

Chapter 798

It was such an emergency that Ober followed suit.

He was equally worried when he knew it was Kitty Qiao who had been in trouble, and he was only more anxious if he didn't come out of the castle he had stayed in.

At this time, seeing such a situation, the worry was even greater, and I had to ask, "Young Master, should we send someone along to salvage it?"

Gu Si Qian nodded, "Call Qin Yue and tell him to bring a group of people over to fish along the downstream."

"Yes."

It was only ten minutes from the accident to the arrival of the police, but the car and the driver were fished out, but Bella Qiao was nowhere to be seen, and if she really had been knocked unconscious or had been in an accident, it would only have flowed downstream, if at all.

After Ober finished his business, he walked back.

Kusken looked again at the salvaged car that was parked not far away.

As well as, the driver who the police only just got out of his car.

I saw that the man was already dead, and was now lying on the ground, his face black and blue, and his face was an ordinary appearance that could not be found even if placed in the crowd and tried to find it.

His eyes were not cold and he said in a deep voice, "Go check! Look who's behind him."

Ober was so impressed that he answered yes and went off to do it again.

On this side, the men sent out for a long time to retrieve Bella Qiao had not been able to retrieve him.

By all accounts, the time they came over wasn't that long since the accident, and even if people were dead, they had to die.

According to the speed of the river's current, it was impossible for the person to be washed away, but strangely enough, no matter how much they fished, it was as if the person had disappeared.

The police people naturally recognized Gu Siqian, and when they saw that he had actually come in person, they knew that the person who had the accident must have had a very shallow relationship with him.

There was also no reason to be anxious, if he really offended Gu Siqian, it would only be difficult to live in the future.

Therefore, even came over to reassure him and said, "Mr. Gu, don't worry, since it's your friend, we will definitely do our best to salvage it, but the current is so fast, and from what the eyewitnesses said before, before she fell into the water, she was already seriously injured, so I'm only afraid that it's fatal, Mr. Gu, please take solace in your sorrow."

Gu Si Qian's face did not move, but in his eyes, there had been a few hints of cold and stern colour.

However, in the end, he didn't seize up, and only said in a deep voice, "Thank you, Director Fu, in that case, I'll leave this place to you, if you have any news, please inform me as soon as possible."

Chief Fook was stunned, apparently not expecting that he would have to leave now.

The heart pondered, it seems that the person who fell into the water, and his relationship is just like that, this is only less than an hour of salvage, he is impatient to leave, not even waiting for a result, friendship can be deep to where?

But his face did not move, he bowed his head slightly and promised, "Yes, don't worry, but whenever there is any news, I will be the first to inform you."

Only then did Gu Siqian turn to leave.

He didn't go anywhere else, but went straight back to the castle.

It was too big for the news to be hidden, so before he returned, the servants in the castle, as well as Yusra Lin, already knew about it.

Naturally, Yusra Lin was overjoyed that this woman who had repeatedly embarrassed her and dared to threaten her was finally dead.

From now on, she was the only woman beside Gu Siqian, there was no more competition, in the face of her beauty, Gu Siqian was not a monk, how could he not be tempted?

Therefore, it was only a matter of time before she felt self-conscious about getting this man.

However, Rao knew that Gu Siqian would not be in a good mood at this time, so Yusra Lin was smart enough not to go to him at this time so as not to anger him.

On the other hand, when Gu Si Qian returned, he threw himself headlong into the study.

Everyone looked at each other and wondered what he was trying to do.

Something happened to the man, and now his whereabouts are unknown, but instead of going out to look for him, he's locked himself in his study to take care of business?

At this point, Miss Qiao is not even as important as business, and it seems that all the previous speculation that the two might rekindle their old flame was just wishful thinking on their part.

Thinking about it, we all sigh.

And Gu Siqian, back to the study, but directly open the phone, will be a small flash drive into the computer screen, immediately jumped out of a picture.

If an insider had been around at this time, he would have noticed that this was a picture of a location tracker.

Yes, that's right, the reason why Gu Si Qian was willing to let her go in the first place was not because he gave up, but because, he knew that even if he reluctantly kept Bella Qiao here, her heart wasn't here, and it was just as useless.

So instead of reluctantly detaining her, let her go and give her the freedom to do what she wants to do.

He, on the other hand, would keep a secret eye on her, and every single thing she took with her when she left the castle was fitted with a location tracker.

