Chapter 2631

“Isn’t the relationship between your family and Zephir’s family very close? You actually don’t know about this?”

Leah did not answer and only stared at Zephir and Roxy, who were walking toward them.

Roxy saw Leah as well and instantly wrapped her arms around Zephir’s as if she was showing her domination. “Ms. Younge, what a coincidence.”

Zephir looked at Leah but did not say a thing.

“Yeah, what a coincidence.” Leah nodded politely. She then picked up her wine glass and took a sip as if she did not want to talk to Roxy anymore.

Several classmates could not help but feel a little strange when they saw the interaction between the three of them.

One of their classmates glanced at Zephir and asked, “Zephir, is this your girlfriend?”

Zephir did not answer, but Roxy responded to the question almost instantly. “Yes, Zeph and I have been dating for a while already.”

'Doesn't she have a crush on Zephir, so much so that she will die without him? She's obviously a dunderhead when she falls for someone, so how could she have a change of heart in the blink of an eye?

'She must feel too embarrassed to admit it, so she's just finding an excuse to prevaricate and change the subject.'

"Do you think that I'm joking?"

"Too bad I'm not someone who loves to make jokes." Leah took her phone out, scrolled through her contact list, searched for a number, and brought the phone to her ear.

'Please pick up the call! At least show me a tad bit of respect!'

After a long time, the other party picked up the call and greeted her languidly. "Hello?"

Leah walked aside and answered the call with a smile, turning her back to them with a slightly stiff expression. "Honey, have you just woken up?"

As soon as the other party heard the word "honey", he instantly lost all desire to sleep. He sat up immediately, glanced at the caller ID on the screen, and saw that it was an unfamiliar number. "Who are you?"

Leah lowered her voice. "Can't you recognize my voice, Mr. Shaw?"

Roxy recognized the man standing in front of the group. “Isn’t he the man from the cafe the other day?”

“Yes.” Leah turned to look at Roxy. “We got together at that time. We only did so to expose your coffee shower performance, so he was only pretending not to know me.”

Roxy’s expression completely changed.

Morrison wrapped his arm around Leah’s shoulders, blending himself into the play very quickly. “Yo, are they your friends?”

“Classmates.”

“Oh, your classmates. Hey guys, how are you doing?” Morrison greeted everyone present with a smile.

Leah’s classmates responded to his greeting, treating him more enthusiastically than how they had treated Roxy.

Morrison then took a glance at Zephir and Roxy. “Oh, these two look familiar. I’ve seen you before.”

Zephir’s expression dimmed. “Yes.”

Roxy did not dare to speak, for fear that Morrison would expose her for what happened the other day, but she was reluctant to admit defeat without putting up a fight and asked preemptively, “Mister, are you really Ms. Younge’s boyfriend?”

Morrison immediately gave off a disgusted expression. “Why would you ask such a question? Are you planning to court and snatch me from her? If that’s the case, let me clarify that you’re not my cup of tea before you do something awkward in front of everybody. Oh yeah, by the way, the pouring-your-own-coffee -on-yourself performance that you played in the cafe was brilliant.”

The corner of Cameron's mouth twitched. She leaned against the back of the seat and did not speak anymore.

'Thank God I didn't wake up. I actually managed to avoid such an embarrassing scene.'

When the car arrived at the villa, bodyguards opened the doors for them, and Waylon and Cameron got out of the car together.

She looked around at the resort-like villa in front of her, which even had a private swimming pool.

"Mr. Goldmann."

A tall, well-tanned man came out of the villa and hugged Waylon with a smile, "You've come back. Where's that kid, Morrison? Didn't he come back with you?"

Waylon patted him on the shoulder. "He hasn't had enough fun in Zlokova, so he doesn't want to come back just yet."

The man then took a glance at Cameron. "Could this be..."

Waylon introduced Cameron to him, "She's my wife."

The man was shocked, "I heard from Morrison that you've found yourself a lady, but I didn't expect it to be true. You even got married while you were back in Zlokova?"

Cameron sipped her tea silently as if it had nothing to do with her, but she could hear the sound of a woman's heart shattering into smithereens.

Waylon answered her question firmly, "I wouldn't joke about my marriage, so of course, I'm serious this time around."

"But... But you claimed that you wouldn't get married so soon, and it might even be impossible for you to meet your Mrs. Right too!"

'That was what he said to me before he left.'

