Leon Be Quick

"I don't know its owner."

"Dream ? Really?" The female colleague was also shocked. She reached out and turned the box around. As expected, she saw the logo on the box. "It's true."

Michelle asked in confusion, "What is the Dream Manor? What's wrong with strawberry? It seems to be ordinary."

"The strawberry is ordinary, but the Dream Manor is not. It's in the suburb." Gray seemed to know this very well. "Generally speaking, the strawberry is planted in the greenhouses, or in the fields. But it is a manor."

"Mimi, think about what can be called manor." Gray said, "The manor is not very large, but it is as dreamy as its name. It is girlish and elegant. It's designed by a famous architectural designer. You can imagine that."

Gray sighed and continued, "Anyway, it's a very beautiful place. In particular, thousands of red strawberries was growing in the green areas. It's so beautiful that it can be a great tourist attraction, but..."

"No one is allowed in!" Gray said with regret, "I was shut out. Even if Caroline paid Tessa a visit, Tessa didn't let her go. I heard that Tessa retains a strong

r. Do you understand?"

Michelle didn't get the hidden message. She just nodded.

Leon smiled with satisfaction. Looking at her watery eyes, which were even clearer than the flowing water in the stream, he suddenly felt an urge to get laid with her.

To forget that, Leon could only pull her into his arms and said, "Let me hold you for a while."

"Okay." Michelle's face was against his chest, but there was nowhere to put her hands. They had never hugged each other so closely before.

Her face was hot and her lips were a little dry.

Wynn called Leon. Luckily, it didn't destroy the sweet moment since he was wearing a Bluetooth headphone.

Leon held the little girl whom he always dreamed of in his arms. His desire grew stronger, so he gasped heavily. He raised his hand to hang up the phone, but he found himself trembling uncontrollably.

Michelle happened to speak at this time.

"Leon, are you done? Hurry up. I'm going to work."

Leon was stunned.

"What?!" Wynn was shocked.

It was hard for her not to think much about it.

Wynn cursed, "Bastard!"

Then she hung up the phone.

Leon didn't want to be a good man, but he was afraid of scaring the girl in his arms.

He patted her back gently, and Michelle slowly raised her head. Her face was still a little red, and it was most likely covering her body with his body to warm it up.

Leon felt his chest burning.

Leon asked, "When you get off work, how about I pick you up for dinner and then go to the movies?"

"Okay, okay!" Michelle was overjoyed. How much she wished to do that with him.

"Okay." Leon reached out and pinched her face. Michelle smiled more brightly.

Someone's phone rang.

It was Michelle's phone.

When she saw it was her father, she immediately hushed to Leon and said in a lower voice, "It's my father's call. Leon, please don't make a sound."

In fact, he didn't understand why they had to be into a secret relationship, but it was impossible for him to get answer from Michelle. Michelle was very tight lipped. She wouldn't say anything if she refused to say it, which could make him anxious to death.

But it was impossible to say that Michelle didn't like him. He was sure that Michelle only liked him.

Just like he liked her.

She didn't want to make it public, so he had to hide it first.

'Even if I am a little unwilling, I could bear it for the time being, and when I couldn't bear it, I will force her to say the truth.'

Thinking

'Kiss me again!'

Michelle opened her eyes wide.

After being kissed two times in a row in broad daylight, her brain began to lack of oxygen. She said, "The units are different! The numbers are also different!"

Leon was pissed off and laughed. 'She just changed the units and retorted me.'

"Say it again."

"Eleven months?"

Leon gave her another kiss. When his lips left, he looked into her shy and flustered eyes and said, "Say it again, I'll kiss you when I am not satisfied with it."

"Nine months?"

She was kissed again.

Michelle looked out in a hurry. There were cars passing by and people walking. She wanted to shrink back subconsciously, but Leon held her in his arms and pinched her chin.

She changed it nervously, "Six, six months?"

She was kissed again.

Michelle was so shy that she closed her eyes and said, "Three months!"

After waiting for two seconds, she found that the kiss did not come.

She quietly opened one of her eyes and found that Leon was staring at her with a smile. He was finally satisfied.