Clothes and shoes could be lost and replaced, but her phone, and the dagger that Bella Qiao used to keep on her person and refused to put aside even to sleep, were things she would never throw away.

Therefore, no matter where she went or what she was doing, Gu Si Qian Cong could see her presence at first glance.

And now, people fell into the river, the river is not long, and with the manpower they put in, they could definitely retrieve it within half an hour.

Now there's no sound, which means that the people are probably not in the river at all.

Sure enough, when he turned on the locator tracker, he saw that the red dot on it, which represented Bella Qiao, was not at the location of the river at all, but on a hill about ten kilometres away from the river, and that the red dot was still moving rapidly.

His eyes were deep and he immediately called Qin Yue in.

Handing him the phone, he ordered in a cold voice, "Immediately send a team of men to follow this location."

When Qin Yue looked at the location tracker on it, what else did he instantly not understand?

While praising the boss in my mind that the boss is just high, I replied, "Yes!"

Then, they quickly ran outside.

Gu Siqian also returned to his room, changed into clothes that were easy to move in, and took his weapon with him before going out.

Ten kilometres up the hill from downtown.

The hills were densely wooded, and a winding path wound its way through them.

A couple of men in tight t-shirts with black jackets on the outside were climbing up the stairs with wary faces.

One of them was carrying a man on his back, and the man's eyes were closed, his face was white, and shocking wounds could be seen on his arms, on his waist, and on his thighs.

He also had a head injury, but it was roughly wrapped up with an old headband, so he looked better.

Only that hair was wet from the water and stuck to the face and neck, making it look like a different kind of mess.

Chapter 799

"Move! They're still salvaging her, and can't find our tracks for now, but Gu Si Qian is a man of fine character, and if he can't salvage her after a while, he'll definitely guess that someone took her away, and we're no match for him when he catches up with us."

Someone spoke out to warn.

Another said, "Yeah, we went to all this trouble and sacrificed a talent to get this woman out, but we can't let him take her away again. Quickly go, in another two hours, after climbing over these two mountains, we will reach our destination, and when we get there, someone will naturally meet us."

So, a few others, their footsteps went faster.

At the same time, there were also people who wondered, "I wonder what secret this woman has that makes our boss want her so badly!"

Another man said, "Who knows? It's best that we don't ask too many questions or meddle in matters up there, but this b*tch looks pretty good, so she can't be our boss's intended woman, right?"

Someone snickered, "The intended victim? A half-dead intended victim of a hit and run? What are you thinking about?"

Someone answered, "That's right, as I see it, this woman is most likely involved in some kind of interest, didn't I say that she is Gu Siqian's woman? Our boss and Gu Si Qian that's an enemy of fire and water, catching his woman in hand, according to that person's nature, he's still at the mercy of our boss?"

Several people laughed at the mention of this.

The sun was fierce at noon, and the mountain was stifling hot because the trees were so dense that the wind couldn't get through.

After a few moments of climbing, they were panting and sweating, and one of them stopped and said, "No, I'm tired, someone else will carry it."

The other man, seeing this, came over, bent down and said, "I'll replace you guys when I'm tired."

"Good."

The man said, and put Georgie down on the other man's back.

The man carried Bella Qiao on his back, and the group continued on their way.

However, they didn't notice that as they walked forward in silence, the man on their backs moved his fingers slightly and his eyelashes quivered.

Yes, there is no mistaking it, Georgie is awake.

Despite the pain in her body falling apart and the pain in her head nearly exploding, she woke up and, trying to control herself to stay awake and not pass out again.

Just now, the conversation of the line of people all went into her ears.

She didn't know who the person who drove up and hit her today was, but from what they had just said, they were related to Gu Siqian?

Gu Si Qian's enemy?

It's funny to think that when she was with him, she couldn't escape this, but now that she's away from him, she still can't escape it.

Was it really meant to be?

Bella Qiao's heart was complicated.

Thinking of the car that had just crashed over, and thinking of Tang Qi Qi who had been knocked off her feet to save her, and whose life and death was still unknown, her eyes grew hot, and at the same time, her heart clenched.

Q Qi Qi, you have to be alright, you have to survive!

You still have so many unfulfilled dreams. You haven't established your clothing brand, you haven't become a big designer of international fame, you can't die!

She thought to herself, while, with her eyes closed, her whole body was as if she hadn't woken up.

Just then, there was a sudden movement in the woods.

It was a very soft sound.

Like the wind rustling the leaves, but where does the wind come from on such a sultry day, when the mountains are covered with leaves, and not even a breath of air can penetrate?

