

The Charismatic Charlie Wade Chapter 3801

At the same time, the pirate leader who hijacked the Xinglong waited at the base camp for more than an hour, but did not wait for any response from Ys Shipping.

This indifferent attitude of Ys Shipping is the first time he has encountered it in his 20 years of pirate work.

Moreover, he had been a pirate for 20 years, and for the first time he grabbed a ship of such a large tonnage, and was ignored by the owner, which made him lose patience immediately.

He paced back and forth in his headquarters, swearing in his mouth: "Is this Ys shipping frightened? Otherwise, why doesn't it respond to my request now?"

A soldier holding an AK next door said: "Boss, I guess they want to drag it for a while, and go back to bargain."

"Bargain?" The pirate leader sneered disdainfully: "This is a big ship, with nearly 20,000 containers loaded to Europe. I don't know how many good things are in it. They don't even want to cut down a penny! If you don't pay. Money, I just opened the nearly 20,000 containers!"

The soldier said embarrassingly: "Boss, our terminal has a crane, which can only lift one container at a time. How can we get down more than 20,000 containers..."

The pirate leader smiled and said: "It's not easy? When the time comes, I will open the boxes directly at the sea! The valuables will be left behind and the boxes will be thrown into the sea. As for those worthless, I will just throw away the boxes with the goods. Go into the sea!"

The soldier said excitedly: "With so many boxes, I don't know if I can get anything good!"

The pirate leader sneered: "Don't worry, there must be many good things, maybe there will be a batch of Porsche sports cars!"

Another soldier nearby said hurriedly: "Boss, that ship went to Europe from China, but the Porsche is made in Europe, so the possibility of a Porsche on the ship is almost zero."

The pirate leader slapped him and cursed: "Damn, I made you talk more?! You know a lot, don't you?"

The soldier who was slapped in the face immediately backed away a few steps, bowing his head with aggrieved expression.

At this time, the Xinglong, which was hijacked by his subordinates, suddenly received news via radio.

On the radio, a strange man said, "Which is Badr? Let him talk to me."

The pirate leader was stunned for a moment, frowned and said: "Who is talking?!"

A signal soldier guarding the radio station shook his head blankly, and said: "It seems to be sent from the Huaxia freighter that was kidnapped by us... and the voice is not ours..."

"Damn!" Buddleton, the pirate leader, scolded angrily: "Did their brains be eaten by dogs? Why did they reveal my name to others?"

With that said, he had walked up to the radio station, reached out and picked up the intercom, and asked in a cold voice: "Are you guys kidnapping a ship for the first time?! Why let a hostage talk to me directly?!"

There was a sneer on the other side of the radio, and then the other party said with full coercion: "I want to inform you that your eight subordinates have been controlled by the Wanlong Palace, and two of them have been stubbornly resisted and have now been arrested. We shot the remaining six people, you must immediately ransom them with six million dollars, otherwise, you will be at your own risk!"

"What?!" Badr was stunned, and immediately cursed: "Who the hell are you? You dare to do something to my people. I think you are tired of living, right?!"

The other party said coldly: "I said, I belong to the Wanlong Palace. I know Somalia is very backward, but you haven't even heard of the Wanlong Palace, have you?"

Only then did Badr come back to his senses, and his heart was shocked.

He didn't expect that the famous Wanlong Palace in the mercenary world would have something to do with the cargo ship he hijacked. He subconsciously asked, "What does my business have to do with your Wanlong Palace?"

The other party said coldly: "The Wanlong Palace has now officially begun armed escort in the Gulf of Aden. If your people dare to attack the freighter escorted by the Wanlong Palace, then our Wanlong Palace will never be soft!"