'Three months! But how could I let Leon fall in love with me in just three months?'

Michelle was a little worried.

The kiss came again silently.

Before Michelle could say anything, Leon pressed his lips against hers and said, "This is my reward for you."

Michelle blinked. 'Was I cheated?'

Leon drove Michelle back to work. On the way back, Leon called Wynn back.

"Why did you call me just now?"

As if he hadn't heard what Leon had said, Wynn asked playfully, "Is it over so soon? Are you in love with Michelle now?"

Leon kept the promise that didn't tell others that they were in love, but if others had guessed it, it was none of his business.

So at this moment, he said in a very happy tone, "Think it by yourself."

"You two must be in love! You two must be together. Shouldn't I congratulate you?" Wynn was sure.

"What do you think? But you have to keep it a secret. We haven't made it public yet." Leon raised his eyebrows slightly.

"Wow, it's so exciting. But that's right. If you announce your relationship, it will certainly cause a great uproar. You still have to prepare to announce it all again. How pitiful Michelle is."

Wynn sighed on the other side of the phone and suddenly realized something. "No, you haven't been idle for the past three years. Everything is ready. Now you two confess your love to each other, your relationship should also public. Why did you end up like a secret relationship?"

"So I'm the one who's pitiful," Leon said obediently, feeling sad and sweet in his heart.

"What?" Hearing tha and the queen must have been stimulated. They plan to get out of the duty as soon as possible."

"What stimulation? Is there anything else that can irritate them? Except for the accident between me and Nini, and now Van and Don..." Leon asked in confusion.

"Yes! It is the princess." Before Leon could finish his sentence, Wynn raised his voice and interrupted, "Didn't you check the moments of the princess and John? It shouldn't be presentable."

He didn't want to say what they posted, and he wouldn't admit it even if he envied their passion they showed off.

"I've blocked their moments of WeChat on the first day of their honeymoon." After hearing that, Leon was suddenly enlightened. "So my parents were stimulated, right?"

"Yes," said Wynn calmly.

Leon couldn't help laughing. "No wonder. When my parents got married, my father was already in office and couldn't spare time for a honeymoon. In my memory, they two haven't spent more than half a day alone together."

"It's a little miserable." Wynn couldn't help but feel sorry for them.

Leon felt sorry for his parents. "It's not half a day. Maybe six hours, at most eight hours. They were still resting time."

"Then you..."

Leon assured him, "I'll be back in three months."

The Knife On Her Neck

On the Stone Road.

As soon as Leon stopped the car, he turned his head and saw Nine lying on the ground, with silver white hair spreading on the ground.

It stared at the roadside and heard someone get out of the car. It quickly got up from the ground, shaking its hair and wagging its tail to greet him.

When it saw clearly that it was Leon, the light that had just lit up in its eyes was extinguished again. It lowered its ears and stopped wagging its tail.

It lied back to the ground and continued to wait.

Leon was speechless.

He bent down to touch Nine's head and deliberately ruffled its hair. He said angrily, "Nine, do you dislike me so much?"

Nine ignored him.

Leon asked again, "Are you welcoming me?"

It still ignored him.

However, Leon smiled and said, "Since you don't make a sound, I'll take it as acquiescence and welcome me."

Nine finally reacted and closed its eyes.

Leon was speechless.

The guard who saw the whole process was speechless.

The guard stood straight. He just took a few more glances from the corner of his eyes. He didn't expect that Nine wouldn't show respect to Mr. Leon.

For a moment, he didn't know what to do. He explained, "Mr. Leon, Nine is waiting for the two young masters to finish school and come back."

Leon felt better and a nt smile. "Since the gossip was you who let it spread, I think you have already had a plan to get rid of it at that time. So how long do you need to solve this problem?"

Although he was smiling, Valerie felt cold as if the winter was coming. The coldness spread from her head to her limbs, almost freezing her.

Seeing that she didn't say anything, Leon kept smiling and said considerately, "If you haven't made up your mind now, you can go back and think about it first. If you have made up your mind, you can solve it. I don't want to wait too long."

It seemed that the initiative was in the hands of Valerie, but in fact, it had been in the hands of Leon.

