Chapter 54: Myne The Story Teller

Myne, after running away from Aisha and Sylphid, quickly found the nearest alley and hurriedly went in. Then he took out some clothes from his inventory and wore them.

Huh, finally now I am feeling a little safe, thank god that today there weren't many people at the town gate, otherwise, I am definitely become the topic of people's fun time, Myne thought while taking a breath of relief.

After which Myne exited from the alley, and headed toward his home. Because it was evening time along the way, he saw many people walking on the market street, some returning from their work, some buying ingredients for dinner, children running and playing along the road like headless chicks, women in name of shopping made their small groups of 3-5 talking and laughing with each other.

Myne who lives most of his life alone, of course, ignores everything around him, and after buying some vegetables and fruits to fill his stock, he returned to his home.

The first thing after coming to his home Myne did is to look for his uninvited guests, who forcefully settled in his house, without caring about his permission, and without any accident, he saw them dozing under a tree lazily. But Little Doggy who got his small, quickly opened his eyes and looked toward Myne, and after seeing him, he hurriedly comes to him, while wagging his tail.

"Woof Woof..."

"Okay, okay, little guy, calm down, although I didn't want to say it, but I also miss your this cute little face, compared to those ugly green potatoes I prefer to see your cute face," Myne said with a smile while rubbing Little Doggy's soft and hairy head.

After playing with Little Doggy a little bit Myne gave him fruit as a reward for his good behavior and tere the house, Little Doggy whose only height is little not his stomach and mouth, ate the tire adult palm size fruit with two bites and start following Myne whether he goes, as he has nothing better to do.

Myne also doesn't care if Little Doggy follows him, he just ters the house and headed toward the backyard, there he filled two buckets of water from the well, and took a quick bath.

"Sigh, wh would a bad guy with water type skills come in front of me? It is really quite tiring to fetch water from the well," Myne said while wiping water from his body.

Th he wears new clothes and throws dirty ones in a basket, after which he wt into the kitch and took out some meat, and vegetable from his Invtory, and start making simple dishes to fill his stomach a little bit, although he is going out to meet June to relive his pressure and tsion of all-day hard work, and there June defiantly made a nice dinner for him, but there are still three guests living in his house whom he needs to provide food, and one of them is his favorite, so, of course, he has to give some of his time to them as well.

"Okay, guys, hers is your food, eat slowly and look for the house if you are free, I am going out, so see ya soon," Myne said after putting the big bowl filled with Orc meat in front of the Mightya trio and headed toward the June house.

After walking or so minutes Myne again saw that wretched graveyard beside June's house where last time he saw that old man or maybe the ghost with a lantern in his hand.

"Sigh, I hope last time what I saw was just an illusion rather than a real ghost," Myne spoke while walking slowly toward June's house. "June defiantly has something wrong with her mind, otherwise, how can a normal person ev think of living alone beside a graveyard?"

Knock Knock... While looking fearfully at the graveyard, Mayn finally reached the main door of June's house and quickly knocked on her it.

"Coming, wait a momt..."

June's voice comes from inside the house, and soon she ops the door.

June was wearing casual house clothes, with a simple black color short skirt a loose blue T-shirt, and her hair tied in a ponytail style.

"Ahh, Myne! Long time no see!" June exclaimed excitedly while hugging Myne tightly. "Since you don't come to meet me after our last meeting I thought you dump me after taking my advantage."

"Oye, naughty girl, what do you mean by taking your advantage? That day it was clearly you who act first, and I just wt according to the flow," Myne said with a serious face, while also hugging back June tightly as he found that June doesn't wear anything under her loose T-shirt, and her hard nipples clearly revealing her currt mood, that what she really misses.

"You, what did you say? You mean it was me who kiss you first, and wanted to take your tire rock-hard dick inside me?" June said fake angrily while funny face.

"Well, that's what happed as far as I remember," Myne said without hesitation, but in their tire conversation, his hand not for a single momt stopped their task and continuously roamed a June's back, butt, and sometimes on her crotch area as well.

"Sigh, okay you win, happy? Now come in, half of dinner is ready, just wait for a little and we can eat dinner together, till th if you like you can read that horror book, I think you defiantly love it," June said jokingly while walking toward her kitch.

"Well, tell you the truth, I am illiterate and I don't know how to read, so instead of wasting time, why don't I just help you to make dinner?" Myne said and quickly ter the kitch, and before June can refuse his help, he already start cutting fruit for a salad.

"Are you still scared so much of ghosts? You know they ain't real, right?" June said jokingly while removing rice from the wood stove.

"Sigh, June, do you believe in God?" Myne asked calmly instead of starting quarreling with June.

"What silly thing are you talking about, of course, I believe in God, after all, they give us powers to protect ourselves from those powerful monsters, although ev th only a handful of people can really fight those monsters," June said with a little sad expression on her face, while looking at Myne weirdly.

"Since you believe that there are Gods a us, ev though you never actually saw them, th why can't be there ghosts as well? Are ghosts more powerful and omnipott than Gods, that we can't see them no matter what? And if there are no ghosts th where are all those ghost stories coming from?