Several of the gangsters seemed to have noticed the slightest movement and froze, stopping in their tracks subconsciously.

"What's that noise?"

Someone whispered.

The person next to him frowned, a touch of unease flashed deep in his eyes, but still tried to reassure his companion, "It should just be the wind, don't be too nervous, we'll get there after climbing this hill, let's just walk faster."

The rest of them nodded at the news, and the group carried Bella Qiao on their backs, speeding up their pace and quickly heading up the hill.

And at that moment, Georgie distinctly heard the sound of rapid footsteps.

She has always had good ears, and when she was a child, the dean's grandfather discovered this difference between her and ordinary people, and gave her the nickname, Shunfeng Ears.

When others listened to the noise, all they could think of was the rustling of leaves in the wind.

But she distinctly heard the sound of a footstep speeding over the fallen leaves on the ground, somewhat similar to the sound of the wind blowing through, but distinctly different.

And that subtle difference is not discernible to anyone who doesn't have a special understanding, or a particularly good ear.

Who's coming?

In her heart, Bella Qiao was completely unaware of the fact that Gu Siqian had been sending people to follow her, and had even installed location trackers on the things she was carrying.

So, at this point, Rao knew that someone must be nearby.

Listening to the neat and swift footsteps, it was largely likely that they were a group of well-trained men, not just any ordinary people.

But she couldn't bring up half the joy in her heart.

She was now covered in wounds and her fighting power was greatly reduced, she couldn't even defeat the few people in front of her, and if another group of people really came, she would only be even more powerless to return to Heaven.

Thinking about this, a heavy uneasiness flashed through Georgie's heart.

Just then, all of a sudden, there was a "whoosh".

A subgun came through the dense forest and hit a man behind him at once.

The man fell to the ground in response, and the rest of the group, their faces changed dramatically and their hearts were shocked, stopping to look at the surrounding woods in a guarded posture.

Someone rushed out.

Perhaps because the people on this side had no weapons in their hands, and the other side didn't use guns anymore, they were very fast, and in just a blink of an eye, they got tangled up with a few people on this side.

The man who was carrying Georgie didn't join the fight because he had to guard her.

But as he saw, one by one, his companions fell, and he couldn't stand, realizing that the group was most likely coming for Bella Qiao, his eyes were hard, and he was ready to run up the stairs with her on his back.

The top of the mountain was just ahead, less than 500 meters away.

Just run up there, the helicopter is waiting, and there's nothing the group can do for themselves.

The mission was accomplished, and while some brothers were sacrificed, it wasn't a failure.

Thinking that, he moved faster.

However, it was then that a scene he never expected happened.

The woman who had been lying on his back, completely unconscious, suddenly opened her eyes, and then he only felt a pain in his neck, and a hand knife struck hard at the soft throat of his neck.

Chapter 800

All he felt was blackness, and his whole body went limp.

Bella Qiao's body was slammed to the ground.

She was still badly injured after all, and when she landed on the ground, she was unsteady, so she rolled down the steps bone-deep.

Bella Qiao only had time to protect her head, but her body hit the stone steps, only to feel the pain as if her whole body had fallen apart.

But the big enemy was at hand, and even if it hurt, she didn't dare to linger for a moment, so she got up with the pain and ran to the other side.

What was unexpected was that even though the group was entangled together, they were still aiming at her out of the corner of their eyes.

Seeing that she was going to run, two of them, in a moment of desperation, kicked away the people in front of them who were stopping them and chased after her.

Bella Qiao was now a strong crossbow.

As amazing as she was in combat, she had experienced a car crash and a fall into the water, and was now in a trance of consciousness.

The pain in her chest and abdomen let her know that she had only suffered internal injuries, and that her resistance at this point was only through sheer force of will.

But how long this persistence would last, she wasn't sure.

The two behind him were getting closer and closer.

It was almost as if she was bound to get her back, despite all the threats around her.

Bella Qiao's heart was cold, and secretly felt a short dagger that had been hidden at her waist, but fortunately the group of people didn't have time to search her after rescuing her to save time at that time.

So everything she had on her was still there.

Touching the dagger, she settled a little.

Feeling the strong wind coming behind her, she turned and swung at the pair without thinking about it.

However, at that moment, a sudden change occurred.

Someone quicker than her came out of the slash and held off the two men.

