

The night passed quickly.

Ye Fan headed for the port quickly the next day.

He was going to take a cruise back to China this time.

According to Nakai Koichi, there were many people waiting for him at all the major airports. Ye Fan didn't want to go through the hassle of getting past all these people, so he decided to take a cruise home instead.

"Mr Chu, here are two tickets for the Emperor. This is a private boat, so you can take it with a peace of mind. Nobody from other countries would know that you'd be on this boat," said Abe Chuunan outside the hotel as he passed two tickets to Ye Fan before sending him off.

The dinner party was over and Professor An had gotten the investment from the Abe family that he wanted. Since this matter had concluded, Chen Nan obviously chose to return with Ye Fan instead.

"Sure, thanks," Ye Fan thanked him quietly as he took the tickets.

Abe Chuunan was instantly terrified and quickly replied, "Being of service to Mr Chu is my greatest honor.”

But just as Ye Fan and Chen Nan were about to leave, Liang Hao-Nan and the other two came running up to them.

“Nannan! Wait for us!” shouted Kong Hui loudly. They soon reached where Ye Fan and Chen Nan were standing.

“Nannan, we heard that you’re taking a cruise back, and you’re even taking the Emperor back! That’s one of the top ten luxury cruises in the world! Nannan, since you’re both taking the cruise, why don’t you take us along too?” said Kong Hui with eyes filled with anticipation as she looked at Chen Nan.

“Er...” Chen Nan was instantly put on the spot.

It was true that Chen Nan should have brought them along with her.

They were classmates and they had taken care of her all this time as well.

“I can’t make the decision on this, so I think you’d better ask Fan,” replied Chen Nan softly.

“Nannan, he’s your boyfriend, so he’d listen to you. Why don't you help us to beg your boyfriend for a few tickets? We're all classmates, so you'd help us with this, right?" pleaded Kong Hui with Chen Nan.

Liang Hao-Nan and Professor An looked with great anticipation as they waited for Chen Nan's response.

In the end, Chen Nan didn't know what else to do, so she looked at Ye Fan and said, "Fan, I..."

But before Chen Nan could even finish her sentence, Ye Fan turned their request down.

"I like peace and quiet, and I don't want to be disturbed by others."

Ye Fan clearly didn't want to travel with these three.

He didn't like them from the beginning, so there was no way he was letting them travel with him.

In the end, the three of them didn't get to take the Emperor with Ye Fan.

But on account of Chen Nan, Ye Fan got Abe Chuunan to get them tickets to the Princess instead.

It wasn't as fancy as the Emperor, but it was still a luxury cruise.

This cruise was headed for China at around the same time, but it was going to arrive at a different city.

"Haha! Nannan, thank you so much! I'll host a banquet to thank you once we get back to school!" Kong Hui and the rest were pleased with this arrangement too.

After all, nobody would be unhappy with free tickets to a luxury cruise.

Ye Fan and the rest of them got into their cars and were sent to the port to take their cruise back to China.

"Mr Chu, have a safe journey! We welcome you back anytime!" Abe Chuunan and his men waved towards Ye Fan and saw them off respectfully.

"Gosh...this grim reaper has finally left!" Several people on the roof of a nearby skyscraper breathed a sigh of relief.

The people on this rooftop were not random people.

They were all big names in the Japanese martial arts circle, and Mochizuki Kawa was leading them.

After Ye Fan left the Tokyo Skytree, all these people had been secretly following and keeping a watch on Ye Fan.

Ye Fan was able to slaughter people left and right wherever he went after all.

He had come to Japan for just a couple of weeks, but he had very nearly crippled the Japanese martial arts circle singlehandedly.

For as long as this grim reaper did not leave, the Japanese martial arts circle could not live in peace.

So Mochizuki Kawa sent people to follow Ye Fan all this time.

He would only feel assured after watching Ye Fan leave with his own eyes.

But of course, Ye Fan was highly skilled enough to know that Mochizuki Kawa and his men had been following him all this time.

But Ye Fan couldn't be bothered with them.

They could follow him all they wanted as long as they didn't give him any trouble.

"Exactly. He's finally left. This stupid Abe Chuunan still says he welcomes him back to Japan? Good heavens I wouldn't want him to come back ever again! I'm going to slap that Abe Chuunan later!" Toyotomi Kawayoshi breathed a long sigh of relief as well as he stood next to Mochizuki Kawa.

