Chapter: 751

Master hands Fight By Speaking

At night, the Silverhall Nightclub was bustling, with countless men and women coming in and out.

There were also couples holding hands, and one of them was Huan and Aron. Standing upstairs and glancing at the noise downstairs, Tim was like a passer-by compared with the people who came to enjoy themselves in the Silverhall Nightclub.

Before Tim didn't get approval from Michelle for his friend requests, but saw an unexpected guest.

"Your clothes have been washed. My sister is busy. I'll bring them to you." said Leon friendly, putting a bag of clothes in front of Tim.

Tim glanced at the bag and his face didn't look good.

Without giving him a chance to think about it, Leon said frankly, "I know you like my sister. You can like her, but you can't disturb our lives."

"Michelle is not your biological sister. It's none of your business." Victor raised his chin proudly and said, "It's her blessing that Master Tim likes her."

"Yes, it's a blessing to have someone like her, but it doesn't mean that she has to accept it. She just need one blessing." Leon didn't get angry because of Victor's unhappy t him, but now she doesn't like him anymore. "

The news Victor brought pleased Tim. The gloom on his face disappeared and he raised his eyebrows to look at Victor.

Victor clicked his tongue and said, "Leon has already had a girlfriend. He said he liked Michelle, does he want to make her as his mistress? Master Tim, you must act quickly. How about moving to the place next to Michelle's home? There is a saying, "A person in a favorable position..."

"A person in a favorable position gains special advantages." Tim rubbed his aching eyebrows.

"That's right!" Victor clapped his hands and smiled evilly, Master Tim, do you want to move there or not? As soon as you give the order, I'll do it for you. I promise I'll complete the task. Just move to their next door. You two will be neighbors. "

Tim nodded and thought it was a good idea.

After receiving the order, Victor immediately went to do it.

Tim was rich, and Victor was good at luring others. He asked a group of guys to surround the neighbors of the Michelle, and then succeeded in tempting them.

But he didn't buy the residence, but rent it.

Neighbors

The sky in the Lexingport City seemed to have been pierced into numerous holes. It rained for three consecutive days and didn't get sunny until Sunday.

It was a rare sunny day, so Michelle slept late.

It was rare sunny. Elaine got up early to wash clothes and bask in the quilt. She took Adams to do the housework with her and cleaned up the house.

The small villa next door was also busy. The furniture was moved in and out, and Victor, who was in charge of the command, stood in the yard and shouted, reminding the people who carried things not to be careless here and not to destroy them.

There were old people walking and children chasing in the community happily. It was very lively.

After pouring out the trash, Adams came back and said to his wife, "Have you heard the noise next door?"

It was getting late. Elaine was cooking in the kitchen. Hearing her husband's words, she leaned back and turned to look at him. "Is Baylor and his wife back? They said that they would stay in their son-in-law's house for more than half a year. I thought they wouldn't come back."

"No, it's not Baylor. I heard that he is a new neighbor." Adams went into the kitchen, rolled up in," said Tim indifferently.

"Move to our neighborhood?" Michelle peeked at him and found that although he was fierce, he was willing to help her. First, he was afraid that she would get cold and gave her a coat, and now he helped her take something.

Michelle thought, 'This should be a man with cold face but warm heart, right?'

Noticing that Michelle was looking at him, Tim spilled the beans accidentally. "Yes, I live next your door."

Michelle quickly walked to him, stepped back and looked at him. She said in surprise, "Next door? Did Baylor rent the house to you or sell it to you?"

"Rent." Tim answered briefly. He was afraid that if he said too much, Michelle would feel him fierce.

"Well, then I won't see Baylor and his families again." Michelle pouted and was a little reluctant, but soon she smiled, "Then we will be neighbors from now on."

Her bright eyes reflected the figure of Tim. Tim felt that her eyes were warmer than the sun shone on him today.

"Yes, neighbors." Tim's voice softened a little, but Michelle couldn't feel the subtle change.

Because she had already met the gentlest person, so she could not feel the gentleness from others.

Share My Snacks And Happiness With You

Adams looked at the door and saw a tall man coming with his daughter. He glanced at them and thought the man was the courier who came to help, but felt something was wrong.

She took a closer look and found that the man dressed decently.

"Are these all sent by Lydia?" Adams had already walked over, glanced at the packages in front of them, and finally looked at Tim. "Michelle, who is this?"

