and Penny left together.

Wyatt could only watch their retreating figures with an ugly expression etched on his face.

Meanwhile, Andy remarked, “Wyatt, this guy only respects your parents. It’s obvious that he doesn’t take you seriously. In his eyes you are but a rich spoilt kid!”

Fion added, “Wyatt, who is he? How dare he talk to you like that?”

Wyatt replied lividly, “He is one of the dogs that my father has groomed.”

“Sooner or later, I’ll show him.”

Andy and Fion persistently tried to inflame the animosity between Wyatt and Nathan. However, they didn't dare to overdo it for fear of being found out. They would be finished if that happened.

At that moment, Andy suggested, "Come, let's go and have a drink to forget this unhappy incident."

Fion agreed, "That's right, let's have a drink together, Wyatt."

All this time, Wyatt was jealous of Nathan. Although they were of similar age, Nathan was already one of the top military commanders in the army. Furthermore, he was jealous of how much attention his parents showered on Nathan.

Nevertheless, he knew that he should avoid any conflict with Nathan because his parents would definitely side with Nathan and blame him for not knowing any better.

Therefore, he had no other choice than to go drinking with Andy and Fion in his glum mood.

It was nighttime when Frida couldn't help but call the First Lady discreetly to inform her about the misunderstanding between Nathan and Wyatt at the auction today, including the animosity that had resulted.

Camilla frowned when she heard that her son and Nathan were not on good terms.

After considering her options, she finally decided to call Wyatt and asked, "I heard you and Nathan had an altercation?"

Wyatt, who had drunk a lot became livid upon his mother's query. He scowled, "Who told you about it? It must be Nathan who complained, that a**!"

Camilla replied, "It wasn't Nathan who told me."

Wyatt sneered, "Who then?"

Not wanting to mention Frida for fear of Wyatt taking revenge, all she said was, "That's none of your business!"

"Wyatt, Nathan is the General of the North and the God of War. He is both a dependable and impartial man.”

“Besides, he respects both your father and me too much to get into a petty fight with you for no reason...”

Before Camilla could finish her sentence, Wyatt interrupted angrily, “Are you saying that Nathan can do nothing wrong and everything is my fault?”

Camilla was stunned as Wyatt had never talked back to her like that.

She replied, “That’s not what I meant. Wyatt, I’m your mother, you have to listen to me...”

Wyatt retorted, “You’re not my mother, my mother died when I was little.”

“And both of you treat Nathan better than me!”

“How dare that coward call and complain about me behind my back. It’s ridiculous. I’ll definitely get back at him for this!”

Chapter 1329 Nathan Is Done For

When Andy and Fion saw how enraged Wyatt was after his call, they approached him and asked out of concern, “Wyatt, what happened? Why are you so angry?”

By then, Wyatt was already feeling tipsy. As the alcohol got into his head, he bellowed, “That b dared to complain to my mom behind my back. I must teach him a lesson.”

Andy couldn’t help but ask, “But Wyatt, Nathan is the General of the North, it’s not going to be easy to do that!”

Fion added, “That’s right, just let it go. Or else, it will make things awkward between your family and Nathan.”

Both their words were simply adding fuel to the fire.

With his eyes bloodshot from anger, Wyatt sneered, “Everyone is afraid of him because he is some shitty God of War, but I’m not. To me, he is nothing more than a dog that my dad has groomed himself.”

“Someone, get Fang to see me!”

The bodyguards in black suits behind Wyatt exchanged glances before replying in unison, “Yes, sir!”

However, everyone else around looked puzzled as they didn’t know who Fang was.

Fang was the strongest captain among the nation’s Draconians.

He was so powerful that it bordered on being terrifying. However, due to the covert nature of the Draconians, Fang’s exploits were seldom publicized.

Although Fang was overwhelmingly strong, he was an unruly character.

He was so unruly in fact, that the leaders saw him as a sword that was extremely sharp but difficult to control. Under the wrong circumstances, he might even do more harm than good.

Therefore, when Fang made a horrible mistake three years ago, they had no choice but to dismiss him.

As Fang was indebted to the Windsors, he stayed in their service after being dismissed.

This time, Wyatt was so furious to the extent that he had chosen to unleash Fang who was also known as the God of Death upon Nathan.

Meanwhile, Andy could hardly suppressed his excitement. Fang was the most terrifying captain in the Draconians history and was known as the God of Death, while Nathan was the General of the North and he's known as the God of War.

It would be an epic battle between both of them. As of now, it was hard to predict who would win!

Andy thought to himself gleefully, Nathan oh Nathan, after bullying the Jordan family, it's now time for you to pay for your sins!

He felt that Wyatt would be able to escape punishment due to his special status.

Even if he harmed Nathan, the leaders would be in a bind on how to punish him. It would most likely end with just a slap on the wrist.

This time, Nathan's time was up.

At night, the people in the streets were far and few between.

Nathan, together with Frida, Kylie, Colin, and the Elite Eight were enjoying grilled skewers at a roadside stall.

As it turned out, It was Frida's birthday today.

When Nathan got to know about it, he wanted to help her celebrate.

