

Chapter 171 Benjamin, I Want Nothing!

Benjamin was in a meeting.

He replied gently, "I'm still in the meeting and I'll be back before nine o'clock! By the way, Paisley will go over to get a document later. It's on the desk in my study. Just give it to her."

Madelyn said okay.

She didn't hang up the phone immediately, because she wanted to talk to Benjamin more.

Benjamin was in the conference room, and it was not convenient to say too much. So he just said softly, "I gotta go!"

After hanging up the phone, Madelyn thought she had to ask Paisley to keep it secret when she came and saw the decorations later.

After 20 minutes, Paisley did not come but called Madelyn.

Paisley said tensely, "Madelyn, my child has a fever and I have to rush back now. Can you help me send the document, which is one on Mr. Clark's desk?"

Madelyn had a good relationship with Paisley and immediately agreed.

Paisley was very grateful.

Madelyn went to the study to get the document and drove to the law office.

She thought, "I can wait for Benjamin to finish the meeting and come back together. He must be very surprised when he sees the things I prepared."

Madelyn had a smiling face.

In the night, the white BMW shuttled through the traffic stream and arrived at Bravo Legal Firm in about half an hour.

Madelyn went upstairs.

Unexpectedly, most of the lights in the law office were turned off.

There was no one in Benjamin's office, but his second secretary didn't leave. Seeing Madelyn coming over, Sasha said strangely, "Mr. Clark answered a call half an hour ago and left in a hurry."

Madelyn changed her look slightly.

Sasha originally thought Benjamin left to celebrate Valentine's Day, but she found she was wrong after seeing Madelyn's expression.

Sasha watched Madelyn's expression carefully.

Madelyn understood Sasha's mood very well. She said with a wry smile, "It's okay!"

She went downstairs and sat in the car.

Madelyn knew the wisest choice was to go back to the apartment and wait for Benjamin to celebrate a common Valentine's Day, and then she would fly to Edoford.

Madelyn stroked the steering wheel!

the white car came in the direction of the

The night darkened.

the sky, drop by drop, disturbing many young couples.

road were gradually scarce.

upstairs immediately

I don't go up, this matter may disgust me for the rest

untied her seat

...

easily found her ward after asking the advanced vip

the inside clearly and hear the

she heard Eleanor's hysterical voice, which was very noisy.

at the door, there was a dead silence inside, with door and saw...Eleanor hugged Benjamin from tautened and his face darkened.

Benjamin only appeared in Suddenly...

Eleanor away hard.

very coldly, "Why don't I hate you? If it weren't for you, marriage would still be sacred to me, rather than becoming a piece

...

me! Ben... Please don't hate not

hospital gown, Eleanor threw herself into Benjamin's forget me! I know you don't love

Benjamin's body froze.

back then. You measured the size of my ring finger, didn't you? The diamond ring is actually for me, isn't it? So, you won't marry pushed Eleanor away

gritted his teeth and said, "My parents and Eloise

bang

Madelyn

...

body froze.

came up, she had thought about a lot of unpleasant thought, "Benjamin said...marriage is a constraint! He said...marriage is a piece of waste paper! He said marriage is just a means of

I'm trying to bind him or that he's trying the answer is,

a daze every time I felt heartache after waiting for a long time, has such a story. It turns out that It's so ridiculous!

used to laugh at Eleanor that I'm the one who

I waited for him stupidly and cooked him tonic soup. I was even willing to go to Edoford for two years just for him to handle things with Eleanor. I was looking forward to Valentine's Day, but he had a meeting and he had to work. However, he came here quickly just because of Eleanor's call.

Why did I think they would cut off their relationship two years later? They're clearly going to pester each other for the rest of their lives, and both of them obviously enjoy their relationship quite a lot!

Only me! Obviously, I'm an outsider and I'm self-righteous!

Enough! Madelyn! Enough!

It's over!"

Madelyn didn't want to cry because she didn't want to be embarrassed, but the tears still couldn't help rolling down!

...

"Madelyn!" Benjamin was shocked when he saw Madelyn.

He knew subconsciously that Madelyn had heard everything he said just now.

He wanted to explain.

But Madelyn stopped him and said, "Don't come! Benjamin, don't come!"

She picked up the document and handed it to Benjamin.

She said in a low voice, "Paisley's child is sick, and she let me give the document to you! You are not in the law office, so I...wanted to come and have a look!"

Benjamin took the document.

He frowned and said, "Madelyn, it's not what you think!"

Madelyn lowered her eyes and smiled lightly. Then she looked at the diamond ring on her finger.

Her eyes gradually became teary. In fact, she couldn't see the ring clearly at all, but she insisted on watching it for a long time. During such a period, she kept telling herself, "Caring a great deal for men can only make women come to a bad end!"

Madelyn thought, "Look, I'm so discomfited now!"

She slowly took off the diamond ring and raised it gently.

Benjamin kept rolling his Adam's apple and suddenly realized what Madelyn wanted to do!

Madelyn stared at Benjamin.

She remembered that she asked him a question not long ago, and he had said that he couldn't give her what she wanted!

Later, Madelyn had a brief relationship with Bryson.

Then Benjamin appeared and began to pursue Madelyn.

Benjamin had said he didn't just want to sleep with her but also wanted to go out with her and even married her. He gave her a diamond ring and took her home. All these made her very surprised and moved!

Madelyn thought, "Now I finally understand that he has made do with everything! Because his parents and his sister like me and he is satisfied with my body, he is willing to marry me. In his heart, marrying me has never been voluntary, but a gift to me! So, he never said he loved me! Never"

Madelyn asked with a wry smile, "Benjamin, do you love me?"

Chapter 172 She Lost Too Much This Night!

Benjamin looked at Madelyn with deep eyes.

He said in a hoarse voice, "Madelyn, let's talk about it later when we go home."

Madelyn was stubborn and asked another time, "Do you love me?"

Benjamin frowned and did not answer her.

Madelyn knew this early. She knew Benjamin didn't know how to answer because he didn't love her and was above lying.

The diamond ring in Madelyn's hand dropped gently, making a slight sound, just like their fragile relationship.

When their relationship broke up, they didn't make a fuss, not like what Eleanor did. On the contrary, it came quietly, and only Madelyn was always the one in pain.

Madelyn looked into Benjamin's eyes.

She said in a low voice, "Benjamin, I don't want anything! If you don't love me with all your heart, I want nothing! Benjamin, don't worry. I won't restrain you anymore, and you don't need to bind me with marriage! I said earlier that you are free! Now, you are really free!"

Madelyn turned around after speaking. She tried to straighten her back to walk out, wanting to maintain her last pride.

She wanted to leave respectably.

Madelyn thought, "Everyone has wrongly loved a jerk who toys with them. It was just unrestrained gambling, and I lost! It's okay. I can still get up after falling down! It's just that I will never marry a man named Benjamin!"

...

"Madelyn!"

Benjamin chased after Madelyn and grabbed her hand.

Madelyn threw his hand away hard.

