

Chapter 220

"When our babies are born, we'll have four babies. We'll be a big family. I feel so happy just thinking about it. Leon, I walked by the Obstetrics and Gynecology department when I discharged you from the hospital today and saw two newborn babies swimming. They are so smart. Should we get a place where babies can swim too? That way, we don't have to take them out for a swim."

"It's all up to you."

"Then tomorrow I'll choose a place."

"Okay."

As long as Alyssa was happy, Leon didn't care if the whole villa was torn down.

Alyssa was happy because of this. He was about to say something when he heard Alyssa's even breathing.

He did not expect Alyssa to fall asleep so quickly. It seemed that Alyssa was really exhausted these days.

Leon lowered his head and kissed her forehead like he always did.

Feeling the fragrant smell of her forehead, he couldn't resist kissing her for a while longer.

As a result, Alyssa was woken up by his kiss.

"Why haven't you gone to bed yet? It's already very late. You just got home and you didn't follow the hospital's routine. I'll send you back to the hospital tomorrow."

"No, I want to stay with you."

Leon started to pout again.

Alyssa laughed and nodded, "Well, whatever you want."

Oh, my God!

What did she say?

He hadn't said anything yet?

Looking down, Leon realized that Alyssa had fallen asleep again.

Leon watched Alyssa fall asleep and the corners of his mouth lifted slightly, "What a little piggy."

In the blink of an eye.

The leaves on the trees turned green.

Alyssa went to the window and looked out. The lavender she had planted earlier was vibrant now. The big trees at the outside yard sprouted green leaves and surrounded the whole small yard.

Seeing that Alyssa hadn't moved, Leon walked up to her and asked softly, "What's wrong?"

"Nothing, I just feel that time flies. This place is different from before in the blink of an eye. When I came to see this place the other day, it was still bare."

"Your belly is so big, of course, time flies. Silly girl, what are you thinking?"

"I just think that our life is so good now. I'm a little sad to let the time pass by like this. By the way, Leon, I have to go home in the next few days. My grandpa called me yesterday and said he wanted to see me. He probably misses me."

"Your parents just came to see you the other day, didn't they?"

Leon was a little unhappy. Grandpa Graham had come to see Alyssa just a few days before, but why did he call Alyssa back now?

Alyssa turned her head and saw Leon's unhappy face. She whispered, "You don't want me to go back?"

"Do you have to go back? Do we have a bad time here?" Leon looked at Alyssa's stern gaze and whispered, "I didn't mean that. The situation now ... Well, I just don't want you to go back. Your belly is so big now. The doctor said last time that you should rest at home. But you have never been at home to rest."

"I stay at home every day, don't I? My grandpa is old and just misses me. If Grandpa Hunter calls me and says he misses me and asks me to come back, I should say no?"

"My grandpa wouldn't say that!"

"That's because you wouldn't allow your grandpa to say that!"

Alyssa had long seen through Leon's mind.

Leon frowned and sat on the side without saying anything.

Looking at Leon sitting on the side like he was angry, Alyssa couldn't help but laugh.

When did he become so petty that he was even jealous of her grandpa?

As she thought about it, she felt that it might be her fault. She didn't give Leon enough security. So, she turned around and hugged Leon, "Is it that I haven't given you enough security lately? My belly is so big. How could I leave you? Don't think nonsense!"

Leon looked at Alyssa's belly and lowered his head with some embarrassment. He turned around and walked away.

Alyssa stood still and looked at Leon's back. She couldn't help but frown, "You're busy every day, aren't you? You have to work until midnight every day. I haven't complained that you don't have time for me!"

Alas!

Alyssa sighed.

This man seemed to be a little tense these days.

Sometimes when she woke up at night, she would see him staring at her.

When she asked him why he didn't go to sleep, he didn't tell her why, but just watched her silently.

It was not until she hugged him that he could fall asleep peacefully beside her.

Men could not get pregnant, so what did he worry about?

Worry?

Alyssa thought of this and suddenly froze.

Leon had always been fine. Why would he be worried?

There must be a reason for him being worried.

