

Cinderella And Her Beautiful Octuplets

He needs to find her

Chapter 4

“Congratulations Hannah Rodriguez, your new name is now Cinderella Mackenzie. Welcome to the world of wealth and riches” the lawyer said and Hannah smiled at her.

“Excuse me,” the lawyer said and with that, they walked out.

Arianna smiled at Hannah.

“So, you are officially my daughter. We need to celebrate “ Arianna said and Hannah forced herself to smile

“Can you please get me out of this hospital first?” Hannah said and Arianna smiled.

“Of course, I will. Your passport, I mean our passport is ready. We leave for New York City tonight” Arianna said and Hannah stared at her weirdly.

“Why leave? I thought you would stay here in Atlanta?” Hannah asked

“Yes, I do but I have my house in New York and I’m taking you there to rest. You are too weak to strive at the Mikelsons. I’m sure they know your weakness and they will use it against you, making you lose the battle against them.

If you want to strike your enemies and win, you must go unexpectedly and ready, like a thief in the night, and strike them all.

You need to go to New York now. You need to regain yourself and build yourself to be a strong woman before you can fight back” Arianna said and Hannah nodded in response.

Right now, she didn’t care about anything, she was willing to do just anything for Arianna, all she wanted was to get revenge.

“Arianna, I need one more thing from you,” Hannah said and Arianna raised her eyebrows asking her to go on.

“I need to find the man who raped me. I need to make him pay for what he’s done” Hannah said and Arianna swallowed hard.

“Sure, anything that makes my daughter happy,” Arianna said and Hannah smiled.

It felt good to have a mother again. This woman, Arianna, reminded her so much of her mother. She talks like her mother and acts like her. If she didn't know her mother's siblings she would have mistaken Arianna for her mother's twin.

Hannah's mother had died of cancer when she was just ten years old. It was a difficult time for her. She didn't have anybody to take care of her, her father had left when he found out her mother had cancer. She was just so little when he left her.

She's been through a lot from childhood and Jeff knew all about it. He knew he was the only one he had in the world and yet he betrayed her. She was going to make all of them pay.

A male figure is seen sitting inside his office staring at his laptop in front of him. He rubs his hands on his forehead trying to focus but he just couldn't.

The pleas of the lady he's forced himself on came running into his head like a flash. It kept distracting him from working. He just couldn't get her to plead and cry off his mind. He closed his laptop and sighed softly.

Just then his Best friend, Liam walked inside his office, with his hands tucked inside the pocket of his trousers. Liam works in his company as his managing director and assistant.

“Brandon, are you Alright?” Liam, who noticed the look on Brandon's face asked as he walked in.

“Did you find anything about the girl?” Brandon asked softly and Liam sighed softly.

“No, I didn't” Liam broke the news to him and he slammed his hands on his table, making Liam flinch.

“What do you mean you didn't find her or anything about her? You fucking brought the girl and drugged me to sleep with her. You fucking took her away before I was awake and dumped her in god knows where and you tell me you didn't find her” Brandon yelled. Liam stared at his friend, he was looking as furious as ever.

He wondered why. Liam believes he's done Brandon so much good by giving her a girl on his birthday. Brandon has always been a workaholic, he didn't even have the chance to be with any girl rather than to satisfy himself.

In summary, he hates women in general. and he gave him a girl to sleep with as a birthday gift and he yelled at him, Liam thought and scoffed.

“I didn't bring the girl, I paid some guys to help me bring some random girl and they brought her. According to them, they saw her walking by the street and they abducted her. They could barely recognize her.

I didn't even have the opportunity to see her before she was taken away. I asked the men to drop her off where they found her which they did. No one recognizes her, it would be difficult to know her true identity “ Liam said

“Whoever you paid to abduct her, pay them to find her and get out,” Brandon said coldly and Liam raised his hands in surrender. He wasn't surprised if Brandon told him to get out even though he was his best friend.

Brandon has always been like that. Short tempered and bossy. He wondered how they became friends in the first place because this Brandon of a man is cold-hearted.

“I'll make some calls if I find anything I'll let you know,” Liam said and with that, he walked out of the office.

Brandon groaned and pushed his laptop from the table making it hit the ground.

“I need to find her,” Brandon groaned. He felt so guilty for forcing himself on the last.

It was his birthday and his best friend Liam had drugged him and brought a strange lady for him to sleep with.

He wasn't in the right sense when he had forced himself on her. He remembered he had walked inside the dark room and located the bed. When he had laid on it he noticed a female figure lying on it.

He was on drugs, he couldn't resist her scent, and he felt like she was calling on him. He could still remember how she had cried helplessly, begging him to let her go but all the pleas fell on deaf ears.

If there was one thing Brandon hated in his life was women. He didn't want to have anything to do with them but now his friend had forced him into one.

He needed to find the lady and make up for what he's done. He would compensate her with money, that would be the best and he would cut her off his life completely.

TBC