But Benjamin gripped her hand and said, "Listen to me. I'm not toying with you! I..."

Madelyn couldn't get rid of Benjamin's hand.

She said calmly, "You are indeed not toying with me! You just make do with everything. You just can't refuse your beloved woman, and you can't tolerate her getting a little hurt! However, you have always ignored my feelings and my pain! Benjamin, we are done!"

Benjamin gritted his teeth and dragged Madelyn into his arms. Then he said, "Let's go home and talk!"

At this moment, the nurse in the ward screamed.

"Ms. Bennett... Ms. Bennett!"

Madelyn turned around with her red eyes.

Eleanor's face was pale and her scarred wrist kept bleeding. Eleanor laughed and said crazily, "Ben, you can't leave me! If you go back with her, I will die!"

and pressed Eleanor's wound.

"Eleanor, when are you going to stop making trouble out replied with her trembling lips,

...

watched. She was go to Edoford against my will. After breaking up, I'll never have to wait for him on left. She didn't want to watch the scenes of the two

...

left, she went back to

party decorations slowly. 8 thousand dollars worth of decorations, from the Edoford Academy of Music was also thrown into the trash can.

up her things

this moment, her cell

tone, "Madelyn, come to the hospital quickly. Your father accidentally fell. Maybe...
and almost had a breakdown!

only had the last trace of consciousness left, but he still grabbed Camila's hand and what Samuel couldn't rest assured

...

collapse in front

put down everything in her hand and rushed downstairs.

was still

the

eyes were blurred, and she couldn't tell whether it was rain or tears blocking

I'll tell him that I love him very much, and I'll assure him that I will take good care of Camila. I also want to tell him that into suddenly made a stunned for two

rain and opened the bonnet. Then a burst of black smoke came out.

broke

think carefully and started to take the taxi. But tonight was Valentine's Day, and many young couples were going home from appointments everywhere. Madelyn couldn't thought it would be easier to take a taxi from rain wetted

splashed on her shoes stepped into a heel hurt so frantically, but no one wanted to take her. One car after another passed by her self-esteem and directly dialed Benjamin's phone number.
me to my father's dialed is powered off!]
subscriber you dialed is powered off! Please dial

...

rainy night, Madelyn closed her a very dark night!

A black sports car suddenly stopped beside Madelyn, and a slender figure jumped out of the car.

It was David!

David ran over in the rain and carried Madelyn in his arms. He asked, "Why are you here?"

Under the night, Madelyn's face and lips were pale.

Madelyn said in a quavering voice, "David, take me to You Heal Hospital!"

David didn't ask much, put Madelyn in the passenger seat, and quickly started the car.

The sports car with a good performance left so quickly on this rainy night, like a meteor!

However, Madelyn arrived too late, and Samuel passed away with regret.

With David's support, Madelyn walked step by step to the bed. The snow-white bed sheet had already covered Samuel's face, and Samuel passed away forever.

...

"Madelyn, say goodbye to your father! He can hear you. He hasn't gone far yet!" Camila's face was full of tears.

"Dad!" Madelyn shouted in a quavering voice.

She knelt in front of Samuel.

She thought, "How could it be? How could he just pass away like this? I still have a lot to say. I still have a lot of places to take him and Camila. I've not yet had a high-flying career, and I've not been filial to him."

Madelyn gently opened the white cloth to see Samuel for the last time.

She thought, "Samuel, who is not related to me by blood, has paid too much for me. To give me all his love, he chose not to have his own child. He did everything for me."

Madelyn hugged Samuel gently, closed her eyes tightly, and called softly, "Dad..."

She continued to think, "Dad... I will live a good life. I will take good care of Camila. I will often take her to see you and Mom. When I am free, I will take Camila out for a trip. Dad... Don't worry and just look forward."

...

Madelyn sprained her foot.

Early in the morning, David took her to see a doctor from the orthopedics department.

After some examinations, the doctor changed his look slightly.

He knew Madelyn because his colleague's child was learning piano from Madelyn, and he knew that this was a very talented girl.

After deliberation, the doctor slowly said, "Ms. Green's foot problem is not serious. She will walk normally after a period of recovery. It has almost no effect on daily life, but because of the nerve damage in the foot..."

The doctor paused and then continued, "Ms. Green may not be able to become a top pianist. In addition, she'd better not drive anymore. Well... She actually can't drive...forever!"

...

Madelyn listened quietly.

Probably because she lost too much tonight, she had no response at this time!

Chapter 173 The Mystery of Her Birth

Benjamin came back to his apartment early in the morning.

On the way home, he saw a white BMW parked on the road.

It was not unusual for many people around to watch and take pictures, but Benjamin's heart skipped a beat suddenly when he saw the license plate.

It was Madelyn's car.

Benjamin stopped the car and walked across the road quickly.

The white BMW stopped on the road.

The bonnet of the car was opened, and it was exposed to the rain all night.

The door of the driver's seat was open. There was a lady's wallet inside. It had been soaked by the rain and was on the seat stickily.

The crowd was full of words.

"Whose car is it? This car just parks on the road like this!"

"That's it. Did the owner of the car commit suicide because of taking something to heart?"

"The car has broken down and the owner's probably dead. So pitiful!"

...

Benjamin stood upright, forgetting to breathe for a few seconds.

He took out his mobile phone mechanically and found it was switched off!

He leaned over to take out Madelyn's wallet and closed the car door. Someone around shouted, "How can you take other people's things?"

Benjamin said in a low voice, "It's my girlfriend's car!"

The onlookers looked at him strangely, as if looking at a heartless man.

Benjamin quickly returned to his car and charged his mobile phone. When he could turn on the mobile phone, he immediately dialed Madelyn's phone number.

The phone rang for about 20 seconds before Madelyn answered the phone.

Madelyn said tiredly, "Benjamin, we'll talk about our affairs later!"

After speaking, she hung up the phone.

Benjamin frowned, guessing that Madelyn was still angry.

go to her apartment at night to make up for her perfect Valentine's Day. Madelyn is very good. I don't want

Paisley and asked her to arrange a tow truck before driving to his

was not

was a little messy, and a small suitcase was open as if someone was packing, but it was

and then went

taking a shower, he lay down,

very tired and asked in a tone, "Madelyn's father has passed away. Do you closed his eyes slightly.

slowly opened his eyes, and all emotions disappeared knew why Madelyn packed half of her luggage and didn't take it away, why her car broke down on the road, and why she didn't

Madelyn's father passed

Madelyn experienced last color drained from Benjamin's face gradually, and he had a hunch that he and Madelyn were really done!

was rushed to

there, and a few relatives

Samuel to another world. Madelyn was sitting in a wheelchair in looked a lot thinner, with a pointed came over, Madelyn just took a quiet look no love or hate in her eyes!

help but step forward and grab Benjamin's collar. David said fiercely, "How dare you come here! Where were you when Madelyn was helpless? Stop gritted teeth, "I said a long time ago, if you don't cherish her, I will

...

pushed David away

to

"A good girl like

Madelyn stopped David.

