

Chapter 196

"Miss, Kelly has mentioned you. Thank you for helping Kelly. We didn't know that Kelly was sick. If we had known, we would have sold everything to cure her. She didn't listen to us and had to be with that man. Now, he doesn't want her anymore. She's all alone with her two children."

Ruby's eyes were red with sadness as she thought of her poor daughter.

Tony Wilson patted Ruby's shoulder, "Come on! Let's go and deal with her affairs. Let's go!"

Tony's body swayed as he said "let's go" twice in a row.

He saw that Ruby did not move, so he turned around and walked forward. Suddenly, his body swayed. He fell to the ground.

Ruby rushed to help him. They just sat on the ground and cried.

Their child was gone.

She used to be their baby girl, but she just went away alone.

Alyssa felt very sad as she heard their cries. Her eyes got red and she cried too.

Leon saw Alyssa crying and hurriedly pulled her into his arms, "Don't cry."

"What about Kelly's parents after she's gone? What about the two kids? Her two daughters are so cute and only two months old."

Alyssa felt even worse when she thought of Kelly's children, who were just over two months old and had no one to care for them.

She was about to become a mother, too. And, she was pregnant with twins, too. The children would touch the softest part of her heart.

She suddenly lost control and cried even more.

Leon panicked when he saw Alyssa's incessant tears.

He used his sleeve to wipe Alyssa's tears. At this moment, he simply didn't have the calmness of the president. His cold eyes became tender.

"Leon, what should they do?"

"There will be a way. Don't cry. Alyssa, don't cry."

Leon looked at Alyssa, whose eyes were red, and pulled Alyssa into his arms. He coaxed her carefully. The way she cried made him heartbroken.

Under Leon's comfort, Alyssa soon calmed down.

With Tony and Ruby's help, Kelly's funeral was in order.

The problem of the house was solved. However, Kelly had few friends, and few came to pay their respects.

Three days passed quickly.

Kelly's funeral was done.

Tony and Ruby became even thinner. They looked so weak that they seemed like they would fall when the wind blew.

The two children were temporarily in Ruby's care, but Ruby was clearly not very energetic when it came to childcare. She had to take care of two children at the same time by herself. The children cried a lot without their mother. Whenever they cried, Ruby cried with them.

When Alyssa came in, she just saw Ruby crying with the children.

Watching the two children's faces turn red from crying, Alyssa picked up one child and then gently patted the other with one hand. Surprisingly, in a short time, they stopped crying.

Looking down at the two babies with big eyes looking up at her, Alyssa suddenly felt an indescribable joy.

She gently patted the two children's backs, and the two children suddenly smiled at her.

They smiled almost simultaneously.

Alyssa couldn't help but smile at them.

"Aunt, look! They're smiling at me!" Alyssa grabbed Ruby's hand, unable to suppress her inner surprise, "They're so cute! Look, they're smiling at me. They must like me."

Ruby looked at her two granddaughters and saw them smiling too.

She had never seen them smile even though she had been taking care of them for so long.

Now, they were smiling!

The smiles of the children were innocent.

Alyssa looked up and noticed that Ruby had stopped crying. She smiled at Ruby, "It's all over. We have to move on! Aunt, look, they are smiling at us!"

Ruby heard Alyssa's words and nodded. But, her eyes were red again.

How could she be strong when her daughter had left this world so alone?

No one understood her.

She shed silent tears with red eyes and shook her head at Alyssa. She really could not stand it anymore, especially when she looked at the two children.

Those two children looked too much like her daughter.

But her daughter was gone ...

"Aunt, don't cry." It was really hard for Alyssa to watch Ruby cry.

"If I could, I could die for her. Kelly is only thirty. She still has a long way to go. Why did she go first? Why am I such a failure as a mother? I can't even protect my daughter. It's all my fault, it's my fault."

Ruby couldn't help but break down and cry when she thought of her dead daughter.

Such pressure was too much.

She felt like she couldn't take it anymore.

She really couldn't take it anymore.

Alyssa looked at the way Ruby broke down and put the baby down and hugged Ruby, "Don't cry, Aunt. Kelly is my best friend. Kelly is gone, and I will take care of you. You still have me and Kelly's children. If you cry like this, the children will also cry with you. If Kelly sees this, how can she go in peace?"