However, she declined adamantly despite being pleasantly surprised. In the end, she suggested that they had grilled skewers by a roadside stall to celebrate instead.

Hence, that was how Nathan and the rest ended up eating grilled skewers and drinking beer.

Raising his beer mug high in the air, he congratulated Frida with a smile, "Come, let's all make a toast to Frida and wish her a very happy birthday!"

With her face flushed red, Frida raised her beer mug excitedly and repeated, "Thank you, thank you, Mr. Cross."

Meanwhile, Kylie took a curious look at Frida and thought to herself, why is Nathan treating Frida, who's but a private bodyguard so well and why did she seem to be in such high spirits?

Observing Frida's gaze, Kylie couldn't help but feel a sense of hostility surged within her. Has this girl fallen in love with Nathan?

Just when they were clashing beer mugs and wishing Frida a happy birthday, a couple of black Audis suddenly appeared along the street.

The Audis approached in an intimidating manner and stopped right by the stall they were at. All the other patrons turned to look in surprise.

Even Nathan couldn't help but look up.

What was even more puzzling was that no one got down from the Audis.

Only the front-most Audi A8 lowered its back window. In the next moment, a handsome face emerged and it none other than Wyatt.

Nathan frowned slightly when he saw Wyatt, while Colin, Frida, and the others reacted similarly.

Colin whispered to Nathan, "Sir, it's Wyatt. Do we need to go and greet him?"

Nathan replied, "It doesn't seem like he's here to talk about the old times."

Colin and the rest were dumbfounded upon hearing that.

Just when they were about to ask Nathan to clarify his statement, a tall figure suddenly emerged underneath the dim street lamp.

The figure belonged to a man who was dressed in black and had on an icy cold expression.

He sported a military-like crew cut and had three parallel scars on his forehead. Just by standing there, he emitted an intimidating vibe to everyone around him.

Meanwhile, Colin and the Elite Eight realized that the man came with ill intentions and discreetly got themselves prepared for a fight.

When Frida saw the man, she couldn't help but exclaimed, "That's the strongest Captain in the history of the Draconians, Fang."

Fang!

Not only were Colin and the Elite Eight shocked, but even Nathan also himself was astounded.

They were all aware of the Draconians, who were the nation's most secretive and deadly special operations team.

Anyone selected to join them was extremely formidable, while whoever was appointed captain would have to be exceptional.

Therefore, as Fang was known to be the Draconians' strongest captain in history, his skills were definitely off the charts.

Shooting a glance at Fang, Nathan furrowed his eyebrows as he turned his attention to Wyatt who was sitting in the Audi.

He didn't expect their altercation to escalate due to the sensitive nature of their statuses.

However, he realized he had underestimated the hatred Wyatt felt for him, given that Wyatt sent Fang to deal with him.

As Nathan stared at Wyatt sitting in his car, Wyatt was also glaring at him while sipping beer from the can in his hand.

At the same time, Fang headed towards Nathan and his men.

His movements appeared slow but were lightning quick in reality.

In a blink of an eye, he appeared in front of them.

Fang's long and narrow eyes were fixed on

Nathan, as if everyone else didn't matter to him.

He coldly remarked, "You must be Nathan!"

Colin shot back, "Such insolence! Who are you to call Mr. Cross by his name."

Ignoring Colin, Fang maintained his gaze on Nathan and added, "I heard you were awarded the title of God of War. I'm unconvinced and am here to challenge you."

Nathan replied indifferently, "The God of War is but a hollow title, you can take it if you want."

"Besides, my achievements comes from defeating the nations enemies. If you want to compete with me, you should contribute more to the country instead of challenging me to a fight."

Fang scoffed, "Are you declining my challenge because you're afraid of me?"

Colin scowled, "What nonsense! When our General was annihilating the eighteen allied nations and defending our northern borders from intruders, where were you then?"

"Mr. Cross is the strongest among all three armies, why would he be afraid of you?"

Meanwhile, the Elite Eight were also shooting daggers at Fang.

Frida, on the other hand had mixed feelings about the situation at hand while Kylie's eyes sparkled as she ogled at Nathan in admiration.

Fang then took out a sniper bullet from his pocket and chucked it on the table before staring coldly at Nathan. "When Mr. Windsor asked me to kill you, I initially planned to shoot you from afar with a sniper rifle."

"However, after giving it some thought, I found it to be meaningless because I wanted to prove that I'm stronger than you and I should be the undisputed God of War instead."

Glancing at the bullet on the table, Nathan calmly replied, "You were wise to not have sniped me, or you'd already be dead by now."

It was true.

After going through innumerable battles and massacres, Nathan had a keen sense of danger. He could even sense if someone were looking at his back, let alone if a gun were being aimed at him.

If Fang had aimed a rifle at Nathan, he was confident that he would be able to notice and evade in time. After that, Fang would be shot dead by Colin who was among the best marksman in the army.

In terms of marksmanship, Nathan had never seen anyone as sharp and accurate as Colin.

However, Fang scoffed in response as he thought Nathan was just bluffing.

He snorted, "Since you're unwilling to fight, you left me with no choice but to force