Madelyn's pale face, Benjamin wanted to hug her.

Madelyn refused.

"My father was able to leave this world cleanly because of Mr. Clark. Now that he is gone, Mr. Clark is willing to come over to mourn

Benjamin was stunned.

she even called me Ben. But now, mourning hall set up by the Green

Benjamin never left.

She only regarded him as a guest of the Green family!

sitting in a wheelchair.

sent Samuel to the mountain, and Madelyn was holding his picture!

burst into only had

was solemn and

away, and all the related and unrelated people came.

came with

Daniel also came.

Even Alexander and Brianna brought Eloise over. The Clark family's meaning was obvious, that was, they still wanted Madelyn to marry into their family!

Although Camila was sad, she asked Madelyn's thoughts.

Madelyn said indifferently, "Since they're here, just let them mourn for Dad to show their sympathy."

Camila didn't know what had happened between Madelyn and Benjamin, but she knew that the two would probably not get married. So Camila just treated the Clark family politely as guests.

When Samuel's ashes entered the earth, the sky was overcast.

Samuel's ashes were placed side by side with Madeline's, and there was another place on the side that was reserved for Camila so many years later.

Seeing the tomb, Camila cried and said, "Madeline, you and Samuel must have a good time there."

Camila thought, "As for Madelyn, I will take good care of her."

Madelyn hugged Camila tightly.

At this moment, a slender figure from a distance walked over quickly.

That person was urbane and elegant.

It was William.

He learned what Eleanor had done and knew that Madelyn had broken up with Benjamin. So he wanted to mourn for Samuel to atone for the sins of the Bennett family!

Madelyn didn't stop William. She just said, "Comers are all guests!"

When William was about to mourn, he suddenly widened his eyes!

He saw his beloved woman, also his first love, Madeline. Her picture was on the tombstone and a line of words was also on it.

[MY BELOVED WIFE MADELINE, BY SAMUEL.]

At that moment, William's whole body froze!

William couldn't believe it and called Madeline repeatedly.

"Madeline, Madeline... Why are you here?"

With so many acquaintances present, William threw himself in front of Madeline's tombstone regardless of decency and stroked her picture with his trembling fingers.

William thought, "It's Madeline! It's my Madeline! She became someone else's wife, and she actually married Samuel!"

William suddenly looked at Madelyn!

He remembered that Madelyn was the same age as his child. Then he looked closely at her facial features and found she actually resembled him.

William thought, "Madelyn! Madelyn may be Madeline and my biological daughter! But I personally left her high and dry! I even dreamed that Eleanor could get back together with Ben after her divorce."

William couldn't accept the blow, and a mouthful of blood sprayed on Madeline's tombstone!

Chapter 174 The Mystery of Her Birth (2)

William's blood stained the tombstone red!

In the picture, Madeline smiled slightly, as young and lovely as she was back then.

William was so excited that he blacked out, and the scene was in chaos.

The Clark family hurriedly helped William.

"William! William!"

"Mr. Bennett, what's wrong with you?"

...

Madelyn held Samuel's picture and looked at all of this woodenly.

She had known she was not Samuel's biological child a long time ago. She had always wanted to know who her biological father was, but she never thought it was...William!

It was the man Madelyn admired since childhood but left her high and dry.

Seeing William faint, Madelyn was unable to sympathize with him, let alone know his feelings. She just watched the scene coldly.

Alexander and Benjamin, who were present, guessed the truth.

The biological child that William was looking for was Madelyn!

This fact was like a thunderstorm!

Alexander sighed and thought, "If we had known earlier, the ending of Madelyn and Ben would not be like this!"

William woke up from fainting.

It was drizzling in the sky.

The grave watcher wiped off the blood on the tombstone and shouted, "You have my heartfelt sympathy." Under the heavy granite tomb, Samuel and Madeline were buried together!

"No!" William faltered and pounced.

"Madeline, I'll take you home!"

William was of high status but he did such unseemly behavior, which made others not know what to do!

Besides, spitting blood on the tombstone was quite impolite for the dead!

Just when William was sorrowful, Madelyn said indifferently, "Mr. Bennett, this is my mother's home. She is my father's legal wife. Where are you taking her? The Bennett's mansion? I remember you have a legal wife!"

William's body trembled!

help but look at Madelyn, his biological daughter who resembled him and Madeline, but Madelyn looked at him a moment and spurted out another mouthful of and could only watch Madeline buried stopped looking

side with Camila,

...

funeral was over.

after another. Alexander originally wanted to talk to Madelyn, but William's condition was really help of Camila, Madelyn was about to arm and said, "Madelyn, settled calmly on

as attracted to him as she used to be, so there

I am not in the mood

Benjamin looked pale.

said, "Let me send you and whispered, "No, the car is waiting. Mr.

Madelyn's thoughts.

about her temperament and knew Madelyn probably was determined to break up with him. Benjamin had thought about whether it was better to break up in the past two days, but it was Madelyn that he of living with Madelyn and didn't want to break up with her!

...

but they felt a little lonely because two ate in silence.

meal, Camila called Madelyn over and her eyes and asked,

in the suburbs. This house values some money, and you can use it when you are in very

and said in a choked voice, "Why are you leaving? I want you to stay with me!"

bit back

William should be Madelyn's biological father

"If Madelyn could live with him, she probably would live her head and said, "I'm not going anywhere.

Camila sighed softly.

loved Madelyn, but Madelyn was not her biological daughter, so she couldn't keep Madelyn by murmured, "I'll call you Mom, okay? I'll call you Mom. Please don't leave Camila's body froze.

hugged Camila tighter.

very low voice, "Mom,

little girl timidly called Camila when Camila first met her.

Camila cried!

death, Camila had been strong all the time, but no one knew lost her husband and had no biological

But now, Madelyn called Camila Mom...

Camila hugged Madelyn with tears rolling down and said, "I'm not leaving. I'm not leaving! Madelyn, since you call me Mom, I'm not going anywhere."

Madelyn leaned softly in Camila's arms and gently got the warmth from her body.

In the afternoon, Camila forced Madelyn to take a nap.

When Madelyn woke up, she heard a voice in the living room.

With the support of the wall, Madelyn walked out and squinted when she saw the man.

William was sitting in the living room with a lot of precious tonics at his feet. When he saw Madelyn, his lips trembled for a long time. Finally, he just called softly, "Madelyn!"

Madelyn knew why William came here!

She said politely, "Something happened to my family. Please forgive me for any inconsiderate hospitality! Mr. Bennett, these things..."

Madelyn looked at the tonics and continued, "I know your mind, but I really dare not accept these!"

William stared at Madelyn.

The more William looked at Madelyn, the more he felt she resembled Madeline back then.

The more he looked at her, the more he felt she resembled the Bennett family.

Madeline married a man and was laid to rest. William had no choice, but Madelyn was the only child of the Bennett family, so he had to take her home.

William wanted to give Madelyn the best!

