

Cheat. A 170

Chapter 170: Waffle's Despair

Myne and Waffle were eating snacks under the tree while chatting about some bizarre things when they saw the female black dragon coming toward them with her poor child in between her big jaw who was beaten to death by his own father.

Boom!

The female black dragon landed beside her husband, and after kicking him some time to vent her anger, she gently lay down her child on her ground.

Myne and Waffle also come to see that little guy's condition, which is surprisingly not that bad, although he is injured and unconscious but that wasn't a big deal and he should be fine after some days of rest.

"I have to say those big flying lizards' defence is quite tough. Anyway, since this kid is alive and has met his family, then our work is done here," Myne said to Waffle and then telepathically contacted Fenrir, "Fenrir, I handed over the child dragon to his parent, Although there was some disturbance happened in the middle but in the end, I completed my mission successfully."

"Ooh, that's good, I know I can believe in your work. By the way, is my boy alright? He didn't cause trouble right?" Fenrir asked worriedly but hearing her question Waffle on Myne's head quickly jumped down on the ground and shook his head toward him nonstop trying to persuade him to not complain.

Watching Waffle's third-rate acting, Myne him a rest assured smile before he shamelessly told everything to Fenrir, making Waffle collapse on the ground with horror-filled eyes.

When Myne told Fenrir that Waffle almost died if he didn't have the skill given by him because of his stupidity, although it was through telepathy, a terrifying bloodthirst was conveyed to him.

"F*ck! Fenrir is super angry, someone is in big trouble now," Myne mumbled nervously his Adam's apple twisting feeling Fenrir killing instant through telepathically, he then looked at the male black dragon who surprisingly woke up even after receiving so much beating and now was getting scolded by his wife.

"This guy is done for..."

"I see, good work, Myne. I won't blame you for my child's foolishness. By the way are there figures of Humes at the surrounding area right now?"

"Ahhm, no, currently we are in deep in the forest, quite far from the nearest town," Myne replied causally while grabbing Waffle who was trying in vain to escape.

"Is that so, in that case, Myne Immediately use your teleportation skill and connect to my place, I need to give my little boy some love," Fenrir said while gritting her teeth.

Myne of course not dare to mess with an overpowered angry mother, so he quickly did what he was told and connected Fenrir's residence in the Divine Spirit Forest.

Just as both places connected through the portal a bloodthirst leaked out from it and covered the whole place.

The dragon couple also probably realised the sudden dense bloodthirst wafting around, as their conversation which was more of the female black dragon beating her husband was interrupted and they turned their face towards Myne's direction all at once, fear was clearly visible on their face.

Soon in the nervous and fearful eyes of three beasts, Fenrir's whole body appeared.

"Jor, come here immediately, you won't be discovered by humans if you fly above the clouds. You hear me? Come here immediately, otherwise, you know what will happen, this time you won't be going to avoid a beating."

Fenrir as soon as arrived first gave a fierce glance at the miserable dragon couple, enough to make them fall on the ground like a dead dog, then she looked at Waffle who was held tightly by Myne, after which she looked at the sky and contact Jor through telepathy.

After threatening her younger brother, Fenrir came to Waffle, held him in her mouth and shook her head fiercely left and right with her all might leaving after image behind.

What kind of childish way of giving punishment is this? Is she trying to release water? Well, this seems natural since no mother can hurt her child, but isn't this too much? Myne couldn't help but complain in his heart while looking at Fenrir awkwardly.

"As a single parent, Fenrir is indeed too soft-handed."

"Mother! Sorry, please stop, I am about to vomit!" Waffle's fearful voice sounded in Myne's head, and just as Fenrir threw Waffle down from her mouth, he stumbled and fell to the ground, and soon vomited all the food he had eaten just some moment ago.

"Boy, why you didn't listen to Myne? Haven't you promised me that you will be a good boy? Do you have any idea how I would feel if something happened to you?" Fenrir said angrily.

