Chapter 188: Terror of Nobles

"Why are you late?" Aniue asked with a frown after seeing Myne getting out of the portal.

"Sorry, I was a little busy with some personal matters, It got a little late even though I didn't want to," Myne said embarrassingly while rubbing the back of his head.

"Sigh, anyway let's forget about it, come with me I introduce you to other trainee knights under me," Aniue said while walking toward the first and second knight units, each unit has a total of 12 knights.

"All members, stand in line!!!!"

Seeing Aniue and Myne walking toward them a muscular knight who has an expression as if he had never smiled in his entire life command resounded throughout the wide manoeuvring range.

Right after that command, all knights who were scattered in the entire training ground simultaneously gathered and finished standing in line.

Myne, a weak newby humble hunter from a rural area with 2 finance, a big sister, and a girlfriend who has a relationship with a friend with benefits, was dumbfounded by their movement which was in perfect order. Only god knows what kind of hellish training they have gone through to have such an understanding between them.

"Uwaa, they're amazing." Myne praised with a surprised expression.

They are born to be obedient cannon fodder who can do anything for their master, Myne thought just after that while nodding his head with approval.

Looking at my dumbfounded expression, and unknown to his inner thoughts, Anieue smiled with satisfaction. Clearly, he seems to enjoy hearing praise for the knights he trains with his utmost effort.

"All members, pay attention! His Highness Anieue will speak from now..."

Hearing the knight leader's unnecessarily loud yell, Myne first looked at the knight leader who had a serious expression as if the entire kingdom was a responsibility on his shoulders, and then Anieue who had a satisfied smile plastered on his face and couldn't help but sigh in his heart.

This guy has a high talent in acting, clearly, although his face is like a stone without any expression but in reality, he turns out to be a great bootlicker, Myne thought.

As the members of the chivalric order were paying attention like little children waiting for candy, Anieue quickly stepped forward in front of them and raised his voice.

First, Anieue apologised for not being able to oversee their training personally for quite some time and announced that he would return from today's training onwards.

"And I think all of you know as well, the First Princess, Sylphid, my cute little sister will be marrying soon. Sylphid's partner will be Myne over here. Many of you might have known about him because of recent events. He's a young man with a promising future, but because of a lack of guidance at a young age, his inexperience is undeniable.

Therefore, I was thinking of leaving him with you and strictly training him. I will be starting from his foundation."

As Aniué declared that, he looked at Myne and pointed at the knight unit one with whom he already worked during the game in the Divine Spirit Forest.

Seeing Aniué very serious with his work, Myne also didn't mess around, after giving him a nod, he silently walked toward the team he was entrusting.

"Lord Myne, we are looking forward to working with you again."

A random knight whom Myne had no impression of and had just seen face once, like a fan-boy immediately came forward with a smile and raised his hand for a handshake.

Rumours are finally giving me some benefit, even Royal Knights are my fans, this feeling is not bad at all. No wonder people are crazy for fame and fortune, Myne thought and shook hands with his fans.

"Just like Brother-In-Law said, I am a novice without any experience, so please take care of me," Myne replied with a gentle smile. After all, since they are going to work together then it is natural to give a good first impression.

After exchanging greetings and shaking hands with more than 10 knights, while waiting for Aniué to change his clothes, and start treating, Myne suddenly remembers about a certain energetic fellow who even dares to insult Claude at board daylight without any hesitation. After remembering him, Myne looked around but found no trace of him, he asked his one of fans.

"By the way, where is that knight who was with me during my stay at your camp?"

Hearing Myne's question most of his fan knights looked at each other, and finally, a young-looking knight spoke with some hesitation, "Lord Myne, the knight about whom you are speaking, his name was Terry, and he died some days ago."

"Huh? What happened," Myne asked with a frown, but a sigh in his mind, he long ago predicted that this Terry guy not going to live too long. After all, insulting a noble without any high background and personal strength is the same as looking for death, no matter if you are right or wrong.