He calmed down and said very gently, "I heard that you play the piano very well. Alexander also said that he wants to send you to study further in Edoford. I have some familiar tutors there... Or, I can teach you personally."

William wanted to make up for Madelyn and wanted his biological daughter to become a top musician, to comfort Madeline's spirit!

William said a lot, but Madelyn smiled lightly.

She looked down at her foot.

She thought, "This foot has hurt a nerve. Not to mention becoming a top pianist, I can't even drive. As for Edoford, I will never go there."

Madelyn didn't tell William about this. She just smiled faintly and said, "Thank you for your kindness, Mr. Bennett. I don't think I need it! In addition, if there is nothing else, I gotta go!"

Madelyn was inconvenient to walk, so she told Camila to see William off.

Camila respected Madelyn's choice, so she handed the gifts to William and saw him off politely.

When William got outside the door, he didn't want to give up and said, "Mrs. Green, you..."

Camila smiled faintly.

She said, "I know your thoughts, but so many things have happened. We should respect Madelyn's own thoughts, right? We are all human beings after all and everyone has sympathy. Mr. Bennett, you care a great deal for your adopted daughter, but only Samuel and I care about Madelyn."

Camila's words made William heartache as if he was shot so many times!

Chapter 175 Benjamin, We'll Never Meet Each Other!

Before going to bed at night, Camila gave Madelyn a hot compress on her feet.

She held Madelyn's feet and said gently, "You have to take good care of your feet! Pay attention to your injury!"

Madelyn pretended to be okay and said, "It's just a small injury!"

Camila didn't think much because Madelyn could walk gradually.

Camila continued to give Madelyn a hot compress. When she was almost done, she hesitated and said, "Benjamin has been downstairs for a long time. Would you like to meet him?"

Madelyn was stunned.

After a moment, she shook her head slightly and said, "We'll talk in a few days! I'm not in the mood right now."

Camila didn't force Madelyn.

She touched Madelyn's head and said, "I don't know what's going on with you two, but I'll support all your decisions. Just pick someone good as your boyfriend. If this one is bad, there will be the next one! I'm sure my daughter can pick a satisfactory one."

Hearing this, Madelyn smiled slightly.

Camila was a little relieved.

...

Time passed quickly. Soon it was the seventh day of Samuel's death, and Madelyn's foot was almost recovered.

Madelyn went to mourn for Samuel with Camila.

In the bright spring sunshine, small flowers bloomed everywhere.

In front of Samuel and Madeline's tombstone, there was a bunch of fresh lilies.

Camila guessed that they were from William. She glanced at Madelyn, who threw the lilies aside expressionlessly and put a handful of daisies on the tombstone!

Camila sighed softly.

...

Both of them stayed in the cemetery for a long time, and it was near noon when they came out.

A golden Bentley Continental parked at the entrance of the cemetery. Benjamin leaned against the car to smoke. His whole body was in the bright spring sunshine, but he looked particularly gloomy.

Benjamin had lost a little weight, but he was still very good-looking.

Madelyn didn't escape. After all, she had to make things clear between her and Benjamin.

looked at her with deep take you

Madelyn was going to have closure, so she took the initiative to say, "I noded and told Camila

taxi and went

the car door, and said softly, "Get in the sat in the passenger seat.

she could walk, she was not so slowly fastened his seat belt, looked at Madelyn's foot, and asked gently, "Does the foot

her

better. Thank you for your concern."

and said after considering for a while, "Madelyn, I like you, and I don't want to break up with you! Let's start over. I won't meet her again in the future.

Madelyn listened quietly.

neither happy nor sad, as if she were an with a faint smile, "Benjamin, find a place to have a slender fingers on the steering wheel gently and then he smiled after a long time.

Benjamin took Madelyn to a in advance, so there were ordered a cup of coffee. She gently stroked had finally figured out Benjamin's getting her back.

thought, "But isn't it too hypocritical to break my always what he was willing to give, but I gave everything in this relationship. I knew I wouldn't have a good ending with him, but I still his, so I went to learn many advanced hobbies that I didn't like, including flower arrangement, making pianist, William. I was even willing to leave my felt

...

a cup of coffee, Madelyn said softly, "Benjamin, we're done!"

eyes settled on said very slowly, "It's not bad to Benjamin's gaze and

and will never call each other or

Madelyn finished speaking, Benjamin suddenly called the waiter, "Two packages."

smiled and said, "Okay, Mr. Clark. I will serve you help but ask,

"We'll talk after the food was served, only Benjamin ate it time but didn't pay attention to actually waiting for Madelyn to regret and take back the words of breaking up. But it was no use crying over spilled milk. Since Madelyn had already decided, she his lower lip with a napkin.

you sure to break

He had lived with Madelyn for a long time and had made love countless times. They were very happy when they were together. Benjamin felt that Madelyn had no reason to completely break up with him just because of Eleanor!

Madelyn gave a positive answer.

She said, "I'm sure to break up with you!"

Benjamin was a specially privileged person. In addition to Eleanor, the only woman he had coaxed was Madelyn. Now that Madelyn proposed to break up, he could tell that she had made up her mind.

Benjamin thought, "If this relationship makes Madelyn uncomfortable and unhappy, it's better to let go of each other."

Then they had an unpleasant conversation!

Benjamin was a wealthy and high-ranking man. He thought he should give something to affirm the value of her company when breaking up with a woman.

Benjamin considered for a while and said, "I'll ask Paisley to transfer the apartment to you!"

That apartment was worth tens of millions of dollars. An ordinary girl must be happy after hearing Benjamin's words, while Madelyn was with Benjamin not for his money.

Hearing Benjamin's words, Madelyn was not annoyed and just said in a low voice, "I don't want the apartment!"

Benjamin was stunned.

Madelyn was still staring at him.

Benjamin understood something, took out his checkbook, and wrote down a set of numbers.

Then he gently pushed the check for 8 million dollars to Madelyn.

Benjamin said calmly and politely, "Madelyn, now our relationship is over! If you need help in the future, you can contact Paisley."

Madelyn did not refuse.

She folded the check and put it in her bag.

She thanked Benjamin very honestly and made one last request. She said, "Mr. Clark, I still have something in the apartment that I want to take away!"

Benjamin took out a cigarette, lit it up, and took a long puff.

He looked at Madelyn with deep eyes and said with a faint smile, "Okay! It's convenient for you that I don't live there these days! Just give the key to Paisley after taking your things."

Madelyn thanked Benjamin politely.

She stood up to leave, and Benjamin was somewhat gentlemanly and wanted to send her.

Madelyn shook her head.

She smiled lightly and said, "No need to send me, Mr. Clark! Thank you for your help to my father over the past few days. Now, we're even! From now on, I hope we'll never meet each other!"

Madelyn walked out of the restaurant slowly.

Benjamin sat still. When he looked at Madelyn's slender figure through a glass, he suddenly felt some pain in his eyes.

He thought it was because the sun was too bright!

hapter 176 The End of Love

The next day, Madelyn returned to the apartment.

She swiftly hired a worker to reinstall the original curtains and throw away all the vases and decorations she had purchased.

