

Cheat. A 150

Chapter 150: Delivering Fenrir's Message...

"Ooh, Myne! It's good that you returned safely."

Just after Myne walk out from the carriage a knight hurriedly informs him that his Father-In-Law was waiting for him in the throne room. So Myne unwillingly has to walk to the throne room under the guidance of the knight and after entering the throne room he was greeted by his overexcited Father-In-Law.

Why does it feel like It was my Father-In-law who won the game, not me? Myne thought with a weird expression on his face which he quickly hide behind his smile and greeted back.

"With so many knights taking care of me, how can I not come back safely?" Myne said politely with his trademark smile.

"Hahahaa, don't joke around, those knights are responsible for taking care of the game, I personally instruct them to not help you during the game no matter what happened," Faren said while laughing.

Other people in the throne room seeing that their king is praising his future Son-In-Law, also follow suit and start clapping while complimenting Myne once in a while, although they have no idea what he did.

"Myne, I heard that you have something to report to me, tell me what the matter?" Faren after watching everyone's performance nodded his satisfaction and asked Myne after gesturing everyone to be silent.

"Well, this matter is a little serious, so if you don't mind can we talk in a private place? The fewer people who know about it more it would be better for us," Myne said while looking around himself calmly.

Other people in the throne room raise their eyebrows after hearing what Myne said but they dare not oppose his action as they can all see that if they did then they would defiantly anger Faren, which was the last thing they wanted to do.

As Myne said that Faren look at his serious expression for a while then after thinking for a while, he dismiss everyone and gestured for Myne to follow him and headed toward his study room.

Along the way they meet Anieue who was heading toward the throne room after knowing that Myne is there, but was stunned seeing that both Faren and Myne were suddenly going to his father's one of the study rooms which was just a little further from the throne room.

"It would be a little awkward if Sylphy find out that we are together alone. She might think that I am again doing something behind her back, that girl is a little too overprotective toward you, sigh, I never get such a treatment.

Anyway, it is better if we have one more person with us, Anieue, you come with us too, we are all family so there is no need to hide things from you," Faren said and before Anieue could understand what was going on, he was dragged into the room by Faren as well.

"Now then, let's hear what important thing you wanted to say Myne that you even ask Rick (The knight Leader) to send an emergency message to me," Faren said with his hands folding in front of his chest.

Myne after seeing that both Faren and Anie's curiosity is at their peak, didn't beat around the bush, and told the entire story of what happened during the game like meeting Divine Beast, and helping her to save her children, etc, of course, with a little bit of modification.

"Those damn pigs!!!!"

Father and son exclaimed at the same time, both of them were very angry with Claude and his gang's foolish move, so much so that they even wanted to go the prison and beat the hell out of them right away.

"Wait, Myne! Did you say Lord Divine Beast Fenrir's children? Then don't tell me that the carefree wolf pup relaxing on your head is..."

Although Faren didn't complete his sentence out of nervousness or maybe excitement, but seeing the smile on Myne's face he already get his answer.

"Yes, he is Lord Divine Beast Fenrir's youngest child and naughtiest one as well," Myne said while pointing his finger at the top of his head.

The Little Fenrir seeing everyone's attention on himself greeted everyone happily with "Wafu!" and raise his right front paw. After that, he lost interest and once again started relaxing in his favourite place.

"I, I can't believe it. The Divine Beast from Legends actually exists and his son is currently in front of me. This is unbelievable," Faren said with eyes wide open. His body was shaking with excitement and was showing signs of a psychotic fan.

That expression on my Father-In-Law's face is quite scary, I wonder just how much of a big fan a man has to be to make this kind of expression.

My Father-In-Law seems to have read too many tales of the divine beast in his childhood, and his children are following the path he chose, Myne thought dumbfoundedly, while watching Faren and Anieue trembling visibly, no getting flustered from excitement as if they achieve one of their life long dreams.

Both father and son are really hopeless, it goes on like this the talk won't proceed further, I think it is time to wake them up, Myne thought and took out a slave collar from his Inventory, as for the other two he already told Faren and Anieue that Fanrir destroys them out of anger, and it took him a lot of effort to convince her to not destroy the last one as well so he can use it as a proof.

"Father-In-Law, Elder Brother, this type of "Slave Collar" those adventurers attached to this kid and his siblings to control them, and it seems quite effective against them," Myne said calmly and handed the slave collar to Anieue.

"This is certainly "Slave Collars" which is banned by Father many years ago. There are serial numbers engraved onto these things, so we can arrest those guys who gave these to Claude and the others.

Thanks for the help, Myne, you did great work bringing this thing with you, you made my work easy, otherwise, I can only try to gather information from Claude about where he bought those Slave collars from, " Anieue said with a genuine happy smile while gently patting Myne's shoulder.

But then suddenly Anieue who looked like he suddenly recalled something asked with an expression as if he show a ghost...

"Wait? Slave Collars as far as I know can only be taken off by the person who attached them in the first place, right? How did you take it off without making it explode?"

Hearing Anieue's sudden question Myne's expression didn't change at all, he just calmly reply, "Of course, Lord Divine Beast Fenrir use her skills."

Myne's answer was probably outside their expectations, they defiantly didn't think about it which is quite normal, since they never have seen a divine beast in their entire lives so there is way to know about her skills, that's why the first thought came in their mind was that it was Myne who must have removed those slave collars by unknown means.

"Why are you guys making such a surprised expression? Do you really thoughts that for an existence like Divine Beast, taking care of a low-lever item like a slave collar is a big deal?"

If it not for the fact that her children were trying to protect those adventurers under those slave collars' control without giving her a chance to take them off, I might not even have chance to get her close before she kill all those adventurers and save her children," Myne said helplessly while shaking his head, if Fenrir has seen this sense for a once even she might believe that what Myne said is right, after all, Myne Lair skill is not a joke, when it is used by a professional person like Myne, its effect is not something most people can avoid, and they immediately believe in whatever nonsense Myne said till it is within a certain limit.

"Anyway, if you don't mind then should I continue?" As Myne said that Both Faren and Anieue nodded their head while rubbing the back of their head embarrassingly, and told him to carry on...

After getting permission, Myne then conveyed the personal message of Fenrir, of course, he did it politely not in the way Fenrir told him to do.

"There will be no next time, huh? Did I really so useless that people doing so much behind my back without me knowing? I didn't even know that The Divine Beast exist till Myne told me and out there people already start making plans to steal its children. What if in future one more idiot tries to steal Lord Divine Beast's children?

Then won't I lose everything before I realise what's happened?" Faren spoke helplessly with a forced smile.

"Father! Why are you being so negative? Isn't this rather a silver lining? Thanks to Myne intervening, we were forgiven for this, so we can try to be more careful in future, at least this time we won't be completely clueless. If The Lord DIvine Beast had acted directly without talking to us, we could have been really unlucky then," Aniue spoke with full of spirit, bringing his father out of despair.

This is really surprising I didn't expect this kind of nice speech from Siscon's elder brother, as a future king of Augusta Kingdom at least he has a good mentality, Myne thought with a smile...