Chapter 2681

At the hotel, Roxy learned that Charlie had refused to sign her and teased him for being stubborn and pedantic. "No wonder all the artists under him are only in the A-tier, and none of them is a big hit. If he were to choose to take me in, I'd surely make him as much fortune as Daisy did when she was still a thing in showbiz. Is his brain made out of wood? If not, how is he so rigid?"

'I only went onto a show the last time, and my fan base has already grown by the millions on Twitter. If I can keep the heat going, coupled with the resources that Roland is going to provide me with, how can I not become even more popular?

'When Daisy stages a comeback to showbiz, the industry will have long become mine to own.

'Doesn't Zephir always regard me as Daisy's substitute? Sooner or later, Daisy will be the one who's wearing the title of a substitute. And I'll be even more popular than Daisy.'

When Nollace returned to Taylorton, he saw Daisy sitting on the couch watching a show, and Roxy just so happened to be in the show.

He picked up the tablet. "What are you watching?"

Daisy raised her head. "I must say, she does look a little like me."

Helios was grabbing a drink with someone else. When he saw Freyja standing amongst several directors, he walked toward the group of people. "So, you're here with Director Winslow."

All the directors were momentarily stunned.

'Helios Boucher actually knows her!?'

Freyja nodded. "It's nice to see you here, Uncle Helios."

Donny greeted Helios with a smile, "Mr. Boucher, it's been such a long time. I really didn't expect you and my screenwriter to be acquaintances."

Helios proposed a toast with Donny. "I haven't seen you since our last collaboration. I heard you came to Zlokova to prepare for your new movie. I didn't expect her to be your screenwriter."

"She's Professor Merlin's favorite student, and Mr. Lancell introduced her to me. Not to mention that her script is quite to my liking.

Anyone who had a brain knew what Helios was trying to say.

'Roxy is able to make a debut using Daisie's fame. Doesn't this mean that Daisie really has a lot of influence in the industry?'

Roxy only understood the undertone of what he had said after a while, and she tightened her grip on the wine glass.

'If Daisie didn't have such a background as the daughter of the Goldmanns, how could she climb to where she is today?'

'If I also had the same background, would I even need to be here listening to all these cynical remarks that are being thrown at me?'

'God is just so unfair. Some people are destined to start at the peak of a mountain when they're born. They don't have to fight for what they want, and all they need to do is to reach out, and they'll get what they want at once.'

"By the way, Mr. Winslow, I heard that you're planning to start shooting a movie and are still casting actors and actresses?"

After hearing Roland's question, everyone saw through his thoughts instantly.

'He would actually go to this extent just to get his relative's niece some resources?'

A voice came from behind Roland.

The man who slowly approached the group of people attracted everyone’s attention. He had a breathtakingly handsome mixed-race face, and his temperament felt noble and elegant.

Although he was not from within the industry, everyone knew that he was Nollace Knowles, the prince of Yaramoor, and his beloved wife was Daisy Vanderbilt from the Goldmanns.

Donny stared at him and was slightly shocked. “Your Highness, you’re in Bassburgh too?”

Nollace nodded. “My cousin happens to be attending this banquet too, so I’ve come over to have a look.” ‘Cousin?’

Only then did the others realize that the female screenwriter they had been talking to looked familiar.

Nollace stopped, turned around, and looked at Roxy, who was walking toward him. His expression looked calm and unconcerned.

"You are Daisie's husband, aren't you? I heard that there are some rumors going on between your wife and Mr. Zephir Gosling."

'Every man would surely be triggered if he were to find out that his wife has had a relationship with other men, so I'm confident that this man is the same too.'

Nollace loosened the strap of his watch and pretended to be puzzled. "What kind of rumors are you talking about?"

Roxy gave off a sweet and slightly seductive smirk. "I heard that Mr. Gosling had once courted Daisie back then. However, he couldn't get her to love him back and even regarded me as her substitute. I also heard that they seemed to have a relationship..."

"Do you know anything about defamation?"

Roxy's expression froze.

He let off a faint smirk. "I know better than you whether my wife and Zephir have had a relationship before this. Besides, I got acquainted with Zephir a lot earlier than you. What makes you think that you're in the position of slandering my wife in front of me?"

Roxy remained calm. "Then, don't you doubt them? Zephir loves Daisie so much there's no way that he'll give up on her."

Nollace interlocked his fingers. "She deliberately brought up your relationship with Daisy in front of me. intending to sow discord between Daisy and me. I bet she's doing so because of you, right?"

Zephir paused for a bit but did not utter a single word.