Tim looked at him and didn't say anything.

"Dad, he is my... Friend." Michelle almost said he was her fan. After thinking for a while, she changed it to be a friend and then smiled.

Her hesitation made Adams's eyes change when he looked at the two of them, with a little inexplicable meaning. Then he smiled at Tim, "Friend of Michelle, come in and have a seat."

"My name is Tim Shen." Tim nodded slightly to show his respect and walked in. Looking around, he was a little surprised. He didn't expect that he would enter the Michelle's house as soon as he moved there.

Elaine, who was cooking in the kitchen, heard the noise and came out. She saw a strange man at home. He braised meatballs?"

"Don't be impolite to the guest." Elaine blamed her.

Adams ate quietly, and from the corner of his eyes, he was paying attention to every move of Tim.

Tim picked up a meatball and put it into Michelle's bowl, continuing to eat quietly. He indeed liked Fried Bacon with Garlic Sprout very much.

Before Tim left, Michelle took out a big box full of snacks and threw them into his arms. There were nuts, dried pork slices, dried fruit, milk candy, chips and so on. All in all, there were a lot of snacks.

She didn't take it well and dropped several bags on the ground.

Michelle bent down to pick them up and put them back into his arms.

At that noon, the sun was very good, not as hot as summer, not as cold as winter. It shone on Michelle's delicate face. Her eyebrows and eyes were curved, and her eyes were shining with thin sunshine, like two sparkling lakes.

It was warm and peaceful.

Tim heard Michelle say in a sweet voice, "I'll share my snacks and happiness with you."

He was holding a pile of snacks, as if holding treasures.

Plant Strawberry

After sending Tim away, Michelle walked back and forth in the hall to digest, with strawberry in her hand as after-dinner fruit.

"Dad, where did you buy these strawberries? They are so sweet. "

"It's a gift." Adams said, "It's a gift from Leon. As long as the strawberry is ripe, he will ask people to send fresh strawberry here every day."

Michelle was stunned and almost squeezed the remaining half of strawberry bit into juice.

'Leon once said that he would plant strawberry for me.

So I am eating strawberry planted by Leon?

Is it?

Is it for me?'

Michelle stared blankly at the strawberry in her hand, and its sweetness was still in her mouth, just like what Leon had said to her before.

She opened her mouth mechanically to bite off the remaining half of the strawberry and chewed it gently. She lost in thought.

Adams didn't find anything wrong with his daughter and went upstairs. Michelle's parents had the habit of taking a nap, but only Michelle didn't.

She stood in front of the champagne roses for a long time until Huan called and invited her to have fun. Then Michelle went out.

Seeing Michelle stepping out of the home under the setting sun, Elaine smiled and reminded her to be careful on the way. She took a plastic basin to the yard and stopped in front of the clothes hanging rope.

grinned, revealing her cute canine teeth. She looked cute, and she rolled her eyes. "Leon planted strawberry for me."

Aron was shocked, "What? Is this some kind of cipher between you two? "

Huan was also confused. She looked at Aron and asked, "Is that the same as what I think?"

Aron shrugged and he didn't know it.

"Oh, let me have a look." Rainy stood up excitedly. Then she got closer to Michelle and tried to take off her clothes. She wanted to find out whether there was a hickey or anything else left on her body to prove that they had spent a wild night.

"Come here. Let me see where Leon planted 'strawberry' for you? What did you do last night? Come on, tell us all!"

Rainy's mouth were full of the smell of alcohol, directly sprayed on the face of Michelle, which made her whole face wrinkle. She released the bottle and hugged herself.

You pervert! Don't pull my clothes! " Michelle stood up and ran to Huan, forcing Aron to leave.

Aron was speechless.

He almost lost his temper, but he controlled himself. He told himself to be generous and not to argue with a drunk woman.

Seeing that Aron was a little sullen, Huan reached out and grabbed his hand to comfort him. Then she looked at Michelle and said, "Tell me the truth. Did he really do 'that' for you?"

"Yes, he did." Michelle giggled and nodded.

Rainy sat back next to Huan, rested her head on Huan's shoulder and fell asleep.

"Are you two in love?" Huan asked with concern, and suddenly thought of something, "Hold on, did Leon bastard break up with his girlfriend? Did he break up with the woman he took with him at the party?"

Michelle tilted her head and thought for a while. She nodded and said, "Yes. He did."