He asked her to pick a time by herself to give her a chance.

It was he who gave her the chance.

If he wanted to take it back, he could do it at any time.

It was like a knife was placed on her neck, and when it cut her throat, it was all up to the person who held the knife.

The words that he didn't want to wait too long was a warning. If she didn't do it quickly, the knife would touch her neck at any time.

The blood all over Valerie's body froze. Her lips trembled and she said, "Okay." Her voice was so low that even she couldn't hear it clearly, as if it was stuck in her throat. She didn't know if she had said it or not.

Fight In The Kindergarten

play\_arrow

In the Star Kindergarten, when the school was over, Van and Don carried their schoolbags, while Strong and Little Tail were still with them.

Today, Strong wore a new suit and carried a new schoolbag. The bright logo of the big brand made him look very confident when he walked in an ostentatious manner.

He was a chubby boy and he walked in an ostentatious manner, just like the silly son of a landlord.

The point was that he had been showing off all day long, especially the schoolbag on his back. He didn't allowed others to touch it.

Of course, Van, Don and Little Tail were not others, so he invited them to touch.

Therefore, Don didn't dislike this follower all day long. Don didn't want to get close to him, so he quietly stepped back.

Van followed his brother and walked in a row. Little Tail looked around and slowed down. Then Strong walked in front of them alone.

Then there were other students gossiping.

"It's just a shabby schoolbag. Humph, what's the big deal?"

"Yes, I'll ask my parents to buy it too."

"He is so annoying."

These people really disliked Strong, but Don pretended to dislike him. Looking at the follower who made him worried, Don shouted, "Strong, aren't

Don said in disgust, "A man can't cry easily."

He just pretend to dislike him. He reached out his arm to wipe Strong's tears, but Strong grabbed Don's sleeve and used it to wipe his nasal mucus.

"Strong!" Don really disliked him this time. Don took off his coat and was about to throw it away.

Strong followed them and cried, "Bosses, wait for me!"

Van couldn't help laughing. Leon rubbed Van's head with a smile and said, "Good. Smile more. Kids should smile more often. Don't be like your parents. Otherwise, you're not cute at all."

"Uncle Leon, they bullied Strong, and my brother beat them. What should we do next?" Van raised his head and asked.

Leon pinched Van's face gently and said softly, "What do you think we should do? You can go back and think about what we should do, what the school should do, what the classmates who hit others should do, and what Strong who was beaten should do."

"Okay!" Van knew that his uncle was teaching him something.

Thinking, from different angles to think about the same question.

Leon held Van's hand and said, "Think about it another day. Today I'll take you to Michelle's house."

Strong didn't suffer any substantial hurt. He was just pushed and fell to the ground, his face covered with dust.

When Strong's grandma saw her grandson's dirty face, she knew he was obviously bullied. She pulled her grandson and made a fuss at the gate of the kindergarten.

Leon didn't care and left with the two children.

Nine bent over the car window, stuck out its tongue and shook its tail, attracting passers-by from time to time.

Looking at the fluffy head protruding out of the window and its snow-white hair gently fluttered with the wind, Van's eyes lit up. He happily ran over and rubbed Nine's head with his arms.

"Nine, here you are. Did my uncle take you here?"

The child's voice was sweet and crisp. His cheek rubbed against Nine's head, like two milk balls sticking together.

Don also ran over, patting Nine's head with a smile and calling its name.

The two brothers opened the door and got in together. Nine kept sniffing at the two kids.

Leon was still on the phone at the roadside, staring at the two kids in the car.

He briefly told Amy what had happened in the kindergarten, and Amy would deal with the rest.

After getting on the car, he found that Nine was very restless. It kept rubbing Van, sniffed and finally stopped on Van's left hand.

As soon

ur mommy said she would be fine as long as your brother was fine, it's because Don is naughty. As a mother, she is worried that her children will fall and get sick. You are too considerate, so she doesn't worry about you much."

Leon pretended to be angry, "But, you haven't told us that your hand is injured. Your mommy will also feel uncomfortable if she knows it. Both of you are your mommy and daddy's little babies, okay? You should protect yourself from now on, okay?"