The entire Japanese martial arts circle had been living in the terror that Ye Fan had caused.

Now that Ye Fan had left, they could finally take a breather.

"Alright now, let's all go back and take a good rest after being so tired out for so many days." Toyotomi Kawayoshi and the rest prepared to leave.

But Sword God stopped them from leaving.

"It's still too early to relax now. We have to make sure he really gets on that cruise!" said Mochizuki Kawa in a low voice.

The rest of them felt their eyes twitch when they heard this.

"Alright then, we'll continue watching him."

In reality, Mochizuki Kawa had really been terrified by Ye Fan this time.

He wasn't going to sleep well until he watched Ye Fan literally leave the country with his own eyes.

In no time, Mochizuki Kawa and the rest quietly followed after Ye Fan.

Abe Chuunan and Nakai Koichi were still standing outside the hotel. After seeing Ye Fan off, their tense emotions also finally relaxed.

But this relaxed feeling didn't last long.

Several green jeeps drove over and stopped in front of the hotel.

The doors opened and several men in military uniforms started walking towards the hotel.

"Stop right there. Please identify yourselves." The security guards on duty quickly stopped their unidentified men from entering.

But when the security guard spotted the insignia on the shoulder of the man standing right in the middle, he froze and his eyes widened.

"Two cherry blossoms? Oh my god! Is this person a lieutenant general?"

A lieutenant general was someone who could command a few hundred thousand troops and was definitely a high ranking official in the army.

That was why this security guard immediately froze when he noticed this man's rank.

And because of that, the whole row of men from the military were allowed to enter the hotel without any problems.

They soon noticed Abe Chuunan.

"You are the head of the Abe family, Mr Abe Chuunan, correct? Please come with us. Our commander needs to talk to you about something," said one of the men in military uniform to Abe Chuunan.

Abe Chuunan was instantly stunned. "Huh? The commander? Someone from the army?"

Abe Chuunan was completely puzzled.

He had very few dealings with the army.

Why were they looking for him today?

And this man here was even a lieutenant general.

What did they want with him?

Tokyo, Japan.

Abe Chuunan was accompanied by Nakai Koichi and brought to a room.

Only two men were seated in the room.

One of them was dressed in a suit and sat quietly on one side. He was calm and collected, and didn't attract much attention.

The other person was wearing a military uniform and had two cherry blossoms imprinted on his shoulder.

When Abe Chuunan walked in, the man in a military uniform turned to look at him.

Abe Chuunan immediately felt a pressure rising from this man.

This was a presence and pressure that only a general of a few hundred thousand troops would have.

Without this sort of presence, he wouldn't be able to command so many men.

"Mr Abe, I'm sorry for suddenly disturbing you like this. Please take a seat." The man in uniform stretched his arm out towards an empty chair.

“And you are...?” Abe Chuunan was curious as to who this man was, so he immediately asked for his name first.

But the man in uniform just laughed quietly. “Who I am is not important. You just need to know that I work for the Japanese armed forces.”

“Alright now, we don’t have a lot of time, so I won’t beat around the bush anymore. According to our sources, a man named Chu Tian-Fan was here the night before, right?”

Abe Chuunan got a shock. “How did you know?”

The man in uniform smiled and didn’t reply him. He went on, “I don’t just know that. I also know that you just saw him off.”

Abe Chuunan’s expression darkened. He didn’t know why this general was talking to him about all this.

“What I’ve just said is correct, isn’t it?” asked the man in uniform again.

Abe Chuunan replied in a low voice, “And so what if it is all true?”

“Last night was my private dinner party, so whom I invite to my party doesn’t have anything to do with you, right? I would like to know why you are so concerned over Mr Chu," asked Abe Chuunan in return.

"You don't have to be bothered with that. I am here to ask you for a favor today. Tell me how Chu Tian-Fan intends to return to China, what mode of transportation he's taking as well as the time and place he is headed to. In short, tell us everything you know," said the man in uniform slowly. His deep and steady voice sounded more like an order than a question, and this made Abe Chuunan frown.

