

Chapter 150

Leon hugged Alyssa and clearly felt her relax slowly.

He turned his head to look at Alyssa and found her big round eyes looking at him.

He tried to tease her and hooked her nose with his index finger, "It's getting late. If you don't go to bed, you'll have dark circles under your eyes tomorrow. By then, you won't be pretty."

Alyssa shook her head. She didn't want to sleep yet.

"You're not afraid of not being pretty?"

She nodded, shook her head, then leaned against him, her voice muffled, "I'll have dreams. I'm afraid I'll wake up while I'm asleep. If that happens, I think it's better to stay awake. I'm not very sleepy anyway."

"I'll sleep with you and you can sleep in my arms. You won't be scared if you are not alone."

"Leon, I'm still scared."

She had fallen from the building twice. This time, she almost fell again.

She was still in shock.

Especially this time. She finally managed to open her heart to Leon and get married and pregnant. She was really afraid of losing everything.

If she died, there would be nothing left.

With this thought, she hugged Leon with more and more strength.

Leon felt her holding him tighter and lowered his head to ask, "What's wrong? Are you feeling uncomfortable? Although I know what you're thinking, I still have to say don't be afraid. It's useless to be afraid. I will be by your side to protect you and won't let anything happen to you."

Alyssa looked at Leon's serious expression and thought that Leon was probably the only one in this world who could protect her. After what had happened, not only was she scared, Leon was also nervous. She shouldn't annoy Leon. So, she nodded, "I'm going to sleep. You stay with me too. I'll be good."

"I'll stay with you."

"So what if you don't mean what you say?" Alyssa was suddenly worried that Leon would leave while she was asleep.

"What do you want to do?"

Alyssa thought for a moment. She didn't know what to do.

Finally, it was Leon who said, "Punish me for warming your bed every night."

Alyssa was amused by Leon's words. She looked at Leon and laughed, "I don't think so."

"So do you want me to help you or not?"

"Yes."

Alyssa nodded seriously.

Leon smiled and lowered his head to kiss her forehead, "Get some sleep. The doctor said you have to be observed for a while before you can leave the hospital. Although the injury on your forehead is not serious, you are pregnant and in shock, you need to recuperate."

"I know." Hearing Leon's words, she relaxed and didn't feel the tension she had before.

Now being held by Leon, she felt warm all over. Soon, she became sleepy.

Alyssa closed her eyes and fell asleep.

Watching Alyssa fall asleep, Leon breathed a sigh of relief and held Alyssa tightly.

This was the person he had to protect. She needed him. He would make her safe from now on, and never let that happen again.

Alyssa did not sleep soundly all night.

She always had dreams.

She dreamed that she was on a high building and then on a cliff. She always stood at the edge as if she would be pushed down at the very next moment.

Every time she felt she was about to fall, she would panic and scream.

But before she woke up, she felt someone gently tapping her on the shoulder, coaxing her like a child.

She felt comforted and soon fell back to sleep.

The next few days.

It was as if nothing had happened before.

It was quiet.

Alyssa stayed in the hospital, looking out the window at the sun rising high in the sky, in a good mood.

In the past few days, Ella came to stay with her a lot and brought her notes, and talked to her about school.

Ella seemed busy and content. She was happy to have such a good friend.

Her grandfather and parents even came to see her in the hospital every day. Every time, they would bring her a lot of delicious food. Everything they brought was her favorite food, and she liked each of them very much.

Grandpa recently joined a photography class and got to know many professionals. He was good at taking pictures now. Grandpa also said that after she had a baby, he could take a family photo for them. At that time, everyone would gather together, and that would be a wonderful scene.

Alyssa didn't understand what grandpa said about getting married and having a family.

She knew even less about what he said for her benefit.

But now that she and Leon had a baby, so she got it.

Kevin also came to see her often. Probably watching him give her all the warmth that he had for the younger generation, Leon kept a dark face, but he didn't dare to say anything. When she saw his upset face, she only felt funny, but she didn't dare to laugh out loud. The feeling of holding back laughter was really not good.

Trent and Melany somehow knew the news.

They also brought fruit to see her.

They should have known that she was the Grahams' daughter, Leon's wife.

But when faced with her, they remained the same as before in Citic.

Trent's hair was still thin, and Melany still occasionally showed obvious arrogance.

But when talking to them, Alyssa felt that they were very close.

Hassan naturally came to see her, even more than once.

Each time he changed the subject to work.

Ella was with him a few times.

Ella finally believed that all Hassan cared about was probably nothing but work.

Alyssa was still sick!

But he continued to stick to himself.

Sure enough, he was a man without emotions.

Hassan didn't know what his little cousin was thinking. He just inexplicably liked the hospital.

After a few experiences, he came even more often.

This evening, he came to the hospital after he finished his work. When he got to Alyssa's ward, he saw the nurse cleaning up the ward instead.

Alyssa was gone, and so were her things.

It just so happened that the nurse was there and Hassan asked the nurse, "Where is the person in this ward?"

"She's been discharged."

"Discharged?"

"Yes! She's been in the hospital for a week. Now, there is no more problem with her body. How could she stay in the hospital forever?"

The young nurse had seen Hassan a few times and smiled at him.

Hassan glanced at the nurse, "Is she really okay?"

"Of course! Otherwise, why would the doctor release her from the hospital? Mr. Hunter is so good to his wife! If Mrs. Hunter wasn't really ready to be discharged, Mr. Hunter wouldn't have agreed to her being discharged. You are Mrs. Hunter's brother, right? Mrs. Hunter is so lucky to have so many people around her."

Brother?

He didn't want a sister like her.

His sister should be as good as Ella, not as dumb as Alyssa.

He had told her so many times to come to work, but she was so stupid that she would rather give birth to a child than come to work.

Was Leon that dependable?

He didn't think so.

He had told her so many times, but she didn't listen. She was just incredibly stupid.
