

Chosen by Fate 752

Chapter 752 - Trinity – What Did I Miss (VOLUME 4)

Trinity

~~

Now that it was once again just Reece and I in the bedroom, I wanted to talk to him. I wanted to ask him about everything that I missed while I was gone. Three months was a lot of time to miss in the lives of my family. I wanted to know what all happened while I was 'away'.

I also would have liked to go back to my regular bed, the one that I shared with Reece, but I was still hooked up to all of these machines. I didn't have the tubes connected to me anymore, but I was still hooked up.

"What's wrong, Little Bunny?" I guess some of the disappointment showed on my face.

"Nothing." I looked away from him as well as the machines that were tethering me to the bed.

"Don't give me that. What is wrong? Does it still hurt?"

"No." And it wasn't. I just wanted to lay in my comfortable bed. That was all. I wanted to enjoy my time while I sat and talked to my husband.

As nice as it was to be relaxing and laying down, this was still a hospital bed and that meant that, by definition, it sucked. I didn't want to lay in a hospital bed in my own bedroom. Nope, I wanted something softer.

"Then, what is it, Little Bunny? Please, sweetheart, tell me." Reece was still so worried about me that he didn't want me to hide anything from him. Well, fine, I could tell him.

"I just want to get out of this bed and go to our bed. I want something more comfortable. That's all it was. But I am still hooked up to all of the machines so I can't have you take me over there." I didn't sigh. I didn't look away. I tried not to make it appear that I was as upset as I was. Still, he could tell. He wasn't going to let it slide either.

"Like hell I can't take you over there."

At that point, Reece started to turn off all of the machines. When he was done, he turned to me and started to unhook the wires from my body. All of them.

"Reece? How is it you know what you are doing right now?" I was shocked to see his quick and efficient moves.

"Who do you think gave you your sponge baths?" He chuckled at his own answer. "I know how to do all of this. I could hook you back up too if I wanted. I did it all the time while you were asleep. I didn't let anyone else except for Griffin help me with taking care of you. You're my wife, my Little Bunny, and it was my responsibility."

"Reece." I felt my heart begin to melt as I listened to him. "Thank you. Thank you for loving me and caring so much for me."

"Trinity, my sweet, sweet, Trinity, you can be so fucking dense sometimes." He laughed as he scooped me up into his arms. "You're so fucking smart, but you can be so stupid when you want to be. Of course I love you. And of course I am going to care for you. You're my wife, the mother of my children, and my mate. We were born to be together. There is nothing in this world that could ever change that."

"I know. Still though, I wanted to thank you for it."

The moment that he sat me down on the bed, I sighed in relief. The mattress was so soft and so luxurious. It felt like heaven compared to the hospital bed. And it was just what my poor exhausted soul needed after traversing through the underworld for three months.

"This is amazing. I had almost forgotten what my own bed felt like. This is exactly what I needed."

"Little Bunny, I am sorry that I wasn't here for you. I am sorry that you felt the need to hide everything from me." I knew that Reece was going to feel this way. He had been the one here to try and hold everything together while I was gone. He was the one that truly needed to be consoled, but here he was catering to me still. All because I couldn't even lift my arms at the moment.

"No, Reece, I am sorry. I shouldn't have tried to be a superwoman and do everything on my own. I was reckless."

"Let's stop blaming ourselves. I have a feeling that this will go on for a long time if we keep it up." I could see the smile that was playing on his lips. Reece really was the best man that I could have ever hoped for. He was always there for me no matter what. I knew now just as I have known for a long time, Reece was the best.

"Reece, tell me all that I missed. Tell me what happened while I was away. I need to know."

"I will." He smiled and nodded at me. "I will tell you all about the things that you missed. That is, after you tell me what I didn't see on that screen. I want to know what you went through. Tell me everything, Little Bunny. Please. Start at the beginning and explain it all to me."

He meant it too. He wanted to know everything that happened, and he definitely didn't want me to skip over anything.

"Fine, Reece. I will tell you."

And so, I did. I told him about the voice that led me from my office and toward the throne room. I told him about seeing what I thought were imps at first and the mysterious door that was just standing here in the hallway. He was curious about that little bit. He thought it was interesting that I had heard him and the kids talking when I first went into that world. I told him how it gave me strength to keep moving on.

He didn't like the idea of the other me very much. When I told him what she did and said he was murderously angry. The only problem was that she was inside of me so it wasn't like he could kill that person that hurt me. She was me.

He wasn't surprised about me seeing Franny, but he was surprised that she attacked me. He was angry that I kept getting attacked over and over again. There honestly had been a lot of them, hadn't there?

I continued on. I told him about every level of hell that I had been in so far and about every obstacle that I had encountered. It was quite the long tale and I know that by the time that Reece had heard everything that happened before I got to the Hall of Damnation, he was about to have a panic attack. I knew this because his face was pale, his eyes were rimmed and red and filled with anger, and his breathing was heavy.

"All of this happened to you?" He was pissed off. "You and our boys went through all of that stuff?" He was trying to keep his breathing calm as he spoke.

"Yes, Reece, all of that is what happened to me." I was nodding at him with a solemn look on his face.

"OK, let's forget about the souls that the fucking bitch, Hekate, sent after you. Let's put them on the back burner for a moment. She seriously sent a hell hound and a hell snake after you? That bitch had better be glad that she is already dead. I swear by all the celestials and every fiber of my being, I would have hunted her down and killed her if you hadn't already done it, Little Bunny."

"I know, Reece." Everyone that knew Reece and me knew that he was telling the truth. He would have been so mad if he knew about all of this before I got back. I am just glad that he didn't know about it. That made it a lot easier when he came to me. He was able to hug me and not be angry about the other things that had happened."

"Little Bunny, if anything would have happened to you and the boys. If you and them would have been hurt. I..I don't know what I would have done." He looked so lost and lonely.

"I know, Reece. That was why I wanted to make sure that I protected the babies while I was over there. When I knew that they were our babies, when I found out that I was pregnant with them back there, it made all of those protective mother instincts kick in." I did my best to assure him that I wouldn't have let anything happen to Zachary, Zander and Zayden.

"But what about you, Little Bunny. Who was protecting you? Who was going to stop you from getting hurt? When I think about how close you came to getting hurt and dying while fighting that fucking dragon, that piece of shit goddess, I can't tell you how badly I wanted to go and help you. Do you know how hard it was to just sit here and watch you fight? I could barely contain the anger in my heart."

"Reece.." If I would have been able to move, I would have pulled him closer to me so that I could hold him and kiss him. He needed to be comforted, that was what he was missing for so long. But I couldn't do that. I couldn't help him. "I love you, Reece." I almost sobbed when I told him this.

"I love you too, Little Bunny."