She packed up all the clothes and jewelry, worn or unworn, and sent them off to the auction house.

Madelyn was determined to leave no trace of herself in the apartment, not even the Morning Dew piano.

By the end of the day, all signs of her presence had vanished, as if she had never been there.

Finally, Madelyn noticed the little white dog residing in the apartment.

It was a stray that Benjamin had rescued and gifted to Madelyn to impress her, but he had left it to starve in her absence.

Without a second thought, Madelyn took the dog with her when she left.

After spending more than half a year with Benjamin, Madelyn left with nothing but the little white dog.

She exchanged the $50 million he had given her, as well as the jewelry, clothes, and Morning Dew, for money to donate to a charity foundation.

As she finished, Madelyn's feet throbbed in slight discomfort, reminding her of her love - an absurdity!

...

Two days later, Benjamin was working in his law firm, basking in the glory of his latest international case.

Suddenly, Paisley Brooks, his assistant, entered and handed him an envelope.

"Ms. Green came by yesterday and asked me to give this to you," she said softly.

Benjamin opened the envelope to find a key inside.

It was the key to his apartment - the one Madelyn had left behind.

He stared quietly at the key, lost in thought.

"Have you been to my apartment recently? Did Madelyn take all of her clothes and jewelry with her?" he asked Paisley, his voice laced with uncertainty.

"If not, please send them to her. As a man, I have no use for those things." He added.

Paisley's expression became complicated, and Benjamin looked up at her, sensing that something was amiss.

"What's wrong?" he asked.

Paisley couldn't find the words to respond, so she muttered a vague response.

back tonight. In any case, Ms. Green has indeed little curious, he didn't

at night before driving back to his apartment.

the dark

be waiting for him, and no one would cook for him like Madelyn always smoking a cigarette before finally heading flicked on the lights, a on his saw in front of him was nothing short grown used to Madelyn's lavishly decorated house, but now it was plain, like a sample and tasteless, devoid of any aside, Benjamin began searching every room- the bedroom, kitchen, living room, even the bathroom - but he couldn't find had left nothing of the French window, feeling a deep sense of Dew piano was then that he realized Madelyn's forget him; she

of their last conversation came said, "Farewell then. We'll not in his heart was unbearable as he realized the truth - Benjamin took out his phone and dialed Madelyn's number.
"Sorry! The line is busy at the moment. Please try your call looked around the apartment, wave of frustration and despair, he threw his phone against the wall, shattering it
him, and he started smashing doing it, but destroying these things seemed like it could somehow bring Benjamin stood amongst the ruins of his pocket- it was the one he had given was probably the only thing looked at the ring, thinking about Madelyn's joy when he first gave it didn't want formed in Benjamin's throat.
emotions, ranging from anger and confusion to intense sadness, threatened to forget Madelyn, just like she seemed up his apartment and threw tried one mentioned her in front of became a taboo topic that he couldn't bear stopped talking about was too late...

*

news. "Mr. Clark, Christie's Auction House in Hong Kong... has something related to you!"
which was signing a document, froze.

"What is it?" he asked, intrigued.

Paisley lowered her voice further. "They auctioned off a batch of jewelry and haute couture dresses- all of them were gifts you once gave Ms. Green. Additionally, the Morning Dew piano was sold alone for $60 million."

Benjamin stared at the document in front of him.

He asked, seeming to be indifferent to this news. "What does Madelyn want with so much money?"

Paisley replied, "Well, actually Ms. Green donated all of the money to a charity foundation."

The pen in his hand snapped in half.

Benjamin spoke coldly, "She donated all of the money? You mean... she spent half a year with me and only asked for a dog?"

Paisley sighed quietly.

Then she placed a large envelope on his desk.

"I picked this up from the mailbox at the apartment over the past few days. It's Madelyn's past spending records, along with bills and receipts that she sent over. Perhaps, once you've looked at it, Mr. Clark, you will understand what Mrs. Green has done for you," she said with a soft voice.

Benjamin clenched his fist, and after a long while, he opened it to take a look.

The first bill he saw was for the Valentine's Day decorations, with several effect images attached.

The stunning images showed a black-themed decor that Benjamin would have loved.

The bill was expensive, costing tens of thousands of dollars, yet Madelyn had paid for it herself with her own card.

As Benjamin stared at the pictures, a familiar pain swept over him like a tidal wave. He couldn't deny that Madelyn really loved him.

"Madelyn truly does love you, Mr. Clark," Paisley's voice chimed in.

She said, "You may not know this, but she promised your father to go to France for two years in order to make it convenient for you to handle Ms. Bennett's affairs."

"You once won the best love," Paisley continued. "Please forgive me, I have to ask you - if you hadn't gone to the hospital, would Ms. Bennett really have died? Or is it that you, Mr. Clark, have never let go of that first love in your heart?" She inquired.

Paisley's voice choked slightly as she realized she had overstepped her bounds. "I'm sorry for speaking out of turn..." she said and then left.

Benjamin continued to stare at the pictures and the memories they brought with them.

He suddenly realized that he had lost something - he had lost Madelyn's love!

She had asked him twice whether he loved her, and he failed to give a direct and honest answer.

He had merely liked her body, her care, her cooking, and her company.

In fact, he had always known that Madelyn loved him!

But now, she had taken back her love, drawn a clear line between herself and him, and completely left his life!

Madelyn had let go, but he couldn't!

He sat alone in the office all night, his ashtray full of cigarette butts as he pondered over the memories.

As the sky began to lighten, he finally called Paisley, his voice hoarse. "Help me find out where that 'Morning Dew' piano went!"

Chapter 177 How Are You

Paisley was well-prepared.

She spoke softly, "An antique collector in Zistin got the piano."

Zistin...

Benjamin spoke calmly, "Book the quickest flight for me and gather all the information you can on the collector, including details on his family, friends, and company..."

Paisley nodded, "Of course, Mr. Clark. I'll transfer it to your email before you board the plane."

That afternoon, Benjamin flew to Zistin.

He spent a week there before returning to Gredax when spring was in full bloom.

Despite not having adjusted to the time difference yet, he couldn't wait to see Madelyn.

Paisley had already informed him that Madelyn was volunteering at a nearby nursing home.

Benjamin decided to drive there; it was remote and he arrived at half past three.

As he approached the classical building, the sound of a piano echoed from within.

And there she was - Madelyn.

She was dressed in white and sitting in front of an old piano, completely engrossed in playing.

She looked as beautiful as she did the first time Benjamin heard her play "Morning Dew" for him.

As he gazed at her, he clenched his fist, noticing subtle differences in her playing.

Despite the old and dilapidated piano she was using, Madelyn lacked the same level of agility and tension in her performance compared to her previous one, leading him to wonder if her foot injury had fully recovered.

After she finished the song, Benjamin whispered her name, "Madelyn!"

Hearing his voice, Madelyn stiffened for a moment.

But when she turned her face, her composure returned. "Mr. Clark?" she replied politely, suggesting that they were nothing more than acquaintances.