Ruby was hugged.

Her fragile heart seemed to be comforted.

She soon hugged Alyssa and her sobs went from loud to low. She had gradually calmed down.

"Aunt, you still have me. So, don't cry. You must take care of yourself."

"I know. I'm sorry, I'm just so sad. It's good that Kelly has a friend like you. I thought she had no friends left for that man. Luckily, she still has you as a friend."

Ruby wiped the tears off her face.

She knew she had just caused trouble for Alyssa. Seeing that Alyssa's clothes were all wrinkled from her scratching, she looked at Alyssa apologetically, "I'm sorry for getting your clothes dirty. Let me get it cleaned for you!"

Alyssa shook her head, "No, as long as you're okay, I'm relieved. You and uncle must be well. Don't worry. I will take care of you in the future. What I just said is all from my heart. In the future, your business is my business. I mean it."

Alyssa didn't know if she was doing the right thing.

She truly thought so, and she did so.

Just play it by ear.

Ruby nodded, "Okay, but I and Tony can still take care of ourselves. We're just not strong enough, but we'll be fine for sure."

"That's good. As the kids grow up, everything will be fine."

The kids would grow up.

Everything would be okay, too.

Ruby smiled at Alyssa's words. She seemed to really see the future, "You're right. It's definitely going to be okay."

Alyssa nodded. Taking care of the children with Ruby, she felt that time had slowed down a bit.

The evening of that day.

Alyssa returned to the villa.

She ran into Leon.

When she saw Leon, she said, "Why are you off work so early today?"

"Look what time it is."

Alyssa took a look at the time. It was almost summer, and it was still bright in the evening at five or six o'clock. She hadn't driven Leon to and from work in a long time, so she was confused about the time.

Alyssa looked at Leon apologetically.

"I haven't been able to take care of you lately. It's my fault. I apologize to you."

"What are you apologizing to me for?"

"Hmm."

Alyssa also felt that she had made a big deal out of it. Seeing that Leon seemed to be in a good mood today, she was also in a pretty good mood.

Her belly started to get bigger now.

She was only four and a half months pregnant. Other pregnant women only had a slightly bulging belly, but Alyssa was different. She looked like she was five or six months pregnant.

Leon helped Alyssa, and she was a little unhappy, "I can still walk. I feel fine now. Don't worry about me. Besides, I look like a cripple when you help me walk. How inappropriate would it be for someone to take pictures of you?"

"Who would take pictures of me?"

Leon laughed.

He was not a star.

Alyssa stood on her tiptoes slightly. When she turned her head, her lips brushed against Leon's ear, and suddenly Leon couldn't move.

He had held back for so long.

Because of a kiss, he just couldn't hold it anymore.

Alyssa still wanted to talk. But as she leaned into Leon, she sensed that something was wrong with his body. She lowered her head and blushed. She turned to leave, but Leon grabbed her wrist tightly, "You want to leave just after you tease me. You and I fit together like the positive and negative poles of a magnet. Humans are really the smartest in this world."

Leon couldn't help but sigh.

Some people were just perfect for each other.

For example, he and Alyssa.

Alyssa naturally knew what Leon meant by that.

She instantly blushed.

"It's been so long anyway. Can we do that thing now?"

"Hmm."

Alyssa nodded.

Leon picked up Alyssa directly and took her to the room.

Then he locked the door.

An hour later.

Alyssa leaned into Leon's arms and refused to come out.

Her stomach rumbled.

"I'm hungry. I want to eat chicken legs."

"I'll get them now!"

Leon didn't dare to slight his precious wife. Looking at Alyssa's face, he was a little nervous, "Did I just hurt you?"

It did hurt, but Alyssa shook her head.

Leon had restrained himself for the sake of the children.

She knew that.

"Really?" Leon came up to Alyssa's little head, "Don't lie to me."

"I'm not lying to you. You're not that reckless. Besides, you know I'm pregnant, so you won't use too much force."

Alyssa was right.

He really didn't dare to push too hard.

He was worried about hurting Alyssa.

"I'm really hungry." Alyssa covered her stomach and looked at Leon with aggravation.

To be continued