

Charming Mommy of adorable triplets Chapter 2208

Chapter 2208 Sunny calmly said, "Now that everything has ended, I'll be safe. You don't need to worry. Mahina, the butler, and Damian will be here. I'll be more carefree when you're not around."

Daisie placed down her cutlery and got up. "Sir, Cameron, I'm done. I'm going to check on them."

She left the space for the father and daughter.

After Daisie left, Sunny asked Cameron somberly. "What do you think about Willie?"

She looked around. "What do you mean?"

"Do you think I can't tell? Something is going on between you two, and he has feelings for you." He was very serious.

Cameron was shocked. "That's nonsense."

'Wayne has feelings for me?'

"Only you know whether that's nonsense or not." Sunny picked up the napkin and dabbed the corner of his lips. "Think about how you feel when you're around him, then about how you feel when you hang out with the other members."

After that, Sunny picked up his cane and went upstairs.

Cameron froze on the spot, her mind in a mess.

Did Waylon really have feelings for her?

After breakfast, Cameron went to water the plants in the garden and was not paying attention. Someone stood in the corridor, observed her for a while, then slowly approached. "Are you trying to drown the flowers?"

Hearing that voice, she paused but didn't look back. "They'll grow back."

Waylon looked down. "I'm going back to Bassburgh tomorrow." Cameron turned off the valve and turned to face him.

The

way she felt when she was with him was definitely different from what she felt when she hung out with the other guys. It was maybe because they had been treating her like a man, so Waylon stood out.

Waylon squinted. "What's wrong?"

Cameron suddenly walked toward him and stopped an inch away before she slowly approached him.

Waylon didn't move away and kept his eyes on her.

Cameron placed her hand on his chest, which surprised him. "Your heart beat feels normal."

If he had feelings for her, why did his heartbeat stay normal when she approached him?

Waylon raised his brows and suddenly leaned close to her, his breath blowing on her forehead. "What are you testing?"

She took a few steps back in surprise.

Why did her heart beat faster? Did she have feelings for him? Had she fallen for him?

She asked curiously. "Doesn't your heart beat faster when a girl gets close to you?" Was she the only one who had symptoms like that? Was her father just messing with her, and Waylon didn't actually have feelings for her? Waylon lightly chuckled. "Are you talking about your own reaction?"

Cameron immediately denied it. "No."

Waylon slowly walked closer to her. "If you really want to test it out, I have a way to do it."

Before Cameron could react, she was already in his arms.

She pressed her palms on his chest. His heart was beating and felt hot on her palm. He lowered his head, planted his lips on her forehead, then touched her hair and said in a low voice, "Can you feel it?"

Cameron licked her dry lips and didn't know what to say. Her palm, which was still pressed against his chest, felt as though it was stuck there, and she couldn't pull it away.

Waylon's breath was all over her brows and nose while his eyes glazed over her lips. Cameron batted her lashes. When they almost touched, she was startled by a flash, that came from upstairs and pushed him away.