"Sorry Mother, I won't do that again, I just wanted to help but didn't expect that big lizard would attack me," Waffle said apologetically while looking down, he didn't dare to make eye contact with Fenrir because of shame.

"There won't be a next time, you will be coming back with me, your journey ends here today. I can't let a bad boy like you play outside and make trouble for everyone."

"Nooo! Mother, please, I want to live with Myne, I promise I will be a good boy, and never make trouble for you or Myne again. Please don't take me home, there is nothing interesting to do there," Waffle pleads nervously.

"Now it is too late to beg, nothing can change my mind, you are coming home boy," Fenrir said with determination.

"Myne, please say something, Mother is going to take me home," Seeing that Fenrir's decision is firm and he can do nothing to change it, Waffle hurriedly changed his target.

Myne didn't speak immediately, he first looked at Fenrir who was giving him a dangerous glance indicating not to ruin her performance, then at Waffle who was using his killer move The Puppy Eyes on him, which was very lethal for people who love cute things, and clearly is one of Myne's biggest weakness, so after thinking for a while he come to conclusion that he would be in disadvantage no matter who side he took, Myne just close his eyes to avoid Waffle killer move and with heavy heart he turn his back toward him, showing everyone that he is a natural party.

Waffle fell on the ground comically seeing that even Myne whom he thought his elder brother abandoned him, while Fenrir in the background nodded her head with a satisfied expression.

After dealing with Waffle, Fenrir again released her dense bloodthirsty towards the dragon couple, but still, she didn't make a further move, probably waiting for her younger brother.

Just like that everyone didn't move slightly for the next fifteen minutes, for Myne and Waffle those fifteen minutes were nothing, but for the dragon couple it felt like an eternity.

"Where the hell is Fenrir's younger brother, how long that guy is going to let us wait," Myne mumbled dissatisfying, but then suddenly a big shadow covered everyone attracting their attention.

Everyone looked at the sky and saw a gigantic 150-meter-tall red lava-colour dragon descending slowly in front of them.

F*cking hell! So big! This is the Divine Beast, Jormungandr, the legendary ruler of the dragon race. Now this is how a Divine Beast should be, Myne thought while staring at Jor with awe, and admiration.

"Myne, I can hear your thoughts, and believe me I am not happy knowing that you low down so much on me because of my size," Suddenly Fenrir's unhappy voice sounded in Myne's mind.

"Oops, Sorry, Just joking, don't take my nonsense seriously," Myne hurriedly said.

"As if I am going to believe in your nonsense, you are asking for beating recently," Fenrir said while rolling her eyes, then she ignored Myne and spoke to Jor, "You're finally here, Jor."

"I'm sorry Big Sis for asking this again, but are you sure you don't want to deal with his matter at the Divine Spirit Forest? It's okay at the moment, but we don't know when Humes might approach this place, if they show us, it would be quite a pain in the ass to deal with things later."

"Sigh, okay you win, let's go to my place," Myne opened a big portal for everyone, Fenrir's request after thinking for some seconds.

Since It's a request by Fenrir who will give him the reward for his work later, of course, Myne doesn't want to disobey her and lose a lot of good things.

He immediately connected the Divine Spirit Forest to his current location using Space-time skill, and opened a big 100-meter tall and 10-meter wide portal.

"Sorry this is my skill current limit, I can't open a portal bigger than this," Myne apologised to Fenrir while looking at Jor.

"Don't worry about him, he can adjust his body size," Fenrir said casually and after picking up a depressed Waffle from the ground she quickly entered in the portal.

Watching Fenrir enter the portal, Jor also let out a breath of relief, he then quickly came to the black dragon family, and spoke some weird words that Myne obviously didn't understand.

Then in front of Myne's surprised eyes, a green light shone on both the male black dragon and the child dragon, and soon visible to naked eyes their injuries recovered, and both of them stood up on their feet as if nothing happened.

After healing the black dragon family, Jor said something to them, they nodded at him happily and after giving Myne an awkward look they quickly walked into the portal without any hesitation or fear, clearly their favorability toward Jor is very high.