

::::Chapter 49::::

"All I wanted was for you to hate me to the extent that you won't see my face ever again. And that's the reason why I told Samara to manipulate your mind into thinking that our bond is broken." How could he!

<sup>19</sup>
a

I'm so shocked that I get up from the chair, walk towards Alarick and slap him as hard as I can. "That's for telling Samara to manipulate my mind," I say. He has his head hung low in shame. I continue, "I understand that you wanted to protect me but your way of protecting me was wrong." He is refusing to meet my eyes. "We are mates! We are supposed to confide in each other! But instead of doing that, you kept pushing me away! Do you know what I've been through since the day I met you? Do you have any idea how much you've hurt me?" He doesn't say anything.

<sup>20</sup>
a

"Alarick, if you would've told me about your past in the beginning and about your worries for me then we could've avoided all of this. I would've stayed away from you. We could have kept everything a secret. No one would've gotten hurt. I don't think I'll be able to forgive you for what you did to me," I say and leave the study. I find Matt waiting for me. "Let's go home," I tell him. Without saying anything to me, we head towards our pack. When Matt and I get inside our pack house, I find Joshua waiting for me.

<sup>79</sup>
a

"Hello, cousin," he says with a smirk.

<sup>187</sup>
a

Author's Note:

The next chapter will be the last chapter of this book. So, start preparing yourself for the ending. There will be a sequel. I hope you will continue to support me in future. <3

<sup>12</sup>
a