Benjamin surveyed the room, noticing many of the elderly people with white hair staring at him curiously.

we talk alone for a

him in the tearoom.

floor-to-ceiling window, adorned with an array of glorious small flowers and plants.

sat elegantly in his afraid we don't have any coffee or didn't come here for the tea, so opposite

of the black tea separated them.

silence, asking, "How Madelyn took a sip of black tea before answering, "Not too bad. It's been out a

the invitation letter to the Edoford Academy of Music lightly pressed down on the letter with his slender fingers, looking want to study in Edoford?" he asked with concern. "I heard you

her injured leg

never

to creep up on Madelyn, as she recalled the ill-fated relationship that robbed her of her dreams and dashed all her hopes!

fully heal, and her chance to be the best pianist was now just a distant memory! She no longer needed to go to Edoford, and with not a single scratch on him, sat reason, Madelyn chose to stay silent.

lightly and said, "Thank you for your concern. I don't think I'll be going to said it casually.

Benjamin felt a persistent want everything, and now he wanted to give her everything, but she didn't wanting to push her any further, Benjamin finished his tea and looked outside at the sunset. He then adding, "Your car is still in the repair shop, and it's in bad condition. I delicate porcelain cup as she tried to hold and gave a slight smile, saying, "Mr. Clark, we've broken up. I've taken the break-up fee, moved out, and settled our

I don't need a a class later, Mr. Clark, please leave now. We don't need pushing him

gaze was

for any sign of the passionate woman who had once sat on his lap, kissed him, and clung to him, pleading looked for the Madelyn who used to blush at the sight of him and expressed

But he failed!

gone, replaced by a cold and emotionless shell!

that he was the one who had been lost in sweetness all along,

As Madelyn left, he stood there, deep in thought.

At that moment, Benjamin suddenly thought of Daniel Campbell - had he felt this same way when he had to reform himself?

*

A few days later, Benjamin found Daniel at a social event held in a private room at the Orchid Club.

Daniel was smoking leisurely, eyeing Benjamin with curiosity at seeing him in such a low mood.

Daniel poured a drink for Benjamin slyly, "Benjamin, are you feeling down?"

Benjamin held up the brandy and drank it all in one gulp. "I'm fine!"

Daniel smiled lightly and took out his phone to show Benjamin a photo from his album - a picture of Madelyn when she was 22 years old.

She was asleep on a dining table, looking more innocent than she does now, and the background decoration was not from the Greens' mansion.

Benjamin squinted his eyes.

Daniel held a cigarette and eagerly continued, "She also cooked for me back then and waited for me at night. So, we are not special ones! She'll forget about you soon and fall in love with David James. She'll cook for him, tie his tie, and even... get married!"

Daniel smiled lightly, clearly enjoying Benjamin's discomfort. "Do you know that David has already gotten closer to her?"

The words stung like a knife, and Benjamin snapped, launching himself at Daniel.

The private room was filled with well-connected people, witnessing a brutal fight.

The typically reserved Mr. Clark had turned violent!

Grayson Wyatt was also present, pretending to stop the fight, "Daniel, why say those hurtful things? You know that Benjamin is hurting inside!"

Daniel, who had clearly had too much to drink, was no match for Benjamin's physical strength.

He was beaten badly, but even in his pain, he continued to smile.

"This is your retribution, Benjamin!" Daniel spat. "I know I was wrong to mistreat Madelyn, but at least I loved her! If she gave me a chance, I would have given up anything for her. But what about you? You hurt her for no reason at all!" He sneered coldly.

Grayson couldn't bear to listen anymore and sincerely stopped Daniel's speaking.

But Daniel, growing excited and agitated, wiped the blood from the corner of his mouth and said fiercely.

"Do you ever think about Madelyn when you're with Eleanor?" he snarled. "How could Madelyn promise Alexander Clark to go to Edofordian? You fooled her, but she sees you now. And I'm going to enjoy watching you suffer!"

Daniel, determined to continue the fight, was no longer interested in arguing with Benjamin.

The other onlookers recognized that even Benjamin was ready to fight, so they gave up trying to stop the brawl.

They realized that the two men needed this fight to unleash their anger and jealousy.

Chapter 178 He Needed Her

Benjamin strode out of the room.

His white shirt was stained with blood, mostly from Daniel.

He lit a cigarette in the hallway, taking a slow drag.

Despite his dislike for Daniel, he couldn't deny the truth of what he had said.

He realized that his relationship with Madelyn, although seemingly equal, was not devoid of her concessions.

And due to their vastly different social standings, he took her sacrifices for granted, never really considering her feelings as a woman.

Lost in contemplation, Benjamin continued to smoke his cigarette.

His chiselled features and noble bearing never failed to attract the attention of women, and Caroline was no exception.

She was Daniel's lover, working at the Orchid Club, and bore an uncanny resemblance to Madelyn.

When she first encountered Benjamin, he looked at her in a way that made her pulse quicken.

As they met again, Caroline couldn't resist the temptation of being with such a captivating man even if it was just for one night.

Caroline's heart raced.

She approached Benjamin and gently touched his handsome face, daring to ask, "Mr. Clark, may I join you for a drink?"

However, Benjamin was a fastidious man who detested unrelated women touching him!

He had imbibed so much wine that when Caroline touched him, he forcefully shoved her away, causing her slender body to slam into the opposite wall with a loud thud!

Caroline screamed in pain, and the commotion caught the attention of the club manager, who immediately rushed over to investigate.

Though it was not a significant incident, Benjamin's fury was ignited upon seeing Caroline's familiar face.

Without a moment's hesitation, he kicked open the door to a private room and forcefully shoved Caroline inside.

The manager quickly followed and apologized, "Please forgive her, Mr. Clark. She didn't mean to bother you."

Benjamin sat on the sofa and lit a cigarette, taking slow drags while he fixed his deep gaze on Caroline.

He was so handsome that Caroline couldn't help but feel a little flustered.

"Come here," Benjamin commanded suddenly, his deep voice sending shivers down Caroline's spine. wanting nothing more than to touch him, but fearing his rejection.

she got close enough, she only lifted her and looked at her intently, some resemblance to Madelyn." He thought.