Van chuckled and nodded, "Okay!"

"That's right. Van, you are so cute when you laugh."

When the doctor was dealing with the wound for Van, Van was so painful that tears fell down, which made Leon feel sorry for him and gently exhaled beside him.

All of a sudden, Van said, "Uncle Leon, can you not tell daddy and mommy? I don't want them to be unhappy."

Leon felt sorrier for him and nodded in agreement.

But he still lied to Van. While the doctor was applying medicine, he called Nina outside and told her and John everything that happened today, including what Van said in detail, reminding them to keep it a secret.

After hanging up the phone, Nina's eyes turned red. She had no mood to spend her honeymoon. She didn't need to mention it, and John had bought the air ticket back to the Lexington City.

"Don't forget to greet when you arrive at Michelle's home, okay?" Leon had been telling the same thing all the way. Now when they arrived at the gate of Michelle's community, he had to remind them again, "You should call Michelle's father Mr. Adams and Michelle's mother Mrs. Elaine. Do you know that?"

Don put his hands on his hips impatiently and said, "I've said I knew it. Uncle Leon, you have to say it again. It's almost been one hundred times."

"I didn't say so many times. Don't be garrulous. I hasn't said it for more than ten times." Leon patted Don's head gently and rubbed it over his head.

"My hair! Hair! Don't touch my hair. Or I'm not handsome anymore!" Don flapped his uncle's arm and complained angrily

The little boy didn't know how to control his strength. Leon's wrist was slapped hard for several times. He quickly pulled back his hand and praised, "You're the most handsome boy in the world."

Don raised his chin and snorted. He walked around his brother and ignored his uncle who had ruined his hair.

Van said to his brother, "Uncle didn't say it one hundred times, but eleven times."

Leon was speechless.

'Did I say it so many times?'

Don was so forgetful that he forgot everything he didn't care about in the blink of an eye and walked forward without saying anything.

"No, no!" Michelle waved her hand and shook her head, "My mom will see you. She will ask you to have dinner if she sees you. Then there are only three of us at home. If we are not careful, Mom will find it out."

Her mother and father were both smart and she could not hide it.

Michelle reached out to push him, "No, Leon, you should go back quickly."

Caught off guard, Leon was pushed two steps. He stopped and turned to the person behind him. "I'll watch you enter the house from a distance, okay?"

After thinking for a while, Michelle thought it was not impossible.

So she let go of his hand and whispered to him, "Leon, you have to hide well and don't let my mom see you."

"Okay." With a faint smile on his face, Leon hid his cunning in the darkness and followed her into the house from a distance.

Then he followed her.

Standing at the door, Michelle saw Van and Don sitting on the sofa. She was stunned for a while before she could react.

Leon came to her quietly again. Her brain was stunned in an instant, and then she didn't come to her sense.

"Leon!" Michelle widened her eyes and pushed him away in a hurry, "Hurry up! Hurry up! My mom is not here! Hurry up!"

Leon kept smiling nervously. Seeing her in a hurry, he found her lovelier. He wanted to hold her up and kiss her.

Leon let her push him out. There was a faint smile on his face, but also a hint of helplessness.

"Do you really want me to leave?"

"Hurry up!" Michelle was so nervous that her hands trembled. She was not in the mood to joke with him. However, just as she pushed him to the yard, Nine appeared out of nowhere and stopped him.

Elaine also came out of the kitchen with the last dish and saw the two people at the door. Michelle was petite and only reached his shoulder. She couldn't block him out of sight.

Michelle, you are back. Where are you and Leon going? Come and eat."

With Nine in front of them and her mother behind them, Michelle felt that he couldn't escape. She was so nervous that she froze in place, forgetting that there were two more kids at home, and that she didn't notice how natural her mother's tone was.

So she whispered, "Leon, see, you can't leave, can you? Didn't you promise not to come?"

When Leon turned around, he saw Elaine was taking dishes to the table with her back to them. Leon bent over, got close to Michelle's ear and bit it gently.

Michelle was stunned as if the electricity ran through her body. With her eyes wide open, Michelle hurriedly

His hands passed through Van's armpits and carried him to his side. He also picked up a piece of fish and began to pick up fishbone.