Don't tell me that one day someone wakes up from bed and just starts writing ghost stories from out of thin air, also did you forget what happed to Hamir? Myne asked while looking calmly at June.

"But what does this have to do with Hamir? Doesn't he just go missing wh he and his team go to explore an unknown cave in our neighboring town?" June asked nervously her Adam's apple twisted as she said that.

"So You don't know about it, huh, no wonder you are taking these ghosts so lightly. Let me tell you what happened to Hamir and his team members, who were blinded by greed, and become someone else food," Myne said mysteriously.

"As you maybe hear about it, Hamir was a B Rank adventurer, and one day he and his other 3 teammates, his girlfriend Ha, his best friend Luka, and a newbie who just recently joined their team as a porter to gain some experience from experts, so when he awakes his skills he can go on an adventure on his own.

They all headed to the guild like always to do some missions.

There Hamir accidentally got some months old mission which was still valid, and the mission also wasn't much difficult, just explore a newly discovered cave, made a detailed map about it, and kill all the monsters living in there, so the owner of that place can start mining in the cave in order to see if there any valuable metals there to dig or not.

Hamir was very happy to get such a simple mission with a high reward of gold coins, but he still had some doubt about this mission, as he felt like something is not right, otherwise how can such a high-quality mission not choose by anyone else?

Later he even inquiry about it at the receptionist's desk, and found that at the start no one knows anything about this mission, such as who posted it, or whom to contact after completing that mission, etc so people become little suspicious and no one takes this mission as they big conspiracy behind it and they didn't want to give their head to someone for money, but because the receptionist assured Hamir that this mission is defiantly safe at least its that guy who posts that mission have nothing wrong with him, Hamir would get his mission reward from the guild and this mission is indeed real, only then did Hamir bit the bullet and decide to accept it, as a reward for that mission is really too attractive for him.

Th Hamir and his teammate brought all the necessary items to explore an unknown cave, like a lot of lanterns, candles, some magic light balls, a lot of food, and water for emergencies, as they didn't know how long it takes to them to complete their task, a big rope, and finally their weapons.

Th they took a carriage that happened to be on its way to their destination, and they reach that cave without any up and down during their journey other than the carriage driver's old man nonstop chit-chat and his unbreathable smell."

"Wait a minute, how do you know that carriage driver smells bad? Doesn't it too much information?" June asked confusedly.

"Do you want to listen to this story or not?" Myne said with a poker face.

"I want..."

"Then shut up and don't disturb me again in the middle of the story, also this is the first and last warning, you will get all your answers till the story will be finished."

"Okay..."

"Sigh, so where was I? Oh, yes, they come to the cave, the cave was 5 km away from the nearby town, have wide open space in front of it, and its entrance is under a big mountain, which looks like a monster who was sleeping with his mouth wide open, completely dark, nothing can be seen inside from outside.

Th Hamir starts guiding everyone, according to his ready made plan, and he sends that newbie with his best friend Luka, to explore the surrounding area to see if there are any footprints or marks of dangerous monsters, if there are, th they would immediately drop this mission, as fighting with a powerful monster in the cave same as giving an invitation to death, as Hamir know his and his teammate capability very well.

Soon the newbie and Luka, come back with good news, the suring area was completely clear and there was no trace of any dangerous monster, after hearing this Hamir asked Luka to help him, and they starts setting some traps at the trance of the cave, so if there any monster accidtally try to ter in the cave, they maybe find out about it after hearing its voice.

While Hamir and Luka are setting traps, Hamir's girlfrid Ha, who had too much excitemt filled up in her can't wait to go into the cave, and find non exist treasure hidd in it, as she had read many of those kinds of books, she thought that in this kind of cave, they would definitely found something precious. So she grabs that newbie and walked into the cave.

At the start, she just looks a the cave trance while waiting for Hamir and Luka, as she is scared of going deep in the cave with only that newbie and herself, as she now that both of their combat power is literally 0, she only get chance to work with Hamir is because she has a healing skill and a nice body.

As Ha lazily looked a in the cave, suddly she saw a gold coin on the g some meters away from her. At first, she didn't believe what she was seeing, and thought that it was her hallucination but ev after rubbing her eyes 3 times and wh the gold coin still was on the g, she immediately becomes excited and quickly ran toward it, and grab it.

That newbie who was siltly following her like a servant also noted that gold coin, but unlike Ha he notice some more things, which Ha ignored unknowingly, but he didn't speak and just stood at his palace.

Ha after feeling the gold coin's cold metallic touch in her hand, becomes very happy, but wh her eyes fall on the newbie, she puts away her smile and spoke with a cold voice, "You didn't show anything, got it?"

What can that newbie who doesn't even show his skills say? He just nodded his head, while giving her an okay gesture.

"Good, I like smart boys, now go and help Hamir, you don't need to follow me anymore," Ha said with a smile while giving a random glance at the corner of her right side.

"Okay, then take care," That newbie said and after looking at Ha's face filled with impatience and greed for the last time with hesitation, he swallowed the words which were about to come out of his mouth and walked out of the cave.
