

Chapter 15 MISSING SUZIE AND ANGRY BLAIR

FELIX'S POV

I tapped my feet as I got impatient by each passing second. I stood in front of the entrance to Suzie's class, waiting for her to come out. More than half the population of the class had already trooped out, but Suzie was no where in sight.

The moment the bell rang, indicating the school day was over, I rushed over here. I wanted to be the one that Suzie say first. I knew she now belonged to all four of us, but a part of me was possessive over her, and I wanted no one else, to have her.

I tilted my head, my eyes scanning the crowd of people, and still Suzie was no where to be found. A girl passed by me swiftly, but I grabbed her hand and pulled her back.

"Have you seen Suzie today?" I asked rather impatiently.

The girl blinked and shook her head as she stared at me, wide eyed. "N-No, she wasn't in the last class for the day."

My heart dropped. How was that possible. I let the girl go and she scurried away. I ran my hands through my hair as my eyes went wide. If Suzie was did not attend the class, then where could she possibly be?

"Well, look who got here before us," I heard Blair chuckled.

I looked up, and saw him, with Roy and Asher, all walking towards me.

"Seems like someone wanted to hog Suzie all to themselves," Roy sneered.

"Now is not the time, Suzie is missing."

They all looked at me like I had said the most ridiculous thing anyone could say.

"What? If this is some kind of joke, then you need to stop it Felix," Asher hissed.

I grabbed his shoulders and stared at him dead in the eyes.

"Do you actually think I would fucking joke about Suzie getting missing?"

Asher's face went pale when he finally realized the heaviness of my words.

"Oh shit," Roy muttered with wide eyes.

“What do you mean she’s missing? We all escorted her to her class, we saw her go in,” Blair said, his voice quivering slightly.

“I have no idea, but for now, let’s all search for her,” I said.

They all nodded and we dispersed. I walked into her class, which was now already empty and searched all around. I tried to convince myself that maybe she was just hiding from us, since she clearly has show how much she detests us.

After my search was futile, I decided to check other locations. I went to her locker, the gym, even the women’s toilet and still Suzie was nowhere to be find.

After searching for hours, I felt dread creep up within me. My body froze as I stood in the hallway, my mind filled with things like what would happen if we couldn’t find Suzie and where she could possibly be.

“Felix!”

I jerked back and turned around to see my brothers running to me.

“Any luck?”

They shook their head.

“Fuck.”

“If Suzie is not in the school’s premises then I think I know what happened to her,” Roy said.

I raised an eyebrow. “What?”

“Leah.”

The sound of her name leaving Roy’s mouth make my blood boil with anger. What had I not realized it sooner? I turned to Roy, my eyes ablaze.

“This is all your fucking fault Roy!”

Roy looked like he had been slapped in the face. “Are you fucking serious right now? You’re pointing fingers? In this situation?”

“And why wouldn’t I do that?” I roared, walking up to him and pointing a finger on his chest. “You should have handled your relationship with Leah very well, and now because of your carelessness our mate has been hurt!”

Roy’s face went pale and I could tell my words were sinking in. He lowered his head as he licked his lower lips.

"I had no idea that this would happen, I just--"

Roy sighed. "I was careless, you're right, I should have handled Leah more carefully. But I'm going to atone for that. Let's go find Leah right now."

I nodded and we all stormed down the hallway, until we spotted Leah in an empty class with her cronies, and each of them were vaping and giggling.

"All of you, get the fuck out, except for Leah," Asher growled.

The girls shuddered and scampered out of the classroom. Leah giggled and placed her vape down. She walked over to Roy and wrapped her hands around his neck.

"Roy dear, of what may I owe the pleasure?" She cooed, her hands grazing his cheeks.

Roy clicked his tongue and pushed her away. "Cut the bullshit, where the hell is Suzie and what did you do to her?"

Leah looked shocked, an expression I knew was only a facade.

"How could you accuse me so blatantly like that Roy, I'm hurt," She said with a pout to her lips.

Roy scoffed. "You think this is a joke. You know what else is a joke? The relationship we apparently have."

Leah went stiff as Roy went on a rampage.

"I knew felt anything towards you, I was only using you to get information about your wolf pack."

Leah scoffed and then roared with laughter. "You think I didn't know that Roy dear? I'm not fucking stupid. That's why I have not told you anything about my pack."

"You sure are stupid thinking you could do something to Suzie and get away with it. Now, tell us where she is," Roy retorted.

"Ha! This is what irks me so much!" Leah yelled. "How and why did you suddenly fall in love with poor old Suzie? Suddenly she is more important to you, than me."

Leah began to pace around, and it was clear that she was fuming.

"I am the beta of my pack! I could not just stand by and watch you use me like I was nothing, and suddenly switch to Suzie! I wanted my revenge," She paused and giggled. "So I did something."

"What did you fucking do! What did you fucking do to Suzie Leah!" Roy growled.

Leah folded her arms. "I would tell you, if you grovel at my feet here and now," she grinned.

Roy looked dumbfounded. "You better stop this dub shit you're pulling, and tell me where the hell Suzie is. Now Leah!"

"And what if I say no? What are you going to do?" She grinned.

I was already on the verge of ripping her neck off, but I knew doing that would incur dire consequences and I was not ready to face that. I looked at Roy, and I could tell that he was holding himself back from killing Leah.

But someone was not as patient as we were. With one swift motion, Blair was standing right in front of Leah and I could see his eyes were aflame, with pure bloodlust.

"What do you think you're—"

Before Leah could finish that sentence, Blair has grabbed her by the neck and slammed her to the wall. He stared at her, dead in the eyes and I could hear how much she struggled to breathe.

"If you do not want me to snap your puny neck off, you will tell me, where the hell Suzie is," Blair growled.

Leah went pale and she opened her quivering lips to speak.