"That's good, or you will become a mistress." Huan breathed a sigh of relief, "He had done "that" to you. Is he your boyfriend now?"

Michelle pouted and held Huan in her arms, "No, Leon is not my boyfriend."

Caught off guard, Huan was almost knocked down. She felt like a tumbler, with a Rainy on her left shoulder and a Michelle on her right.

She sighed. When she heard Michelle said that Leon wasn't her boyfriend, she was so pissed off that she almost leaned back.

Then, Aron stood up and stood behind Huan. He couldn't help but yell in his heart, 'Why should I come to a party that are all women?'

"Bastard! Leon is the rare bastard in the world. If I see him now, I will scold him badly." Huan scorned.

Hearing this, Michelle immediately said, "No! You can't do that. You can't scold Leon!"

"I don't want to talk to you. Go to the washroom and wash your face to see what you look like now." Huan moved her shoulders and pushed her out.

"Okay." Michelle got up obediently and went to t ars with one hand, and said in a hoarse voice, "You used my used bed sheet and quilt, and..."

The bed sheet and quilt cover he had slept on were private things. When Michelle took them away, she felt too ashamed. Now they were exposed face to face, and the shyness spread all over her neck and face.

Even if she couldn't see clearly, she could feel a layer of heat all over her body.

Michelle lowered her head in shame and reached out to push him, but was firmly caught by his big hand. The hand that was pinching her ear slowly slid across her face and neck.

She got goose bumps like a limp current running through her body.

Michelle was so soft that she called him Leon in a sobbing tone.

"I only ask you one question. Do you like me?"

"Yes, I do." Michelle planned to tell him tonight. Now that he asked her to answer, she didn't need to be nervous and said it naturally.

Leon gasped for breath. And when he spoke again, his voice was even lower, which was the man's suppressed and restrained lust.

"Who do you like?"

"Leon."

"Who likes Leon?"

"Me..."

"Good girl, say it again." Leon rubbed her nose with the tip of his nose and breathed more heavily.

Michelle pursed her lips and replied gently, "I like Leon." She paused for a second and said firmly, "Leon, I like you."

After a long time, Leon kissed her nose and said, "I like you too."

Be In Love

The last sentence was something that Michelle had never thought of, and she dared not imagine either.

At that moment, she thought it was an imaginary answer, but she really heard the words "I like you, too", like a small stone slowly falling into the water, raising a small wave.

Tears welled up in Michelle's eyes, and then her little mouth twitched. She really cried out.

When Leon's finger touched the warm wetness, he was frightened by the low cry. He wondered if he had forced her too hard to cry just now.

"Why are you crying?" He wiped her tears in a hurry and distanced himself from her.

Michelle held her mouth flat, and her voice was soft and crying, "I don't know. My head hurts after drinking."

'No wonder I smelled alcohol.' Leon thought.

He reached out to rub Michelle's head and said softly, "Go back to sleep if you have a headache."

"Sleep, sleep, sleep?" Michelle was flabbergasted. She shrank back to the window and timidly retorted, "No, no, no. It's too early."

Leon's hand was in the air, and her fluffy head had dodged away. In the dim car, he could only see the outline of Michelle. But he could also hear a hint of panic and tremble from her voice.

Leon couldn't help laughing. He looked at her through the darkness for a long time before explaining slowly, "I'm driving yo ed speaking, he saw the stunned expression on Michelle's face. He reached out his hand to raise her chin, squinted his eyes and smiled like a cunning fox, playing with a simple rabbit. "Michelle, you have to compensate me."

The crooked index finger was pressed against the skin of Michelle's chin, and the skin immediately became hot, and the heat continued to spread over her body.

He used to point her forehead with the same finger, but she wouldn't feel hot. Now when he touched her chin, she was not only hot, but also so nervous that her throat was dry.

"How, how to compensate?"

"Let me kiss you." Leon had given up on being a good man for the time being.

Michelle's eyes widened in an instant. Her face flushed and her heart beat fast.

She raised her hand to cover her mouth and crossed her hands.

"Eh?" Leon stared at the back of her hand and paused with the end sound lengthened, as if asking her why she covered her mouth.

"If I don't cover it, it will jump out." A muffled voice came from Michelle's palm and she lowered her eyes.

Leon didn't give her a chance to lower her head. He raised her chin again with his fingers and looked into Michelle's beautiful eyes, with a little peach blossom like at the end of her eyes.

