

Chapter 192

Alyssa felt aggrieved when she thought of how light she had been eating these past few days!

She was more worried about suffering the two children in her belly.

She touched her belly. Although her belly was still flat, she knew that two precious little lives were in there.

Watching Alyssa stroke her belly, Leon loved her so much.

The two people who were in love could tolerate all of each other's flaws. He even thought that Alyssa's toes looked very cute.

He now only had one thought, and that was to carry Alyssa home, and then, shut the door, and stay with her for three days and three nights.

No, it should be five days and five nights.

Leon felt good just thinking about it.

Therefore, he directly walked to Alyssa and said, "I agree to your request. Let's go home after we eat the meat."

"Okay!"

Alyssa heard Leon's words and started to gorge herself.

Watching Alyssa eat so happily, Leon suddenly felt that the way of eating didn't seem to be that important.

But he didn't expect Alyssa to forget about him immediately after she returned home.

He only saw her rush to the room where the two bunnies were.

Leon walked to the door and watched Alyssa coaxing the bunnies, very unhappy.

Was he less important than a rabbit?

However, the way she coaxed the bunnies was too cute. He couldn't bear to disturb her.

Leon stood at the door looking at Alyssa and couldn't move his feet.

He also comforted himself in his heart. Forget it, since she loved bunnies so much, he would not bother with her. The bunnies did look pretty cute.

After she coaxed the bunnies, she should coax him.

Then, he thought wrong again!

Alyssa finally stopped fiddling with the two bunnies.

She started fiddling with her ancient books!

She looked so serious. She looked through each book, then picked out a few and found a box to put the books in.

Then, she put the rest of the books back.

Leon was finally relieved to see that she had put the other books back.

Now, it was time for her to pay attention to him!

However, she still didn't.

Not only did she not look back at him, but she walked away from him.

Leon simply chased out and took Alyssa's hand, "Alyssa."

Alyssa heard Leon's voice and turned her head to look at him.

"What are you doing here?"

Leon frowned. He had been standing here for a long time. How could he only be seen now?

Seeing that Leon didn't say anything, Alyssa got a little anxious, "Why don't you say anything?"

"I've been standing here for a long time and you didn't even notice me. Alyssa, you played with the bunnies for a while, and then you went to work on these ancient books. Now you've got everything done. When are you going to let me spend some time with you?"

Alyssa looked at Leon, outwardly calm, but inwardly feeling amused. It turned out that Leon was also so clingy sometimes.

"So, I was tricked by you when I promised you to come back." Leon came up to Alyssa and gently kissed her earlobe. She immediately dodged and her little ears turned red, both sensitive and cute.

Knowing that Alyssa would hide, Leon hurriedly hugged her, "Don't go."

Alyssa suddenly couldn't move.

"You're holding me so tight." Alyssa frowned. He actually held her so tightly. It was so hard for her to even move.

"Come with me to the bedroom and I'll let you go." Leon wrapped himself around Alyssa like a child.

Alyssa smiled and nodded.

Soon, they went to the bedroom.

The bedroom.

They lay on the big bed.

Alyssa hid. Watching Leon staring at her, she said, "You just kissed me for so long. You can't kiss me anymore. If you keep kissing me, it might be inappropriate."

"Why?"

"Don't you want that?"

Leon was a little tickled at Alyssa's words.

Of course, he wanted to, but not now.

When she was discharged from the hospital, the doctor had specifically instructed him.

They couldn't do that.

He thought of the doctor's words and instantly gave up.

Alyssa said softly, "You look pretty tired these days. Let's go to bed!"

"I'll be able to spend more time with you when I finish my work." Leon knew that he had spent less time with Alyssa during this period.

"I'm in much better health now. You just don't worry about me. It's getting late. Let's go to bed!"

"Okay."

They turned off the lights and lay on the bed. Neither of them spoke.

Time flew by.

In a flash, Alyssa was already four months pregnant.

Alyssa felt that it was time to go for her maternity checkup, so she decided to go to the hospital alone.

However, she didn't expect her thoughts to be discovered.

Leon put off all his meetings and personally took Alyssa to the hospital for her maternity checkup.

Since she had made an appointment with the hospital before, she finished the checkup quickly.

The result showed that everything was normal. Alyssa had gained some weight from eating so much recently. From the side view, her belly was slightly more visible.

The doctor said a lot and gave Alyssa some materials about the nutritional diet.

Alyssa didn't take them seriously, but Leon held them in his arms like treasures.