The man's back was turned to her, and he struck dazzlingly fast, but in two strikes, the two men in front of him were down, one of them kicking and landing on the ground, his body rolling down the steep steps with a bone-crunch.

Bella Qiao was slightly stunned.

In the next second, seeing the man turn and grab at her, she raised her hand and slashed at the other with her dagger, knowing that no matter what, even if she died, she couldn't let herself fall into their hands.

However, it was so swift and quick that she barely realized that her wrist was already in the other person's grasp.

She was horrified, knowing that she wasn't as quick to react as usual in the end because of her injuries.

Thus, only barely able to hold on, he raised his leg to kick at his opponent again.

The other caught each and every one of them, and the fierce midday sun made her eyes flutter, only to feel dizzy and spent, all but barely held together by sheer force of will.

She couldn't even see her opponent's face clearly, just resisted mechanically, and within a few moves, her whole body had been restrained by him.

She slammed her head into the other side hard again, just as suddenly she heard a low, familiar voice.

"Enough!Georgie, it's me."

Bella Qiao was stunned.

It was all stiff.

She was startled to look up at the tall, cold man in front of her, the sunlight spilling down from the gaps between the forest leaves overhead, blurring her eyes, but still allowing her to see the general outline and features of the man in front of her.

"Kusken?"

What are you doing here?

She didn't have time to ask the rest of the question.

Only a blackness, the person could no longer hold on and fainted.

Gu Si Qian brought the man straight back to the castle.

Along with her, she was taken back to the castle, along with the thugs who had kidnapped her.

There were six of them in one, two of them died on the spot, and the rest, on his orders, were all brought back alive, and are now held in the castle, with a special guard assigned to them, only to be brought up whenever he is free to go over there.

Georgie was awake with pain.

It hurt all over, like it had been run over by a couple of trucks, or like the bones had been removed and reassembled all over again.

She opened her eyes and was met with a white ceiling.

Overhead there were intricate and delicate chandeliers gently swinging in front of us, a little familiar and a little strange.

Here's....

Memories of her pre-consciousness flooded into her mind and she tilted her head slightly, and sure enough, there was the familiar figure standing there.

By this time, it was noon the next day.

She was unconscious for the entire day and night, and after a doctor's examination, it was found that in addition to the bruise to her head, she had a few other bruises to her cojones, and some ligament injuries to her feet, but the rest was gone.

The injury wasn't too serious, but it wasn't light either.

With just a slight movement, she felt the excruciating pain from her body and couldn't help but hiss softly.

Kuskan sniffed back.

It was sunny outside, and while the curtains were open, the middle layer of a thin white screen did not open.

Therefore, the sunlight shining in through the white yarn, it will appear a different kind of warm and soft, ferrying on the man's body, even the cold and hard temperament of his body also softened a little.

He came over and stood at the head of the bed looking at her and asked, "Awake?"

Bella Qiao nodded.

Seeing him again was a complicated feeling.

In any case, it never occurred to me that I was going round and round and ended up back in his hands.

About to think with her, Gu Si Qian's lips curved up in a cold mocking curve and said, "Do you know who those people who kidnapped you are?"

Bella Qiao was confused at the news.

Shaking his head.

Kusken threw a stack of information in front of her.

"I interrogated this overnight last night, see for yourself."

Bella Qiao was stunned.

Subconsciously raise your hand to pick up that information.

She also had a lot of scrapes on her arms from being on the front of the car at that time, trying to control the car.

At this time, both arms were thickly bandaged, along with the palms, and looked like two bear paws, a different kind of funny and amusing.

It's naturally hard to turn the thin paper with this look.

So, despite her efforts, she couldn't turn the information over, even though she had pulled it over and tried.

Gu Si Qian about did not expect her to look like this, slightly stunned, in the end somewhat amused walked over to her and helped her turn the file over and spread it directly in front of her.

Bella Qiao was a little embarrassed.

But this was clearly not the time to save face, or to just read the page he flipped to.

Kusken kept an eye on her, waiting for her to finish one page and then help her turn another.

And so, with his help, Georgie read all the information.

The heart is heavy.

Never would she have thought that those she considered her brothers and sisters back then would still be unforgiving after betraying her and defecting to the Chinese Society.

Four years after the fact, and with every intention of killing her.

Why?

Bella Qiao was confused.

It is reasonable to assume that if she was used in the first place, it was only to stir up strife between the Vermilion Bird Society and the Dragon Corps, who had already been bought off by the Chinese Society, and were only waiting for things to be complete, they would be able to get their way.