"Michelle, take your hands off. I'll help you block it back."

Michelle put down her hands obediently.

As soon as her hands moved to her chin, Leon bent over and kissed her, not only on her soft lips, but also on the edge of her fingers.

Michelle's fingers suddenly shrank down as if they were scalded.

Their lips quietly clung to each other. Michelle felt something that she had never felt before. It was softer than electricity and gentler than waves hitting the coast.

She felt soft all over.

Her heart beat faster.

'Liar! Leon is a liar.' Michelle cursed him in her heart.

As if hearing what she said in her heart, Leon pressed his lips against hers and said softly, "Open your mouth. Only in this way can I help you block it back."

As soon as Michelle moved her lips, Leon reached out his hand to hold the back of her head. He was not content with the light kiss and deepen the kiss.

The lust instantly burned through Michelle's body, and her eyes gradually became blurred.

Leon kissed her hard.

After a while, Michelle couldn't help moving her lips and gasping for breath.

She was almost suffocated.

Michelle thought, 'Why is kissing as suffocating as swimming? No, kissing is more difficult than swimming. I had never choked when swimming.'

Seeing her like this, Leon slid his palm down from the back of her head and pinched the back of her neck, spr shin.

As soon as she went downstairs, she saw her mother coming out of the kitchen with two breakfasts. Elaine was stunned to see her well-dressed appearance.

"Michelle?"

"Good morning, Mom." As if she didn't see the confusion on her mother's face, Michelle greeted her father who was sitting at the table and reading newspaper, "Good morning, Dad."

Adams was calm. He smiled at her and said, "You got up so early. Don't you go to work at half past nine? There are still two hours left."

"It's so good to get up early. Success comes to those who prepare well and put in effort." Michelle's face was full of smile, even brighter than yesterday's sun.

Elaine looked at the only two breakfasts in her hands and said, "I'll make another one for you."

"No, thanks, Mom. I can go out to eat. Mom, let me help you." Michelle reached for the breakfast and said.

Elaine followed her closely and felt that her daughter was really abnormal. She sat on the chair and asked, "Michelle, what makes you so happy? Can you share it with us?"

Michelle froze and found that her mother was looking at her with loving and expectant eyes. And even her father was looking at her with the same eyes.

Michelle thought to herself, 'Oh no! I was so happy and had forgotten!'

"Are you in love?" Elaine hit the nail on the head.

Michelle was stunned. She pursed her lips and blinked.

Elaine knew her daughter the most. She knew Michelle must have fallen in love and Michelle didn't intend to tell her either, so she pretended to guess wrong. "No? It doesn't matter. One day if you fall in love and your relationship is stable, you can bring him home for dinner."

Michelle's eyes lit up and quickly realized that she had overreacted. She chuckled and immediately sat next to her mother, holding her arm and acting like a spoiled child. "I know, mom. Thank you, mom. Thank you for helping me wash the bed sheet and quilt cover yesterday. Thank you, mom."

"Not at all." Elaine patted her on the face.

Michelle rubbed against her palm and said, "Next time it's my turn to wash, I'll help you wash. Mom, don't scramble for it with me, okay? Daddy, don't scramble for it. "

Adams said, "Okay, I'll remind you next time. Besides, your mother doesn't have to go to work from today on. I'm still very busy. Come back early to accompany your mother and have dinner with her after work. I may not have time. And don't stay out all night. "

When Adams said the last sentence, he looked at his daughter again.

Michelle replied with a smile, "I know, Dad."

nd said, "Okay." she was worried that Leon would continue this topic, so she changed the topic.

"Brother, did you see your bedding when you went to my home to get the key yesterday? Sorry, I didn't mean it. "

"I know." Hugging her tightly in her arms, Leon was in a very good mood. "I know you didn't mean it. You did it on purpose. I don't blame you. I'm very happy. At least, they can accompany you for me."

"Brother, don't you think I'm like a freak?" Michelle carefully raised her head from his arms. As soon as she raised a little bit of her head, ruby reached out and pressed her back.

He was afraid that he would be a freak first when he saw her face.

Every night, Michelle slept on his bed sheet, quilt cover and pillowslip, which was no different from sleeping on his bed.

He couldn't control himself at the thought of it.

Leon took a deep breath quietly, his eyes sparkling. "I'm more like a freak."

