

Chapter 513

Evelin sat up strongly and shook her head, "Nothing, just a little dizzy."

Emotion saw that she didn't look quite normal, and curiously reached out and probed her forehead.

"Yah, Miss Evelin you have a fever."

Evelin was stunned and a little surprised, and also reached out to touch her forehead.

But since she had a fever of her own and her body was hot, she didn't feel much to touch herself.

It was just so dizzy that even seeing seemed to be a blur.

Little Emotion got anxious and even wanted to call a doctor, but Evelin stopped him.

"Don't scream yet." She weakly reached out her hand to stop her, and thought, "You go and ask Director Liu for a leave of absence for me, and tell him that I won't return to the crew tonight, and go in private, so that not too many people can see, and we'll just go to the hospital by ourselves."

Emotion was still unsure, "But the way you look now..."

"It's okay, it's not a big deal, at most it just got cold in the water, and it's a special time, so it's not dead yet."

Emotion bit her lip and finally had to go along with it.

Emotion and Liu Ming explain the reason in private, but Liu Ming is reasonable and reasonable, but he has a problem with her for hiding the fact that she is not feeling well.

There was a big sense that Evelin had made him unintentionally evil.

Little Emotion didn't bother to pull any more strings with him, just based on the way he treated Evelin yesterday, and didn't think about why people didn't dare to say anything.

She rushed back, called her driver over, and soon accompanied Evelin to the hospital.

On the other hand, even though Little Love didn't make any noise, the news that Evelin had gone into the hospital after the scene was over still didn't go out of the way.

It's never a good idea to make a big deal out of something like a girl's aunt.

So, what we basically know is that Evelin filmed a scene in the water, was in the water for but a minute or two, and then went into the hospital.

Someone just had to shake their head and sigh.

Gee, a line of traffic is a line of traffic, it's so delicate.

I'm just afraid that the driver will have to drive faster, or else people will get sick before they get to the hospital.

Because in the afternoon Willow Jade also had a scene in the water, but the difference was that it was a scene where she was bathing by the water.

The advantage of this kind of play is that you don't have to fight or work too hard, you just have to sit in it.

The bad thing is that you spend a lot of time in the water, and it's outside, so it's still cold for a long time.

But Yoo Yoo still finished the scene perfectly, and even forced a few more on herself after the shoot, trying to pick the best one.

This was a world of difference from the morning when Evelin had several ng's before finally squeaking by.

Evelin has instantly changed from a beautiful little flower with a beautiful heart to a white lotus flower who cannot suffer and is manipulative and scheming.

And Yoo Yoo-il, who had been a tepid presence in the entertainment industry, had suddenly become a dedicated goddess in everyone's eyes.

Some people in private inevitably slurred, the entertainment industry is really an unreasonable place, some people work hard and diligently for ten years of filming, but not as good as others have a face to mix.

Who let this be the age of faces?

A kind of virtue unworthy of the position did not go unnoticed on the set and soon spread throughout the cast.

It only took a day for even the next-door crew to find out about the negative news about Evelin's grandstanding, bullying of her fellow actresses, and petty drama.

It just so happened that during this time, Nina Hua was filming a drama next door, which was also a drama about an ancient lady.

Listen.

This news is a bit of a surprise.

Because they knew that Evelin was an artist under Jenny Jing's hand, and besides, the two had been getting together several times before because of Jenny Jing's relationship.

There's nothing personal, but common friends can always be counted on.

When something like this happened, it was not good to ask Evelin face to face, so naturally, she had to mention it to Jenny.

Jenny has been completely reclusive since the birth.

She used to find filming fun, but since having Jing Ze, she still prefers to stay at home and be able to see her son at all times, rather than the more variable life on set.

Therefore, this period of time, she has been staying in Maple Bridge Villa, only every day to go to Anning International and Starlite to turn around, just like all have turned behind the scenes.

She was a little surprised when she received Nina Hua's call, and frowned once she finished what happened.

Because Kang Loyao has developed a familiarity with both the curry and business skills.

Awareness has also opened up and is now in a steady growth phase, so there is not much to worry about.

Jenny Jing also had to take care of the business on the Aning International side, and the energy she could spare was limited, so she left her business to Xiao He and Su Hong to take care of.

But I never thought that something like this would happen.

She thought about it and said, "I'm clear on that, and I'll have someone follow up on it."

Nina Hua saw the situation, so he didn't say anything more to her and hung up the phone.

After hanging up the phone, Jenny Jing immediately went to call Su Hong.

Su Hong was surprised to learn of this and should be able to check things out right away before telling her.