At that time, Evelyn had confessed to Waylon and courted him, but he had rejected her. Thus, she had asked him about the kind of woman that he was attracted to.

He had told her that the woman he would take a fancy to had not appeared yet, and he might never have the chance to meet her.

She had fallen for him for so long, and he had always been so dull and slow-witted when it came to romantic affairs and treated every woman around him exactly the same.

But at least she had been under the impression that she had a chance because there were very few women around him and because she had known him since college. As such, as long as no other women were to appear around him, she was sure to change his mind eventually.

And now that he had finally come back, all she got was the news that he was already married.

"That was before, but I've run into her." Waylon chuckled and looked at Cameron after saying that.

Louis poured himself a cup of tea. "That's normal when humans get old. It's only natural for their bodies to weaken as time goes by."

Waylon stood up. "I'll bring Cameron upstairs to meet him."

Louis nodded.

When they came to Hernandez's room and pushed open the door, they saw Hernandez leaning on the bed and reading a newspaper with a band-aid taped on the back of his hand as if he had just finished his IV injection.

"Grandfather, Wayne has come to see you." Louis walked to the bed.

Hernandez raised his head and closed the newspaper, and his voice did not sound as strong as it had been before. "Wayne."

Cameron sat up straight and gave him a shoulder to lean his head against because he was not sleeping soundly.

When they arrived at the villa, the driver and the bodyguard were about to wake up Waylon, but Cameron shushed them with a finger to her lips.

The driver and bodyguard did not wake Waylon up in the end.

Cameron stayed with him in the car, and no one knew how long it took before Waylon finally woke up and saw that Cameron had also fallen asleep with her head tilted.

Cameron woke up in a daze just as he was about to touch her. "I thought you were going to sleep until night."

Waylon smiled helplessly. "Why didn't you wake me up?"

Cameron rubbed her sore shoulder. "I didn't want to disturb you."

Waylon got out of the car first.

Waylon abruptly picked Cameron up when she got out and brought her into the house.

"Wayne..."

Cameron slumped against the wall, clutching his shoulders tightly, while Waylon picked her up. A bead of sweat rolled down from the bridge of her nose and stopped on the tip of her nose.

In the middle of the night, Waylon was woken up by a phone call. He grabbed his phone and took a glimpse at the caller ID. It was Evelyn.

He frowned and answered the call. "It's so late already. What's the matter?"

"Willy, save me- Ah, please let me go!" Evelyn cried for help from the other end of the call, and a few other men's voices could be heard from the background.

Waylon frowned. "Where are you?"

"Boohooohoo, I'm in the 6th Alley. Willy, please come quickly!"

The call was then hung up.

Cameron woke up at that moment, opened her eyes, and asked in a daze, "Who is it?"

Waylon leaned over and kissed her forehead. "It's Evelyn. She seems to have been caught in the middle of some trouble. I have to get someone to get to her."

"Ms. Woods, do you still want to stay here?" Cameron turned to look at Evelyn, who was frozen in place.

"I..." Only then did Evelyn come back to her senses and quickly ran to Waylon's side. "Willy, I was really scared. Thank you for coming to save me."

Waylon responded indifferently, "The person who saved you is Cameron. She's the one who you should thank."

Evelyn choked on her own words, then glanced in Cameron's direction and reluctantly said, "Thank you."

Cameron came up to the two of them. "You're welcome. As for these b*stards, we'll just hand them over to the police."

"No!" Evelyn became nervous instantly.

If they hand them over to the police, I'll be found out."

Seeing Cameron and Waylon's suspicious looks, she quickly explained, "I... I mean, they haven't caused me any harm, and you guys have saved me too, so let's just forget it. Anyway, they won't dare to do so again."

Waylon kissed Cameron on the cheek. "Don't worry. I know what to do."

The next day, Damon came to the villa to look for Waylon.

Waylon asked him why he did not answer his phone call last night, and Damon was stunned by his question. "I lost my phone last night."

Waylon raised his gaze and stared at him. "You lost it?"

"Yes, Ms. Woods invited me to a bar for a drink last night. And it was rather late when we finished drinking, so I sent her back and found out that my cell phone had gone missing after that."

Waylon took a sip of coffee. "If you're the one who sent her back, did you make sure that she got home

Damon nodded. "Yes. I left only after seeing her enter the house with my own eyes. What's wrong?"