"You dated her because she looks like Daisy, so you took her in as a substitute. She now holds a grudge against you, and in order to retaliate against you, she got herself into Tenet on purpose, wanted Charlie to take her under him, and even exploited Daisy's fame for her own marketing.

"All these actions seem very provocative, so no matter if she's trying to provoke you or Daisy, there must always be a reason behind her actions."

Zephir put down the teapot and looked up. "What exactly do you want?"

Nollace scoffed. "Daisy is now pregnant, so I don't want her to be dragged into this mess. Besides, this is a matter between you and her. You're the one who let the demon into the house, so shouldn't you be the one who cleans this mess up?"

After saying that, Jaylon left his office without looking back.

Roxy just came out of the elevator and saw Roland. Seeing that no one was in the corridor, she took advantage of their encounter to drag him to the stairwell. "Mr. Goldwin, when will you introduce me to a production crew?"

Roland was not in the mood. Seeing that she was still acting so recklessly in the company, he pushed her away directly. "Roxy, I promised to help you step into the entertainment industry, but you'd better not bring me more trouble. The first thing that you should do is to keep a distance from me when we're in the company."

Roxy chuckled and wrapped her arms around his neck. "Don't you think this is very exciting? Mr. Goldwin, please don't neglect me. I'll be very sad if you do that to me."

Roxy acted coquettishly and seductively. Roland liked such an attitude the most, so he soon fell for her charm again.

But they did not notice that a figure just so happened to pass by the stairwell upstairs.

Nollace and Charlie were drinking tea in the office. Charlie flicked the lid of the cup and reported his findings. "I've asked Mrs. Fuhrmann just how many distant relatives and nieces the Goldwins have. According to her, none of them are of the same age as Roxy, so it seems that something fishy is going on between Mr. Goldwin and Roxy."

Nollace took a sip from his teacup, but before he could speak, Charlie's assistant suddenly barged in with a flustered expression. "Chuc... Chuck!"

Chapter 2688

A few days later, Roxy joined a cast with Roland's help. Her arrival even got the original female lead removed from the cast, as Roxy had to be the one to take over the female lead's role because the crew received sponsorship from her benefactor.

Roxy posted a post on Twitter about joining the filming crew. A series of beautiful pictures of herself then followed it. She even shot them from the exact angle that Daisy shot hers from back then.

This caused the names of the two artists to be tied together on Google Trends and Twitter again. Such behavior attracted a lot of disdain from Daisy's fans.

Many of them went onto Roxy's Twitter account and retweeted her tweet, and while doing so, they bashed her and told her to stop tying herself to Daisy to hype herself up.

Many thought she would delete the post after all the attention she had attracted. Still, no one expected that she would mock Daisy's fans, saying that they were criticizing her only because they were worried their artist would no longer be relevant after returning from her hiatus.

Her arrogance completely angered Daisy's fans. Some netizens even felt that she was already this presumptuous before she became popular.

Only a small number of netizens thought that Daisy's fans should just mind their own business. After all, creating gossip and hype was not illegal, so they didn't need to be so serious.

However, Roxy had zero filming experience and slightly exaggerated acting skills. This rendered all the artists working with her in the crew speechless.

"I really have nothing to do with her!"

“Is it so? Fine, I’ll go to the crew to find that b*tch now!” Mrs. Goldwin slammed the door shut and left. Only then did Roland realize that there was going to be a huge commotion at the studio. He called Roxy immediately, but she had already turned off her phone.

He hurried out, but his wife had already left in her car.

Mrs. Goldwin went straight to the studio. “Where’s that little b*tch named Roxy Van Damme!? Roxy Van Damme, you’d better get your *ss out here! How dare you seduce my husband!?”

Roxy was beaten up and sent to the hospital. However, even the patients that shared the same ward with her were unwilling to stay with her because of her reputation.

On the other end of this farce...

Tenet’s stock dropped by 13% in less than a day.

Roland was forced to issue a press release to clear up his relationship with Roxy. Tenet's officials also released a post on all their social media platforms, saying they had terminated their contract with Roxy. Roxy was now known as the artist who got kicked out of the circle not long after landing a place in the industry-she had become a joke on the Internet.

As things continued to spread and ferment on the Internet, Roxy was completely blacklisted from showbiz. Her Twitter was temporarily deactivated to salvage the traffic that Twitter had been facing since her downfall.

Seeing this, she could only resort to her final trick, and that was to call the Goslings and tell them that she was pregnant with Zephir's child.

Patricia was so angry that she fainted when she got the news.

When Zephir returned and learned about this from his father, his expression dimmed in an instant. "What did you just say?"