Alyssa began to think back to Leon's recent performance. She said two days ago that she wanted to build a small swimming pool, exclusively for children. Originally, Leon agreed to it. She hired all the workers, but just when they were about to start, Leon suddenly said they couldn't do it and sent all those workers back.

Also, Leon did not allow her to go out recently. Every time she needed to go out, Leon would stop her.

Leon was so strange, but she only noticed that he was not right now.

Leon must have something on his mind lately, possibly because of Colton.

Colton?

He was back so soon?

Alyssa immediately got nervous thinking about Colton. She hurriedly went to Leon.

"What happened? You don't seem right lately. You don't have to hide it from me."

"Nothing happened. Don't worry about it." Leon saw Alyssa's pale face and regretted the way he treated Alyssa just now, "I was just too nervous. The doctor called me earlier. He said that it was your first time to be pregnant with twins, and although you are still in good health, you need to be more careful. I am worried that something will go wrong with your body."

"Is that so?"

Leon was worried that Alyssa didn't believe him and took out his phone to show Alyssa the record of the doctor's call with him yesterday.

"Look, we talked for almost half an hour or so, all about you. You can't move around right now. Alyssa, can you promise to stay home until your delivery?"

Leon looked at Alyssa expectantly.

Alyssa glanced at his phone. It was indeed the doctor's call, and they did communicate for half an hour.

Alyssa should believe Leon, but when she looked into Leon's eyes, she suddenly didn't believe him.

"You're telling me the truth, right? I don't feel right. You're not hiding anything from me, are you?"

"I'm telling you the truth. Are you even suspicious of me now? It seems that I'm not good enough to make you believe me!"

Alyssa could hear Leon's reluctance to talk about it.

Since he didn't want to talk about it, she shouldn't force him.

"I see. I promise you to try not to go out, but I already promised my grandpa. So I'm still going to see my grandpa tomorrow."

"Okay."

Leon nodded and smiled at Alyssa.

Alyssa looked into Leon's eyes and felt his eyes always twinkle. That twinkle held a distinct uncertainty. This feeling made Alyssa a little uneasy.

She hadn't spent much time with Leon, but she knew him well.

That night, they didn't talk much at dinner.

Wendy didn't come out for dinner because she had to take care of the two children.

The maid he had promised to hire never came.

Alyssa realized that Leon had closed the villa.

She felt this villa had turned into a prison.

Alyssa ate her chicken leg and watched Leon carefully.

Leon didn't speak and ate quietly. He didn't even notice the sauce on his mouth.

Alyssa felt as if Leon had lost his soul.

He really had something on his mind!

Alyssa was sure that something was wrong. But she didn't call Leon's bluff and continued to eat.

Early the next morning.

Alyssa went to the Graham's after driving Leon to work.

She soon noticed that there were cars following her car.

There were some people following her, but she recognized them as Leon's men.

Leon had sent his bodyguards to follow her.

He probably didn't want to follow her, but to protect her.

Leon must want to protect her.

But what had happened? Why did he send so many bodyguards to protect her?

Alyssa felt more and more that something was wrong. She concentrated on driving in the direction of the Graham's.

Ten minutes later, the Graham's.

Alyssa was called into the study by her grandpa as soon as she walked into the house.

Alyssa looked at her grandpa's mysterious look and couldn't help but smile, "Grandpa, what's wrong? Do we have to be so secretive when we talk?"

"Of course, I have something important to tell you. How are you feeling now?"

"I'm fine."

Alyssa felt good.

Milo looked at Alyssa and nodded, "Ever since Colton kidnapped you and Leon last time, I'm worried about Leon and you. Even though you guys got out of Bangkok Clubhouse unharmed last time, I still asked your dad to send some people to protect you near your villa."

"Grandpa, after the fire at the detention center, Colton was nowhere to be found, but I don't think he will be back so soon. However, you are also right. I feel that Leon is always tense as if something has happened."

"Alyssa, you and Leon better get out of here because Colton has been ambushing you with his men. He might do anything at any moment."

"What's he going to do?"

"He might want to take Leon away or kill him. After all, so many things have happened before. Those things really angered him."

Alyssa stayed still as she heard grandpa's words.

She had seen how crazy Colton was. If Colton came for real this time, he might really hurt Leon.