Benjamin was interested in Caroline and best," he said to Benjamin. "You really should give her a lightly, a let go of selling your body and start living a decent life, or you can get plastic surgery and change your face... And if I ever catch you selling yourself again with that face, in any

the manager was on the verge of tears.

had Caroline done to anger this devil?" He table, his expression cold. "Gredax is a big and safe city, but it's easy for me to the ground,

immediately realized why Benjamin couldn't stand face bore some resemblance

only bears a slight resemblance to his ex-girlfriend, who better than

Caroline sent back to her hometown overnight, begging and pleading with her to never return to Gredax again. After all, the little demon prince of the Clark family was not someone

...

the point of being barely able to a driver to escort him to his apartment building, but go up! Madelyn was not there!

on the ground and vomiting until he was dizzy. And when he finally regained some sense, he stood

Madelyn had taking everything, including the dog, leaving no trace of sentiment behind slightly red, and he couldn't help but call her name: "Madelyn! Madelyn... Madelyn..."

figure was observing him intently.

was none other

a long time, seeing him drunk and gazing up at the building

Madelyn, and it hurt her to really like Madelyn?"

him several times recently, but he never answered.

attempted to kill herself, hoping he would come rushing to the hospital. But it was clear to her now that he

if she didn't matter

do you regret choosing me?

you've had too much to drink," she said softly, attempting pushed her away, taking a couple of steps back with alone! I don't want to see you..." he muttered under stunned. "Ben, I will cry too!" she pleaded, hoping to make him understand that she also cared deeply didn't want to hear it. He looked at Eleanor for one more second, Madelyn would never... never return! Yet,

Just like Daniel had said, Madelyn only needed to heal her wounds, find love with someone else, and then get married...

In the dark of the night, Eleanor trembled with despair.

She knew she had lost...

She had paid the ultimate price, cutting her wrist time and time again, just to keep Benjamin by her side.

But she still lost Benjamin's heart to Madelyn!

Benjamin's mind was filled with Madelyn!

A cold smirk twisted Eleanor's lips.

Madelyn, how much more do you want to take away from me?

...

Early in the morning, Madelyn received good news- she was one of the "Top Ten Outstanding Youths" in Gredax this year.

The music studio teachers congratulated her on her achievement, and even Penelope from Oriapool called to express her joy.

"Madelyn, we need to celebrate! We should open a bottle of champagne to toast your success!" Penelope exclaimed.

Madelyn smiled slightly in response. "I'll come to Oriapool and join you for that champagne!"

Initially, Penelope wanted to decline the offer, insisting that it wasn't necessary, but she missed Madelyn so much and finally gave in. "I'll be waiting for you in Oriapool," she conveyed.

Madelyn was in high spirits. She generously handed out red envelopes to all the employees at the music studio, and everyone was happy.

Just then, her secretary interrupted them and said, "Ms. Green, there's a Ms. Bennett here to see you!"

Madelyn's smile vanished within moments of hearing that name.

Thinking quickly, Madelyn instructed her secretary, "Activate the surveillance cameras in the waiting room and ask Ms. Bennett to wait there."

Sensing the tension between them, the secretary moved swiftly to make the necessary arrangements.

Vivian White, who was present at the time, asked Madelyn, "Do you really agree to see her?"

Madelyn curled into a faint smile as she replied, "Do you really think she's come with an olive branch? Unless I make it clear that I won't bow down to her, she'll never leave me alone. And I won't be like William Bennett and give in to her every whim."

Despite her fierce demeanor, Vivian still felt sympathetic toward her.

She had learned everything from David, and the anger towards Benjamin was still simmering within her. But Madelyn firmly rejected Vivian's idea of seeking revenge, insisting that they should cut ties cleanly.

Vivian still couldn't shake off her concerns and accompanied her to meet Eleanor.

As soon as they entered the reception room, Vivian's heart sank at the sight of Eleanor.

This crazy woman had run out in a hospital gown, which was considered extremely unlucky and impolite! If she were Madelyn, she definitely would have kicked her out with a broom!

Nonetheless, Madelyn greeted Eleanor with a polite smile, "Ms. Bennett, what can I do for you?"

Chapter 179 Unaccepted Family Tie

Eleanor fixed Madelyn with a piercing stare.

Madelyn was wearing a chic green Chanel dress and looked vibrant.

Eleanor seethed with anger - how could Madelyn look so stunning and composed, and even win the Young Outstanding Award with such poise as ever even after Ben had abandoned her?

Eleanor resolved that she would never let Madelyn have the last laugh!

Despite her inner turmoil, she softened her voice, "I heard that you're going to win an award and I came today to give you a special gift to offer my congratulations!"

The secretary walked in with a tray of tea, and Madelyn calmly took a sip.

"Ms. Bennett, your kindness is not necessary. We have never had that kind of relationship," Madelyn responded coolly.

Eleanor reached into her pocket and pulled out a blade, her eyes filled with madness.

"Let's spill some blood and make Ms. Green's day a little brighter!" she exclaimed.

Vivian rolled her eyes, unimpressed with Eleanor's show.

She couldn't help but remark, "If you're really set on dying, at least don't do it on someone else's doorstep," she retorted. "By the way, Benjamin isn't here. We don't possess any rare blood to save you, so please don't be reckless!"

Madelyn regarded Eleanor with a cool gaze.

Eleanor chuckled, "Ben wouldn't see me, so I had to track you down instead, Ms. Green. If I cut myself and call the police, alleging that you hurt me, how do you think Ben will think about you?"

"I don't care what Ben thinks of me," Madelyn replied sharply. "But Ms. Bennett's life is precious, and you shouldn't endanger it."

Deep down, Madelyn knew Eleanor was not truly prepared to die.

How could such a selfish person be willing to end their own life?

Eleanor was like a child throwing a tantrum, trying to reclaim the candy she had carelessly thrown away. And she, Madelyn Green, was just a pawn in her emotional turmoil with Benjamin.

Eleanor smirked and sliced her wrist gently.

Then she proceeded to call William Bennett. "Daddy, Madelyn hurt me!" she cried, trying to mask the glee in her voice. "Come quickly and save me! I'm bleeding heavily..."

In a calculated move, she also called 911, demanding that the police come and take Madelyn away.

and ruin her chances of becoming the "Outstanding Youth arrived promptly with

Ben's relationship, but she refused and sliced my wrist, trying to close,

Madelyn and asked,

met his gaze with a mix of rage

believe Eleanor's lies in his heart, he believed ground, vomiting blood at her mother's had even fooled her then.

dog's loyalty was

her

acknowledging William as her she would have

in an even tone, "Well, the evidence will tell are real, Ms. Green. I have you because of Ben, but Madelyn, you took it too far. I know you've always hated me, but I never thought you'd want me dead!"

apologize to Eleanor. If back her curses!

make sure she wouldn't go around biting people. You might end was sympathetic to the hidden story.

William Bennett!

wasn't even worth a second thought compared to Mr.

had taken care of Madelyn since she was young and never allowed her to

with an umbrella. Once, there was a deep puddle at the door, and that man in his fifties even carried Madelyn on his back. Every girl in their class envied was about to

Madelyn gently stopped her. "There's no need, Vivian."

calling me a lunatic and a criminal.

secretary brought up the video and Eleanor's face

you're really cunning, you set me up!" she up!" William

thing, and... frame Madelyn!

upon Madelyn as he

to having her way. "Dad, what's there to talk words elicited a resounding slap across the first time William had ever laid a

"Eleanor, she's not a beggar! She's your own sister!" William implored, visibly upset.

Eleanor's face lost all color.

How could her father possibly know Madelyn's true identity?

She had made sure to destroy that letter...

The silence in the room was deafening.

Really? Did the renowned musician William Bennett, known for his impeccable reputation, have another child?

