Chapter 2491

Her boyfriend smiled widely, then turned to say to the two men, "Did you hear that? This woman is a gift from my darling."

Shannon continued. "Remember to record the best parts."

The two men were excited and approached Freyja with bad intentions.

Freyja tried to break free, but the ropes were too tight. She clenched her jaw and calmed down to figure out a plan.

When the two men tried to touch her, Freyja suddenly laughed. They would be even more excited if she started crying out of fear.

But her chuckle threw them off.

Shannon glared at her. "You're in our hands now. Why are you laughing?"

Freyja was betting that Shannon's boyfriend and the two men weren't dumb.

And as expected, the boyfriend glared at her. "Did you bring her to my villa so that you can pin it on us if anything happens?"

Shannon did ask for his help to attack a woman, and he obliged.

However, when they brought her over, he thought this would just end with the woman staying silent about the incident.

He didn't know that the woman had a skillful husband. After what she said, he had to carefully consider everything.

He couldn't destroy his own future for a woman.

Come to think of it, Shannon always showed off to her friends how well her boyfriend treated her and how nice her life was, but all of that was overcompensation for her broken ego.

Police sirens were heard from the window. The officers came over, and the two men immediately released Freyja and destroyed the video camera.

The door was suddenly kicked open. It was Colton.

When he saw that Freyja was still dressed and had no signs of injury, he breathed a sigh of relief.

Shannon's boyfriend smiled and walked forward. "It's just a misunderstanding. We weren't planning on doing anything to your wife-

Before he could finish, Colton's fist connected with his face, and he flew backward.

Colton hugged Freyja and pointed at the men. "If this isn't a misunderstanding, you're going to have a painful death."

The officers rushed over, then Colton said something to the leader, who got his men to arrest everyone for questioning.

When they got to the car, Colton started taking off her clothes. She pushed him away in shock. "What are you doing?"

Xyla helped Daisy with her hair in front of the vanity. The royals invited Yorrick, and Xyla needed to attend because she was his family member.

Not everyone was able to attend the coronation. Not only was it the first time for Xyla, but it was also the first for Daisy.

"Alright! How are my braiding skills?"

Xyla picked up the mirror and stood behind her. Daisy saw her hair through the reflection and smiled. "It's so beautiful."

"Of course." Xyla put down the mirror. "I'm very proud of my braiding skills."

After Daisy was fully dressed, she walked out while holding up her dress. She stopped a server in the corridor and asked, "Do you know where Nollace is?"

The man pointed in a direction.

Daisy walked to the room where Nollace was. She saw that the door wasn't closed, so she carefully pushed it and went in. Nollace was in his suit and stood under the light. The server helped him put on his cape. It looked elegant and grand, like he was in a painting.

The other inmates looked at her as though she was crazy.

A few guards rushed over to hold her down. Sandy couldn't accept her fate and fought back harder.

"Why should you get all the benefits? I lost my son but got nothing! Diana and the Knowles, I curse you to a painful end!"

She was dragged away.

The inmates in the dining hall started talking to each other because Sandy was just a lunatic to them.

Meanwhile, at the film college...

Freyja's father was now a knight, which meant he was an important figure in Yaramoor.

Leia and the other friends were really happy for Freyja. "A knighthood. You're an aristocrat now."

"Ms. Mills..."

The name rang a bell, but it took Freyja a while before she finally remembered it. Rooftop, suicide... Wasn't this a scene in her script?

Norman continued to pace around. "Do you remember it now?"

Freyja let out a chuckle suddenly and said, "Ms. Mills didn't kill herself in my script. In all of the mystery cases and detective fiction, all victims will always be revealed to be killed by other people."

"Have you figured out how to stage her death?"

Freyja was stunned and lowered her head. That was where her script was stuck. How was the murderer going to make it look like Ms. Mills killed herself, and how was he going to escape without leaving any evidence behind?

However, she did not expect Norman to be interested in this kind of script.

Leia, who was standing on the side, was confused. "What are you guys talking about? What do you mean by a script?"

Norman looked at her.

Freyja went closer to her and whispered, "I'll explain to you later."

Colton walked to the table and crossed his arms in front of his chest. "Are you not going to take your dinner?"

Without raising her head, Freyja replied, "I'm not hungry yet."

"Did you eat anything earlier?"

"Yeah. I ate something with Leia this afternoon."

She was too focused on her, so she failed to notice the changes in the expression on Colton's face. He did not say anything anymore and left the study room.

It took Freyja a long while before she finally finished the way the murderer carried out his murder. She looked at her phone and realized it was already 1:00 a.m.

She walked downstairs and opened the fridge.

However, there was nothing inside.

She was very hungry right now, so she cooked herself some spaghetti.

In fact, Colton hadn't slept yet, either. He watched her silently from upstairs for a while before returning to their room.

After she finished eating her food, she returned to their room.

Freyja remembered why Colton would get angry at her last night. It turned out that he had heard about the rumor as well.

Suddenly, a student came over and said, "Freyja, the professor is looking for you."

Freyja came to the professor's office. The professor had read through the draft that she sent him last night. "This is a perfect MO. Did you come up with it yourself?"

Freyja replied honestly, "Norman inspired me."

"I see. No wonder I felt like I had seen something like this before, but this indeed is a very good idea. Anyway, Freyja, I have a task for you."

"What task?" she asked.

Freyja snapped herself back to reality and shook her head. "Nothing."

"You must tell me if something happens. I'll be worried about you."

Brandon remembered something after he finished speaking. "The prison called me just now."

She was stunned and raised her head.

Brandon continued. "They said your mother is mentally unstable and is behaving aggressively in prison. They'll be transferring her out of prison in two days to judicially verify her mental issues..."

He abruptly stopped, and Freyja asked, "What do you mean?"

Brandon lowered his face and continued. "It means that if your mother does have a mental illness, she won't be serving time in prison anymore."

"When did this happen?"

Yorrick fell silent for a moment after he heard what Colton said. After a while, he asked, "You think it's fake?"

Colton chuckled and said, "Mrs. Pruitt was mentally triggered in prison during the coronation ceremony. I just can't help myself to suspect that she's just pretending."

Would Sandy let the Knowles have the power she had been trying to obtain?

She had lost her mind and would stop at nothing to get what she wanted. If she was released from prison, would she go through the treatment, or would she try to get her revenge? Nobody could tell that.

Yorrick sighed. "Coleman, according to the constitution of Yaramoor, if someone serving a prison sentence has been diagnosed with mental illness, they will be absolved from serving the sentence so they can receive treatment."

"I know," Colton replied sternly. "As such, I can't let her get what she wants no matter what."