But Abe Chuunan soon broke into a smile. "You must be joking, right? We don't even know each other, so why should I tell you anything? Besides, Mr Chu is my friend, and I've already promised not to reveal his whereabouts. If that's all you're here for, then please go back."

Abe Chuunan then got up and turned to walk out of the room.

This man was a general, but so what?

The military was supposed to defend the country against enemies from outside the country, so even though this man could command troops, Abe Chuunan was sure that he wouldn't dare to turn them on the Abe family.

Besides, the Abe family had family members in every part of Japanese society, so there was no need for him to be afraid of this man.

But when Abe Chuunan reached the door, the two soldiers at the door stopped him.

Abe Chuunan instantly frowned and turned around as he said coldly to the man in uniform, "What do you mean by this? Are you going to use force?"

The man in uniform just smiled faintly. "Mr Abe, I don't want to treat you like this either. But this is an important matter and I hope you will cooperate with us."

"And what if I refuse to cooperate?" Abe Chuunan remained adamant.

"Then don't blame us for using some tactics to force you to cooperate," said the man in uniform calmly.

Just after he said this, a few special forces soldiers rushed in and looked like they were going to take Abe Chuunan away by force.

BAM!

But when they were still about three meters away from Abe Chuunan, there was a loud blast and all the soldiers were sent flying out.

The doors and windows were all smashed by the impact of these soldiers crashing into them.

HUUU!

A strong wind gusted outside the window and made Nakai Koichi's sleeve flap wildly.

"Hoho, it looks like your tactics aren't worth very much after all." Abe Chuunan laughed heartily, turned around again and started heading for the door.

He had been able to remain unfazed by this general because he had Nakai Koichi beside him.

As long as Nakai Koichi was here, a few soldiers wasn't going to be enough to block his way.

"Is that so?" a faint laughter suddenly rang out from behind them just as they reached the door.

In the next moment, Nakai Koichi suddenly felt that his legs couldn't move anymore, and they felt like they were filled with lead weights.

The terrible weight in his legs made it impossible to move forward.

Abe Chuunan was in a worse state than him.

Abe Chuunan was instantly brought to his knees by the pressure and he shouted out in pain, "Help!"

But Nakai Koichi was already having troubles of his own, so there was no way he could help Abe Chuunan.

Nakai Koichi managed to turn himself around under the tremendous pressure to see where that voice had come from.

He saw that the silent man in a suit had already gotten up and was walking over.

There was a strange smile as he reached Nakai Koichi.

He lifted a hand and patted Nakai Koichi on the shoulder.

When he raised his hand, Nakai Koichi realized that the back of this man's left hand had a tattoo of a blazing sun with clouds.

When he saw this tattoo, Nakai Koichi immediately shuddered and his pupils constricted.

“This is...the Cloud Sun Mark?! And it’s marked in gold too! You...you’re from Chu Sect?!”

BOOM!

He felt like thunder just struck him in the head.

Nakai Koichi was in shock.

The blazing sun with clouds was the symbol of the members from Chu Sect.

The gold outline of this same mark meant that this man was one of the core members of Chu Sect and was definitely someone in an extremely high and revered position.

It had been so many years. Ever since Chu Sect’s plan to dominate the world failed, the highest level of Chu Sect had rarely made an appearance.

This was the first time in so many years that Nakai Koichi met someone from the core of Chu Sect.

Good heavens!

Why was so much happening in Japan lately?

First they were visited by a killing machine named Chu Tian-Fan, and now even a core member of Chu Sect was here?

Wait a minute. Chu Tian-Fan? Chu Sect?

Could these two be related?

Nakai Koichi was even more terrified now.

He was afraid of getting embroiled in Chu Sect's internal feud.

Chu Sect was the world's leading martial arts power, and they had a huge pile of martial arts experts.

If he was involved in their internal feud, then even an additional ten lives wouldn't be enough for him to survive the fight.

"Mr Abe, are you telling us or not?" the low laughter of the man in uniform rang again.

"Dream on! Koichi, save me!" Abe Chuunan was fairly obstinate and refused to cooperate.

"Chuunan, tell them what you know. Now!" Nakai Koichi hurried Abe Chuunan to talk.

He was clearly scared now.

“Save you? How am I supposed to save you? If you don’t spill the beans, both of us are dead meat!” cursed Nakai Koichi in his heart as he trembled in fear.