"No, you are not." Michelle said seriously.

"I am." Leon hugged her tighter. "I like to hear you call me brother."

Michelle hesitated for a moment, "Why?"

Leon chuckled, "I didn't mean the way you call me. It's just that at a certain time, I might like you to call me like that."

Hearing what he said, Michelle was even more confused.

Around nine o'clock, Caroline went to her studio with a bag in one hand and a cup of coffee in the other. At the door, she saw that Michelle got off a Rolls-Royce not far away from her.

She didn't see who the driver was, but she saw the plate number clearly.

It was a rare license plate number in the Lexingport City. The driver must have a powerful background.

He had something to do with Michelle. Caroline only thought of one person, Leon, who she met in the hospital.

After the car drove away, Michelle saw Caroline who was about to turn around and leave. She immediately trotted over and waved her hand, shouting, "Caroline!"

Caroline stopped and waited for her.

As soon as she approached, Caroline could tell that she was in a good mood. She not only dressed up carefully, but also had a smile on her face.

"Good morning, Caroline."

"Good morning, Mimi."

At first, Caroline called her Michelle. Later, Michelle said that she would get used to being called Mimi, so everyone called her Mimi.

Caroline looked her up and down and said with a smile, "Good. You finally know how to dress up. Please keep it in the future."

Michelle smiled shyly.

The two walked in side by side. Caroline was tall and wore high-heeled shoes. She wa

Michelle thought 'So I would refuse Cara politely after she finished her words.'

"The first Ballet Festival was held very successfully, so the second one is highly valued and expected. Now that if you can finish photographing well, your promising future will come. I believe that you can do it well. I and the teacher think that you are very good at photographing and can grasp the soul of the character, but... "

Caroline paused for a moment, "But you are also under pressure. The photographer who took publicity photos for them last time was my senior. They were going to continue to invite him this time, but Valerie chose you. She has the power of discourse.

If you can't do it well, you may face criticism. So what do you think? I respect you."

Michelle opened her mouth and was about to refuse, but Caroline said, "I forgot to tell you that the cost is very high."

"How high is it?" Michelle immediately changed her mind.

Caroline stretched out her hand to gesture the numbers, and Michelle agreed without hesitation. She said seriously, "Cara, I'm not afraid of criticism. Criticism can make me grow up. What I lack is experience and criticism. I'll take this task!"

Caroline was speechless.

'What a guy who sees only money.'

Emotional Harm

Michelle walked out of the office and then went back. She turned around and looked at Caroline with a serious look.

Caroline only saw her so serious when she was shooting. Stunned, she asked, "What's wrong?"

"Ruby, I have a secret to tell you." Michelle pursed her lips, mustered up her courage and said, "My brother's girlfriend is not Valerie. They have broken up."

Shock could be seen in Caroline's eyes. "Last week, I saw them sitting together at the auction. Valerie won the most expensive bid. I forgot what it was because I was too shocked at that time. The Fengs are really rich."

Of course, they were rich. The Fengs were relatively rich in C Island, but they were the richest here.

But she was not rich at all. How could she take good care of Leon?

So she had to work harder to earn money.

Michelle felt sad but did not say more.

Back to her desk, she sent a message to Lydia who was in the B City far away.

"Lydia, I ended up with Leon. I didn't tell anyone else, but I can tell you in secret.

Lydia replied almost in a second, "You mean Leon?" !

, there were not many employees. In less than three minutes, everyone had got food and began to eat. When they saw Michelle's good dishes and soup, they suddenly lost appetite for the dishes in their hands.

Gray couldn't help swallowing. "Can I have a sip of soup? I always think that the food in our canteen is comparable to that in a star rated restaurant. After all, Sara has hired a famous chef, but..."

"I can't afford the food that Mimi got. So, don't eat in our canteen." Caroline sat beside Michelle and stared at the strawberries. "Mimi, can I have a strawberry?"

"Of course. Ruby, you can eat it, and so do all of you. But you have to leave some to me." Michelle looked up at the three dishes and one soup on the table. "You can eat all of them. It is too much for me."

Gray was the first one to take food. "I just want to have a sip of soup."

"Thank you, Mimi," other colleagues echoed with a smile.

Caroline had a strawberry. When she caught a glimpse of the logo on the box, she asked in surprise, "Strawberry from Dream Manor? Here is its logo. Mimi, do you know its owner?"