After all, it was just a bit of gossip, and after giving an account, Jenny didn't take it to heart.

In the meantime, there was some news from F that they had found an eyewitness to the original death of Old K. The witness was a man who had been killed by the police.

The other party claimed that he was passing by by accident and didn't witness K's death, but saw a man in a black leather jacket coming out of the building.

It was dark and there were no streetlights around because he didn't see the man's face too clearly.

It was only a vague recognition that the other man should be an Eastern man, not a Westerner.

This clue, while not exactly useful, at least gave Jenny some direction.

The more oriental group of people in F, aside from the Zijin family, is the Dragon Corps.

However, throughout Europe, there is another group that is usually easy to overlook.

That's the Chinese Society.

The group was founded in the early part of the last century, originally as a group of people who had sought refuge abroad at the time and formed a group to keep each other warm.

Later, when the war subsided and it became safe, the group did not disband, but went from being a mutually protective organization to being the head of a local club.

Because this group acts very quietly on a regular basis, few people will notice it.

And because of its large membership, there is a Chinese association almost wherever there are Chinese, which is extensive but actually very loose.

It's a group in name only, to put it mildly.

Because of this, people care even less.

On a normal day, it was also rare for anyone to talk about the organization that had been founded for hundreds of years, and even if it wasn't for this incident, Jenny wouldn't have remembered that there was such an organization.

She frowned, deep in thought.

She wasn't sure if the Chinese Society had anything to do with this incident, but if that murderer was Oriental, it was better to check from the Chinese Society than to find a needle in a haystack herself.

Chapter 514

Thinking this way, she told Biden Lu about it.

When Biden Lu got the news, he also thought that the idea she was thinking of was feasible, so he sent someone to F country overnight to go and contact the local Chinese Association.

On the other side, Evelin returned from the hospital.

Once back on the set, something felt off about the atmosphere.

That hostile, scrutinizing gaze was heavier than before.

At any rate, she had been in the circle for so many years, and the reason she had refused to let Emotion call the doctor to the crew before was because she was afraid that it would be too high-profile to attract gossip.

At this point, where else would you not be able to see what's going on?

It just so happened that Su Hong's call came in at this time, talking about the current situation, and Evelin knew that it was not good to hide it from her.

Along with the events of yesterday and today, they told her together.

Su Hong was a little surprised after hearing that.

"Willow Yuer? You're not the same curmudgeon or type as her, so why is she targeting you for no reason?"

Evelin sighed and lay down on the bed.

"If I knew why, I wouldn't be so passive."

When she said that, Su Hong was also a little hesitant, but let her think about it for half a day, she couldn't remember when Evelin had gotten in Liu Yu'er's way.

After all, Evelin is still young, but in her early twenties, and has only been popular for a year or two, and belongs to the flow of small flowers that are now steadily rising.

And Liu Yuer ten years into the industry, are thirty years old, the two from the appearance, temperament, take the route, style, are not a path.

If that was the case, why would she deliberately target, or even set up, Evelin?

One thing Su Hong didn't say was that within the circle, Liu Yu'er's wind rating was actually very good.

Unlike Song Jiajia, a domineering actress with a temper who can't act, Liu Yu'er is a true actress and has a sense of style, but she has been lukewarm all these years because she is unwilling to submit to the unspoken rules of this circle.

Otherwise, according to her strength, she actually should have been on fire a long time ago.

Su Hong thought so, and asked her for a few more details.

Evelin was actually a bit clouded on this matter, and even after careful recollection, she couldn't figure out when exactly she had offended the other party.

She could only helplessly shake her head and sigh, "Sister Su Hong, don't ask me, I really don't know, why don't I take some time to ask in person some other day?"

Su Rouge's mouth was agape and she rolled her eyes.

"Come on, people are targeting the door and you're still going to ask if it's not enough to touch a nose?"

Evelin smiled, and Su Hong saw that she couldn't ask anything from her, so she stopped asking questions and hung up the phone.

The next day, the scene management side sent someone early in the morning to remind Evelin that she had to leave early because today was a scene to be filmed in the mountains.

Evelin sleepily climbed up from the bed, after a night's rest, the fever had subsided and her body was comfortable, but it was fine.

Emo came over yawning, too, and the two of them packed up their things and went out with a black eye to climb into the nanny van the crew had prepared.

Because of the time crunch to catch the daylight, it was definitely too late to get to the site for makeup.

So the makeup artist was already waiting in the car so that you could do your makeup while you were on the road.

The good thing is that Evelin had already washed her face when she came out, and the road from here to the shooting location, except for the last part, is a relatively flat concrete road in front of her, so it's not difficult to put on makeup as it doesn't look bumpy.