"Actually, this starts the second day after you enter the forest. That day after Terry finished his night shift, he asked for leave from the leader and wanted to go home, because that was his anniversary day. Our leaders didn't make trouble for him as he was a good dutiful guy, and granted him two days paid leave."

"But when he didn't return even after two days, the leader sent some knights to bring him back. But when those guys returned empty hands with sad expressions on their faces and told us what happened we were all shocked as no one had expected that such a thing could happen to him."

"On his anniversary day, when Terry leaves for his home, a bandit group comes into his village, and coincidentally just that time Terry's wife is coming back to her home from the market with her 3-month-old child. After seeing Terry's wife Bandit leader falls in love with her at first sight and directly proposes to her to marry him in the middle of the street.

Terry's wife of course rejected his proposal which made the bastard bandit leader angry, so without caring about law and order he forcefully kidnapped her and brought her to his temporary camp which was a little farther from the village in the woods."

"When Terry returns and learns about it from his relatives, he hurriedly runs towards the woods to save his wife and child. But till he reach there it was already too late, the first thing he saw after entering the camp is that the gang leader raping his wife in the middle of the camp in front of all his comrades.

His wife was also like a doll with lifeless eyes letting the bandit leader do whatever he wanted with her body, she had lost all hope."

"After seeing such a sight Terry lost his mind, he took out his spear and started killing everyone like a wild beast, and till others realised what was happening more than six people already died under Terry's spear, but then Terry regain some sense and asked a bandit about his child."

"Hearing Terry's question, that bandit while laughing madly, pointed at the hole at the edge of the camp behind a tree. Terry with a heavy heart quickly run towards that hole which was probably made to do shit and piss by bandits, and after coming to the hole what he saw made him completely crazy."

"He saw his 3-month-old child's dead body in the middle of shit."

"Terry, gone completely mad after seeing his child's dead body was about to kill everyone but he didn't realize that till he was dazedly staring at his dead child, the bandit leader carrying his wife on his shoulder so she can't commit suicide before he was done playing with her silently come behind him and stab a dagger directly in his head."

"When the knights go there for investigation they only find Terry and his child's dead bodies, there is no clue about the bandits or his wife, they probably run away after knowing that Terry is a knight working directly under Your Highness Prince Anieue."

Finally after finished saying that the young knight shook his head pitifully.

Sigh, coincidence my ass, this is clearly a well-planned attack on Terry and his family, otherwise how can there is such a coincidence that just after Terry made fun of Claude, those bandits visit his village, the bandit leader instead of worrying about his safety fall in love with the wife of a knight who lives in a small village and there is no way that she was otherworldly beauty, and even dare to kidnap her broad daylight.

Although I had predicted that Terry would not live long, but this kind of end, even I didn't expect. If Claude wasn't already half-died and locked in prison for his entire lifetime, then I would have killed him as soon as possible, that guy is too evil to let live, Myne thought but seeing everyone looking at him, Myne hurriedly made a sad face and spoke in low helpless voice...

"It's really tragic what happened to Terry, now we can only pray that he will be reunited in heaven with his dead child and probably his dead wife."

Seeing Myne's calm reaction Aniu who was silently watching everything in the background nodded his head with satisfaction. With this, he again confirmed that Myne is an intelligent guy who thinks more from his brain rather than from his heart and is not easily carried away by emotion. Only these kinds of qualities can make him a real member of the royal family.

After all, not all work of the Royal family are nice and righteous like most civilian think, The Royal family also have to do many bad things in the dark for the greater good, and only with this kind of mentality can the Royal family discuss many important things with a powerful person like Myne without being worried about him.

If Myne only thinks with his heart and does stupid things just like Sylphy who looks hard from the outside but soft from the inside, then they can only hide at least 90% of kingdom matter from him. But now since he confirmed that Myne is just like him who understands the situation better, and only takes action after understanding everything, he can rest assured, and train him more carefully.
