Chapter 6 Kneel

Professor Carter was afraid she would make the situation worse, so he persuaded her, saying, "Lady, the operation is difficult. I am an expert in this area for decades, but I have no confidence. Old Mr. Mason's condition is dangerous. Except for the deceased famous doctor Mr. Brown, no one could guarantee his survival after the operation. We also want to save him, but we don't have the ability. There's nothing we can do to help."

They could only give Old Mr. Mason heart-stabilizing and heart-unchoking shots now. And they would not dare to conduct the operation before his family members arrived and signed the operation consent. After all, they were afraid of Mr. Mason's power.

Isabella suddenly asked, "Did you say whoever completes the surgery would be paid?"

Professor Carter was stunned for half a second and hurriedly replied, "Yes."

Old Mr. Mason was a big shot. As long as anyone could save his life, Professor Carter was willing to give him or her a large amount of money.

Isabella had earned a lot of money for the Brown family, but they had never given any to her. And she had almost spent all her savings on curing Old Madam Brown's illness. So, she wanted to make some money by giving a minor operation.

Isabella's beautiful eyes were flashing with confidence, and she was exuding a tough aura. Seeing this, Professor Carter couldn't help asking, "Have you studied medicine?"

Isabella showed a faint smile on her crimson lips and said, "I can use bistouries."

"What's your operation plan?"

"I will do a heart valve replacement operation. But I want Bennett to be my a*sistant."

Hearing this, Aubrey thought she was dreaming and snorted, "Who do you think you are? Do you know who Bennett is? I can ask him here. But he will never agree to be your a*sistant! If he agrees, I will give you my head, and you can kick it as a football."

Then, she turned to look at Professor Carter and said with disdain, "Professor Carter, don't waste time talking with her. We're running out of time. Let's give him heart-stabilizing and heart-unchoking shots first!"

She then looked at a nurse and ordered, "Go get the medicine. And tell the security guard there is a lumatic here."

The nurse bumped into Bennett on the way and hurriedly told him what was going on.

Soon, a familiar voice rang through the ward, "I heard you're looking for me?"

Everyone looked over and was shocked to see Bennett. After all, they had not expected him to come.

Why had the nurse invited him over? Why had a such big shot come because of a nurse's words?

"Dr. Robinson, you came just in time."

Aubrey seized the opportunity to humiliate Isabella, saying, "She is so bold that she wants you to be her a*sistant."

When Bennett glanced at Isabella, the latter was casually standing aside as if all the attacks couldn't hurt her.

He slightly frowned at Aubrey because he was dissatisfied with her rudeness. Then, he looked at the other doctors and asked, "What's going on?"

"This is a special case that has never happened at home or abroad," Aubrey hastily explained and deliberately pushed a wisp of hair behind her ear to reveal her side face.

She thought she was beautiful and wanted to impress Bennett.

"What are you waiting for?"

Bennett reluctantly accepted the hot potato for the sake of Isabella and blankly said, "Let's start the surgery."

"Dr. Robinson, why are you doing this with her?"

Aubrey had not expected him to agree, so she was stunned for a second. Then, she hurriedly said, "The operation's success rate is less than 10%. Old Mr. Mason is noble. If anything goes wrong, we can't bear the consequence!"

Bennett showed a displeased look and coldly said, "If anything goes wrong, it will have nothing to do with you."

"Dr. Robinson!"

"I will bear it alone."

All the other doctors were stunned, wondering why he decided to do such a ridiculous thing with the girl.

Bennett didn't want to waste more time with them, so he glanced at Isabella and said, "Come with me."

He intended to take her to the operating room.

While pa*sing by Aubrey, Isabella slightly smiled, "Didn't you say you will give me your head and let me kick it?"

"You..."

Aubrey was speechless. She indeed had said if Bennett agreed to be Isabella's assistant, she would give her head to her. After all, she had never expected him to agree.

Bennett was always arrogant. Why had he suddenly changed? Was it because the girl was pretty?

Isabella showed a faint smile on her pretty lips and said, "Don't forget your promise."

"What promise?" Aubrey suddenly remembered it and added, "I said if you can save Old Mr. Mason's life, I will kneel and call you ancestor. But I'm afraid you don't have the ability! Don't try to blame us if you kill him during the operation!"

Isabella slowly smiled and said with an indifferent look, "Even if you call me ancestor, I will not recognize you as my descendant!"

"You!"

"You just need to kneel," Isabella said and followed Bennett to leave.

Looking at her back, Aubrey flew into a rage and shouted, "If you make it, I can even give you my position as the deputy director, let alone kneel!"

She patted her badge and continued, "Let's see whether you have the ability to take it!"

Hearing their "bet", Bennett casually asked, "How did you get into a fight with her?"

"Because she is much too arrogant and ignorant."

Isabella wanted to teach her a lesson and let her know there were always some people who were more capable than her.

After two nurses wheeled Old Mr. Mason into the operating room, the doctors in the ward looked at each other.

"They're insane!"

"How could Old Mr. Mason undergo an operation in such a condition? Dr. Robinson is too young! He does not know the consequences of failure! It will not only ruin his reputation and career!"

Mr. Mason was powerful. If anything happened to Old Mr. Mason, Mr. Mason would kill all of them!

"Professor Carter, are we letting them do it? This is human life!"

"Old Mr. Mason is noble! How can we let them mess around like this? Professor Carter, please make a quick decision!"

"Yes! Hurry up and stop them before it's too late!"

Although the others were anxious, the female director held a glimmer of hope and said, "Dr. Robinson is from a medical family, and his ancestors have been medical geniuses for generations. Although he is not as good as Selby, his superb medical skills may bring Old Mr. Mason back to life.”

The male director coughed, “Dr. Robinson is a genius doctor praised by everyone. As long as he is in the operation room, there may be a miracle.”

Mr. Easton anxiously said, “You’re confused. He will only assist the girl. The girl is the surgeon! How old is she? She has never studied medicine! Professor Carter, please prevent them!”

“Mr. Easton, what are you worried about? Dr. Robinson said he will bear it alone if anything goes wrong!”

“But Old Mr. Mason is Mr. Mason’s grandfather! If he dies, Mr. Mason will blame us for not stopping Dr. Robinson!”

Aubrey gritted her teeth and said, “We will say Dr. Robinson insists on doing this operation so much that we can’t stop him!”

She thought Bennett would only have himself to blame since he had agreed to assist the girl with the operation. The girl must not know Old Mr. Mason’s real identity. Otherwise, she would have long run away in fright instead of taking the hot potato.
