Chapter 26 If It Weren't For Her Sake

To prevent Daisy from being wronged, and to drive this damn girl away as soon as possible, the two of them had posted Isabella's information on the relative search website behind Old Madam Brown's back. Finally, one day. Isabella's family called and said they were going to take her back.

When Old Madam Brown heard about this, she was so greatly stimulated that she was admitted to the hospital.

When Old Madam Brown was not at home. Isabella was successfully "driven" out of the Brown family.

"I wonder if your mother is old and confused. She treats an outsider better than her granddaughter!" Gail complained, but couldn't help worrying. "I'm afraid that if Isabella doesn't leave. she will have a bad idea, like fighting with Daisy over Harris..."

The family conditions of the Moore family were much better than their Brown family!

Harris was a gentle and sensible young man. It could be seen that he cherished Daisy very much and treated Daisy very well...

Daisy wasn't bad herself. She was beautiful and gentle enough to win Harris's favor!

"Michael, how about we go to the attending doctor, Dr. Bennett Robinson, and ask him to handle the transfer procedures for us?"

"Well, that's the only way to go." Michael sighed.

"Let's go." Isabella followed behind Benjamin. holding the phone in one hand, replying to one message after another.

In the afternoon, she had gone to the auction and operated on Old Mr. Mason. There were still many messages that she hadn't responded to in time.

At this moment, someone was pushing a wheelchair out of the corner and almost bumped into Isabella.

Benjamin pulled her to his side, "Be careful."

Isabella reacted, and she blushed again.

In the car, Benjamin saw that Isabella was not in high spirits, so he stopped the car halfway through the drive.

"Wait for me." He got out of the car and walked into a dessert shop.

After a short while, he came out carrying a few bags.

There were small cakes, bread, milk, juice, etc., as well as some cute candies.

He handed it over, "They said young girls like to eat these."

She had operated on his grandpa for so long today and she must be hungry now.

Isabella looked at so much food in front of her. and was about to say something when Benjamin approached her. first opened a bottle of milk for her, and inserted a straw

Isabella was surprised, "I'm not hungry."

"Eat as much as you want." Benjamin handed over the milk.

Dividing into pages now.

Isabella took it and took a few sips out of politeness. It was pure milk, but unexpectedly it tasted a little sweet.

At the same time.

"Dr. Robinson, what do you mean? You can't approve?" Gail found Bennett. As soon as she mentioned the transfer, Bennett's face turned cold.

"In the case of Old Madam Brown, it's best to stay at Cameron Hospital."

"Is there no other better hospital?" Michael couldn't help asking.

"Cameron Hospital is the best hospital in the country."

"Yes, the medical level of Cameron Hospital is obvious to all, but..."

Before Michael finished his sentence, Gail interrupted, "Dr. Robinson, we have no choice. If we don't transfer Old Madam Brown to another hospital. I'm afraid someone will pester her and affect her recovery..."

Bennett gave her a cold look. Was she referring to Isabella?

She was simply ungrateful.

How much had Isabella done for the Brown family? What had they done for Old Madam Brown and her family?

Bennett looked cold. "If you cared about Old Madam Brown, would you have waited until now after the nurse called you at nine in the morning?"

"We...we happened to be busy..."

The main reason was that several friends had invited Gail to do SPA together, and Michael had gone to play golf with his friends...

In the evening, the maid had prepared dinner and dinner should be eaten while it was warm!

They had rushed over after dinner.

"Even if you had something important to do, you didn't care about the elders?"

Gail and Michael blushed when they heard Bennett's words. It was so embarrassing.

"I can sign the transfer procedures, but I'm telling you that the medical equipment and doctor resources of other hospitals are far inferior to Cameron Hospital. Once Old Madam Brown leaves Cameron Hospital, she will die within a week. You have to be mentally prepared."

When Michael heard this, he panicked, "Well, Dr. Robinson, is there any other better way? For example, we can leave the hospital and keep my mother healthy?"

"Yes."

When Michael heard it, he was overjoyed all of a sudden, "Dr. Robinson, tell me please."

"Now there is a medicine on the market that can save her life..."

"You tell me, and I'll write it down." Michael hurriedly took out his notebook and pen and opened the cap.

"It's only available in the black market. This medicine costs 10. million a pill. The patient has to take it twice a month. If the patient takes it for three months in a row, he can come here for surgery."

When Michael and Gail heard this, they looked at each other in blank dismay. How much? Ten million a pill? Sixty million in three months?!

Were the medicines so expensive now?

"It's made of very rare medicinal materials, so it's very rare."

Michael silently put away the notebook and pen, "Then my mother won't be transferred. Thank you, Dr. Robinson..."

They had tried to save Old Madam Brown because the 30% of the shares in her hand were worth 300 million. It was not worthwhile to spend one-fifth of it on this sky-high price of medicine.

Moreover, Old Madam Brown was partial. What if she became confused and gave those shares to Isabella in the future?

They must ask Old Madam Brown to make a will before she died, leaving all the shares to Daisy.

That was why they wanted to save Old Madam Brown.

Isabella had often helped the Brown family through difficulties before because Old Madam Brown had shares in the company. Otherwise, Isabelle would not have cared about Michael...

But the Brown family didn't know it and they thought they were awesome enough to become the richest in Winter Town...

Michael took out the bank card that he had offered to Isabella just now and secretly stuffed it into the medical record in front of Bennett.

Bennett noticed it and looked a little disgusted, "Mr. Brown, are you trying to get me fired and put in jail?"

If medical staff took advantage of their positions to accept bribes in private, it was a crime of accepting bribes. If the amount was large. they would be imprisoned.

"Dr. Robinson, you misunderstood..." Michael hastily put on a smile and said cautiously. "We're not asking you to violate professional ethics. It's just a small gift to express our gratitude. We know you have worked hard during this period. You can use this money to buy some supplements..."

"Yes. Dr. Robinson, please accept it!"

"Take it away." Bennett didn't even look at it, and said in a cold tone. "Someone asked me, and I will naturally take good care of Old Madam Brown. You don't need to do anything else. Just leave."

"Dr. Robinson..."

Gail wanted to say something else, but Michael hurriedly took away the bank card, smiled, and pretended nothing had happened. "Okay, we'll leave. Dr. Robinson, if you need anything later, just tell me..."

If it weren't for Isabella's sake, Bennett would have kicked them out a long time ago.