Madelyn's voice was frozen as she addressed William, "What a ridiculous argument!"

She locked eyes with him and enunciated every word with precision, "My surname is Green. I am the daughter of Samuel Green and Madeline Ryan, with no ties to Mr. Bennett!"

William's lips trembled uncontrollably.

He had never imagined that Madelyn would despise him to such an extent that she would refuse to acknowledge him as her real father.

His trembling hands reached into his pocket and retrieved a document -a DNA test confirming the biological relationship between William Bennett and Madelyn Green.

He choked up, "With this undeniable evidence, can you still refute our family ties?"

Madelyn took the paper from him.

She chuckled softly: "I finally understand why my mother chose to leave you, Mr. Bennett. While we may share genes, there is no familial bond between us. Furthermore, as Eleanor's father, I hate you! As for our relationships with Benjamin, have you cared about my loss when you plead for Eleanor?"

"Mr. Bennett, please do not disturb my mother's eternal rest. She had Samuel Green, and that was enough. My father loved her unconditionally." Madelyn added.

Madelyn locked eyes with William, fierce and unwavering.

Then she ripped the test report into tiny fragments, just as her birth had nothing to do with William Bennett, with only Samuel Green's tender care evident.

William stepped back and his face ashen.

He finally realized the insignificance of his presence in Madelyn's life.

He believed that uncovering the truth about Madelyn's birth would lead to a warm reconciliation with Eleanor and forge unbreakable sisterly bonds.

But now his naive hopes had been shattered!

Madelyn's eyes fluttered closed, saying in a gentle but resolute voice, "Please ask Ms. Bennett to leave with you, Mr. Bennett! Otherwise, I will not hesitate to take legal action against both of you. And please, do take care of your daring daughter and make sure she doesn't cause any more trouble!"

"As for myself, I will always cherish the Green surname." She added.

Madelyn's heart pounded in her chest, and her emotional turmoil left her feeling dizzy.

Within just two weeks, so much dramatic experience drove her finally to succumb to unconsciousness...

Chapter 180 Do You Know How Much She Has Lost

Hospital.

In the white ward, Madelyn lay quietly while the doctor looked helpless.

"Mrs. Logan, there's nothing physically wrong with your daughter, but she subconsciously doesn't want to wake up, so all we can do is wait!"

Vivian supported Camila.

Camila was extremely panicked, "So there's no medical method to wake her up?"

The doctor shook his head.

He hesitated for a moment and said, "The patient has been experiencing intense emotional fluctuations recently, so perhaps it would be good for her to rest for a while."

Camila wasn't sure if the doctor's words were good or bad, and she remained worried.

Vivian was also concerned about Madelyn, but she tried to comfort Camila first, "There should be no major problems. Let Madelyn sleep for another day or two."

Camila nodded tearfully.

She brought a basin of hot water and silently wiped Madelyn's hands.

Vivian looked at those slender fingers, her eyes becoming sore. Camila didn't know that Madelyn could never be a pianist again!

She wiped away her tears, and Grayson approached with a prescription in hand.

He lowered his voice, "Why are you crying? Madelyn is fine lying here. Stop crying. It's unlucky!"

Vivian glanced at him, "I'm just sad!"

Grayson hugged her.

He didn't tell her that earlier at the pharmacy, he saw Jackson accompanying Elizabeth for a check-up, and their sweetness made him sick!

But it was OK. If Jackson didn't cheat, he didn't have a chance to pursue Vivian.

Grayson comforted Camila a few more words. Camila knew he was Bryson's cousin, so she felt somewhat uneasy.

moment, footsteps could be heard at the came over, wearing unpleasant expressions, especially Constance who appeared particularly extremely awkward. Camila carefully placed Madelyn's hands under the blanket and spoke coldly, "Mr.
Bennett, what are you here for? Don't you think your at Madelyn.
there quietly, as if smiled bitterly, "The doctor said she doesn't want to wake up.
"I arrange a you she
"Our Eleanor unintentionally hurt her because Vivian coldly sneered.
to others just because of a bad mood? Mrs. Carson, Eleanor held her position.
"Madelyn holds a grudge because of Benjamin, right? Actually, she hasn't lost anything substantial.
scolded, "Constance, enough!"
then William softened his voice and said to Camila, "Madelyn is my flesh and blood. The family knows about it now, and my mother really wants to meet her granddaughter! Mrs. Logan, I hope you can persuade Madelyn to return his talent.
Eleanor couldn't compare to her!
She didn't want to hinder the say, "Mr.
William frowned.
Benjamin happened to arrive. He received news that Madelyn was rushed to she had found a savior. "Ben, just look at Ms. Green's family. They have no manners at all! Madelyn grew up in such an environment, and I provoked, hoping to reunite hand and looked looked at him, then glanced at William and Constance. She sneered, back. "Vivian,

welled up in

Madelyn nothing but weeds? Samuel and Camila

she pointed at

It's impossible! It will never happen! That night, Madelyn not only lost Samuel, but she also injured her nerve in her foot. She can't drive anymore, and she can't become a top musician! She admired you since she was little. She could use her hands skillfully, just like you. She inherited your talent, but it's because of your selfishness that she lost for the last time before he passed away. Do you know how so much.

...

Trembling, Vivian said, "Tell me, what will you compensate her with?"

Mr. Bennett's face turned pale!

What... She can't play the piano anymore!

William, renowned worldwide, wanted nothing more than a talented disciple. Eleanor had limited talent and could never be his successor. God knows how happy he was when he found out Madelyn was his child.

He had watched videos of Madelyn playing the piano. The child was so polished, destined for greatness!

William was in agonizing pain!

Equally shocked was Benjamin. His handsome face tightened, and he quietly clenched his fists.

He remembered their last meeting when he asked her if she would go to Edoford. Madelyn said she would never go again. It turns out it wasn't because she had no dreams anymore, but because her dreams were shattered.

She couldn't even drive anymore!

Benjamin struggled to speak, "I want to see her."

Vivian's eyes turned red. "Benjamin, Madelyn least wants to see you!"

...Madelyn least wants to see you!

Benjamin never knew a sentence could hurt him so deeply. It pierced his heart like a thorn, causing unbearable pain. He wanted to pull it out, but he couldn't!

He didn't force his way into the ward.

He just looked through the crack in the door at Madelyn, who was lying there quietly, just as obedient as when she used to lay in his arms, not speaking a word...

In a hoarse voice, Benjamin said, "At the very least, let me have an expert team take care of her."

A man like him rarely stooped so low, but now he sincerely said to Vivian, "I just want to make it up to her!"

Vivian was stubborn.

Grayson held her back. "Don't be impulsive. The most important thing right now is for her to wake up!"

When he spoke to Benjamin, he put on a different face and smiled, "Benjamin, Vivian is being unreasonable. I apologize to you on her behalf. Madelyn's matter is in your hands."

Benjamin didn't say anything.

He just watched Madelyn, hoping she would wake up and hold her in his arms again.

He wanted to ask her to give him another chance, and he wouldn't let her down again!