.

The make-up artist traced her eyebrows first, and quickly put on an extremely British, old-fashioned makeup look.

Evelin looked at the mirror, quite satisfied, and looked at the time again, only six in the morning.

God knows what time the crew had to dig her out of bed.

Emotion saw that she was thoroughly done, took her breakfast out of the bag, and said, "Let's eat something to pad your stomach first."

Evelin nodded and gave breakfast to the makeup artist and the rest of the staff before grabbing a piece of bread to munch on.

She nibbled on bread as she opened the car's curtains.

Only a sparse white was hidden in the sky before it was light outside the window, and the icy autumn frost tinted the glass with a watery mist, so even without going outside, you could feel the biting cold outside.

"Is it cooling down today?"

I don't know who suddenly asked a question.

Little Emotion echoed, "It's down, yesterday it was fifteen degrees, today it's only seven or eight degrees, when I went out I saw the weather forecast and it said there would be heavy rain today."

A staff member frowned at that.

"There's a suspension bridge scene today, and if it's raining it's not going to be easy to shoot, so hopefully it'll be better to wait until it's done."

Evelin smiled, "Then if you come across the Dragon King Temple later, you'll have to worship it, otherwise how will people listen to you."

The staff member, though, really got a kick out of it.

"Don't tell me, there's a Dragon King Temple on the mountain, and if we pass by there later, I'll go down and pay my respects."

Everyone couldn't help but be amused by him.

It didn't take long to reach the mountains.

It was only six-thirty when we reached our destination.

The sky is still bright, there is a hazy line of fish belly white, the whole world is still in a deep sleep.

The wind is strong on the mountain, the temperature should be even colder, Xiao Emotion took a jacket from the bag and put it on Evelin, only then did the group head to the suspension bridge.

The props crew came in another car, a little earlier than they did, and by this time had all the lighting machines and other props ready to go.

Liu Ming had also arrived and was at this time directing the lighting crew to set up the scene.

Turning around and seeing Evelin arrive, he said, "You go first and familiarize yourself with the dialogue and script again, the weather is bad today, it's probably going to rain later, we'll finish filming early and finish early, it's not safe to spend time on this mountain."

Evelin nodded her head and responded, turning to the other side to recite her lines.

In fact, she had already memorized the lines, but since everyone was busy, she couldn't just stand around and watch.

The actor she's with today is a new actor, playing an attendant to a prince.

The scene is a woman, played by Kang Loyao, walking across a suspension bridge to meet the man across the street.

The man across the street is now kidnapped by the enemy and she must take her own life to keep him safe.

But the man, in fact, was not really a man, but someone else who the enemy had faked in order to lure her into a trap.

It wasn't quite a very silly scene, only an overdose, as the woman had actually figured out by this point that it wasn't really the man across the room.

It's just that if you don't enter the tiger's lair, Huma gets the tiger, and she wants to go over there and find out.

The plot, while it sounds complicated, is actually kind of simple to act out.

Chapter 515

Once everything was in place, the official shoot began.

Evelin headed to the suspension bridge in a long, aqua blue dress.

Across the street, a few bandits tied a young man, the young man had a mask on his face, they tied him back and put two knives on his neck, shouting at Evelin, "Only you are allowed to come alone, no weapons on your body, if you dare to disobey, I'll kill him right away!"

Evelin stood still on the bridge and sneered, "How am I sure you'll really let him go when I get here?"

The people on the other side were stunned, obviously not expecting her to dare make a deal with them at this point.

So the angry voice said, "I'll do what I say, and if you don't agree, I'll kill him right now."

It was well known that the Prince and Princess of Anyang City were very close and had been very much in love since their big wedding.

They were just certain that the Princess didn't dare to joke with the King's life, and that's why they threatened her so much.

However, it was Evelin who stood there, looking at them with a cold smile.

"Since it's a deal, both sides have to show sincerity, and I've come over here, but you guys won't even show half-heartedness. In my opinion, it's just some orbital deception. I don't need to come over, you can kill if you like, at worst, after he dies, I will also accompany him to martyrdom, and then can also fall in love with the reputation of deep affection. It's also better than being played by you."

I said, when I really stood still.

The kidnapers on the other side were confused when they looked at it, and didn't expect such a turn of events.

Seeing that Evelin seemed to have made up her mind, they were helpless and eventually had to take a step back.

"So what do you want?"

"Do you see this bridge?" Evelin pointed to the narrow and outdated suspension bridge at her feet, "This bridge is so narrow, you don't have to worry that I'll cheat if you trade on it, and I don't have to worry that you won't let anyone go."