They had just left the hospital when Leon's phone rang.

After Leon answered the phone, his face turned grim. Alyssa knew that the company was in trouble.

"Anyway, I'm done with the checkup, and I'm fine. Why don't you go to the office first! I'll just go back by myself."

"It's better for me to accompany you."

"No, I can go back by myself. Go ahead and do your work."

Hearing Alyssa's words, Leon didn't push back and turned around to leave.

Only after watching Leon drive away did Alyssa turn around and leave. She had just taken a few steps when she heard the sound of arguing behind her.

She subconsciously stopped because the sound of the argument was familiar.

As soon as she turned around, she saw Kelly.

And there was a man in front of Kelly. She remembered that man. He seemed to be Kelly's ex-husband.

Alyssa thought it was Kelly's private business and she'd better stay out of it.

She was about to leave when she saw the man raise his hand and slap Kelly.

Kelly was immediately knocked to the ground.

Seeing the man approaching Kelly, even showing a vicious and disdainful gaze, Alyssa couldn't help herself and walked over quickly.

The man raised his fist and wanted to hit Kelly again when he felt his fist being held down. He couldn't move at all. Turning his head, he saw a strange woman.

"Who are you? Let go of me!"

"You're bullying my friend, and you want to tell me to let go! Get lost, or I'll call the police. There's enough to put you in jail for a few days for assault."

"You're scaring me?"

Alyssa took out her phone and called the police directly.

When the man saw that Alyssa had really called the police, he turned around and ran away in fear.

Alyssa turned around and helped Kelly up.

Kelly just stood up, hugged Alyssa, and cried on her shoulder.

"Don't cry. You know that crying won't help. What's wrong?"

"Alyssa, help me, okay? I'm begging you to help me."

Alyssa originally wanted to ask what was going on. But hearing Kelly's sobs, she could only say yes and tell her to stop crying. The way she cried was too heartbreaking.

"Okay, don't cry. There's a cafe up ahead. I'll buy you a glass of lemon water. Let's go over and sit down. You can tell me what's going on."

Hearing Alyssa's calm voice, Kelly quickly calmed down.

Feeling people around her looking at her, she immediately wiped away her tears and followed Alyssa to the cafe.

Cafe.

Alyssa ordered a glass of apple juice for Kelly.

She ordered a glass of Lemon water.

They sat face to face.

Kelly's eyes were slightly swollen, but they were no longer red.

Alyssa watched as Kelly regained her composure and asked softly, "You're supposed to be working at Sky at this time, aren't you?"

"Something happened and I had to quit."

Alyssa nodded, "Is it hard for you to bring up the kids by yourself?"

Kelly nodded. She looked up at Alyssa with her eyes red again, "I wanted to give my children to their father, but their father said he didn't want them. I have no choice. Alyssa, what do you think I should do?"

"Why do you suddenly want to give the children to their father?"

Alyssa was now a mother too.

She knew what it felt like to love her children.

If she didn't have to, Kelly shouldn't give her children to others.

At first, Kelly could work several jobs for her children. Now, Sky's situation was much better, not so much that she had no way to raise her children.

She thought that Kelly must have encountered something.

Kelly nodded at Alyssa's words and said, "I can't raise them anymore. They are suffering with me. Their father's financial situation is better than mine, so he should be able to raise them."

"But he doesn't want girls. Do you think your children will have a good life with him?"

"I don't know."

Tears fell from Kelly's eyes.

Alyssa could see that Kelly knew.

She must be in pain to give her children to that man. Otherwise, how could a mother do such a thing?

"Kelly, what's wrong?"

"Alyssa, I'm sick. I have lung cancer. The doctor said I don't need treatment at all."

Kelly looked at Alyssa with tears falling down her face.

"Bullshit!" Alyssa grabbed a tissue and wiped Kelly's tears, "It must be a misdiagnosis."

Kelly shook her head, "I've been uncomfortable for a long time, but for the sake of my children, I haven't gone to the hospital. A few days ago, I fainted at work. When I went to the hospital for a checkup, I was already in the late stage of my cancer. Alyssa, I don't have much time left. You're right. I can work hard for my children. Even if it's hard, I can keep going, but I'm dying. If I die, what will happen to my children? I didn't want to see my children unattended, so I went to beg him, but he didn't believe me at all. I asked him to come with me to the hospital for the test and he saw the result, but he still didn't believe me. Alyssa, what should I do?"

To be continued