"How about you bring him here, and when you release him, I'll go with you, I can't play any tricks in such a narrow space."

A few people across the room looked at each other, looked at each other, and finally, made a decision.

"Well, I'll trust you for a while!"

They said, and they began to move to the drawbridge with their people.

Evelin just stood there quietly, just waiting for the person across the street to come over.

On the shore on this side of the bridge, several machines were filming the whole picture from different directions.

And yet just then.

Those people had just stepped onto the suspension bridge when they suddenly heard a squeak.

Someone froze and stopped in their tracks.

Only a few boards on the side of the bridge suddenly fell off, followed by the ropes tied to the bridge board stinging la, broken open.

Everyone winced, and then all they heard was a stern cry, and someone hailed them and dragged them back.

"Danger, come back!"

The words crackled and popped, and the next thing I knew, the planks of the bridge were flying like broken wires.

Evelin was stunned for an instant, not realizing what was going on, only to find her feet empty.

She only had time to scream as her whole body suddenly lost weight, and in panic reached out and grabbed the twine on the handrail with great force before she felt a sudden dangling and her whole body slammed into the cliff wall.

"Evelin!"

"Evelin!"

"Sister Evelin!"

Countless shouts and screams rang out overhead, and Evelin only felt as if both of her arms had been torn apart, and her body was in a fiery pain.

She was in so much pain that she couldn't even speak, so she had to grip the rope in her hands.

At this moment, a thunderstorm suddenly exploded in the sky and heavy rain poured down.

Liu Ming saw that the situation was not right and shouted, "Save the people! Help!"

There was a sudden surge of soldiers.

And now, the other side.

Tailor Feng has inexplicably changed his temperament lately; he used to sleep at night and wouldn't get up until three or four in the afternoon the next day.

But lately, the basic daily routine has been very regular, waking up early in the morning and going to bed at midnight.

Everyone found it somewhat difficult to adjust to this change in him and there was always a sense that there were signs of a storm ahead.

Therefore, it's hard not to be a little cautious with him.

Instead, Tailor Feng seemed quite generous, not only did he not say that they were rare, he was also in a rare good mood today and brought them to climb the mountain.

When did a bunch of rich kids ever get up so early?

They said they were to be taken for entertainment, and when they were forcibly dug out of bed in the morning, one of them looked ugly not like he was going on a hike, but like he was going on a funeral run.

Tailor Feng didn't care about that, these people had to come if they wanted to or not anyway.

It was just a little depressing to find out that it was raining only halfway up the mountain.

Someone who couldn't stand the weather and still came hiking said with his shirt over his head, "It's raining, maybe we should go back."

Tailor Feng was a little sullen, and didn't know who he was holding his breath with, but he looked at the gloomy sky and said coldly, "Back to what? With all this rain, it's going to kill you if you get wet?"

That rich kid was almost on the verge of tears when he heard that.

The person next to him was also a bit overwhelmed by the sight and advised, "But it's definitely not a good idea to get drenched like this, and even if we don't go back, we need to find a place to get out of the rain first, otherwise we'll have to catch a cold if we get drenched like this."

This was immediately followed by many nods of agreement.

"Exactly."

"But it's deserted around here, where's the shelter from the rain."

Most of the people Tailor Feng called this time were the sons of some of the rich and powerful families in Kyoto, and a few were legitimately popular flow kids in the entertainment industry.

Everyone usually put in a lot of effort to squeeze into this circle, but today it was hard to get the chance to come out with Tailor Feng, so naturally they wouldn't let go of this opportunity.

It just didn't mean that they were willing to get wet with Tailor Feng.

Tailor Feng's face suddenly sank as he saw that no one was willing to go any further.

He said in a cold voice, "If you don't want to keep climbing, get back to your homes and pretend I haven't seen you today."

The crowd: "..."

It was clearly angry, and we all looked at each other for a moment.

A rich second generation who was usually close to Tailor Feng suddenly said, "I heard that there is a crew filming on the mountain today, they should have something to bring to shelter from the rain, why don't we go over and take a look?"

It's only natural for one person to come out and play the roundup.

Soon, someone stepped forward immediately.

"Yeah, I heard that too, it seems like they're picking scenery on that hill up ahead, so we'll go over there and it'll be a good time to see them shoot."

Tailor Feng frowned, the good mood of the day had all but disappeared now.

However getting drenched in the rain was nothing more than gaslighting, and since there was shelter from the rain on the mountain, it was natural to go over there.

Therefore, they took a group of people with them and headed in the direction of the crew in a big way.