He picked up the fishbone quickly and fed them to Van's mouth with a spoon when Michelle was in a daze.

Seeing how skillful he was in feeding the child, Michelle stopped struggling when she thought of herself, but she picked up the fishbone happily.

"Leon, you feed him. I'm here to pick up fish bones, but it's a little slow."

"It doesn't matter." Leon said with a smile.

Van was confused, especially when Michelle put the fish without fish bones into his bowl. His uncle couldn't see or spoon it as if he was blind.

"Uncle Leon." Confused, Van pointed at the fish piled up in his bowl.

Leon's hand holding the spoon paused. He frowned and said, "Don't you want to eat? It's a waste. We can't waste food, okay? I will eat it for you."

Then Leon scooped up a full spoon of fish and put it into his mouth.

Van was stunned. He was speechless. He thought in confusion. 'Uncle Leon, you are not blind.

No, Uncle Leon, you have eaten all the fish that Aunt Michelle gave me!

All of them!

It has been eaten up!

Van wanted to cry.

Children under five years old could hardly show their true thoughts. From others' point of view, they felt the children were confused.

"What's wrong?" Michelle stopped picking up the fish bones and looked at Van's confused face. "Don't you like it? If you don't like it, then don't eat it. You will get tired of eating too much."

"Well, eat something else. Van, what else do you want to eat?" asked Leon.

Van shook his head and said, "Uncle Leon, I'm full."

In fact, he didn't eat much. He only ate 1/3 of the food in his bowl, but drank half of the soup in his bowl.

Although Van didn't eat much, he just felt a little full.

Leon didn't force him to continue eating. Since he didn't need to feed Van, they could have a good meal.

Don was full too. He took his brother's hand to play with Nine, and Nine stopped in front of a photo.

The wooden frame was hung on the wall.

Don pointed at the person in the photo and asked, "Van, is that my sister-in-law?"

Van raised his head and said, "It seems so."

"Wow, Nine, you are so awesome." Don held Nine's neck and praised it with ed and said, "Forget it. Don't think too much."

"Okay." Without much hesitation, Michelle rolled up her sleeves and said, "Leon, you can play with Van and Don by yourself. Mom is washing dishes. I need to clean up."

Leon saw her fair and clean arms without any jewelry.

She didn't wear the jade bracelet he gave her.

His face darkened.

He walked over and grabbed her wrist, which scared Michelle. The rag in her hand fell to the ground.

"Leon?" Michelle looked back in a hurry. She didn't let out a sigh of relief until there was no sound in the kitchen, but she was still afraid of being discovered. She wanted to withdraw her hand, but the more she moved, the tighter he held her hand.

At last, her wrist hurt.

"Leon, what's wrong with you?" Michelle asked him.

He was fine just now, but now she felt that he seemed to be angry.

She had never seen Leon get angry in front of her.

Michelle was even more flustered.

"Where is the bracelet I gave you?" Leon frowned unhappily. 'On her birthday, she wore it happily and said she wouldn't take it off. Where is it now?'

"Lost?" Leon asked tentatively.

"No!" Michelle quickly refuted, and the panic in her eyes was driven away by herself.

'As long as she didn't throw it away.'

Leon let go of her wrist, frowned and asked, "Why don't you wear it if it's not lost? You said you liked it."

"I saved it. I put it in the safe of the bank," Michelle no longer felt nervous and said frankly.

Then she lowered her head like a child who had done something wrong.

Leon couldn't help but laugh. He had thought of many possibilities, but he had never thought of putting it in a bank safe.

"I gave it to you because I wanted you to wear it. Why did you save it?" Realizing that he had spoken in a more serious tone, Leon touched her head and comforted, "I'm sorry. I thought you didn't want it."

"No, it's impossible." Michelle didn't get angry. She looked up at him and smiled, "Leon, I really like that bracelet, but..."

But it was too expensive.

The bracelet which cost him tens of millions could tremble her when wearing it.

She wanted to say something but stopped on a second thought. It occurred to Leon that Michelle had already known his identity and that the bracelet was very valuable.

He didn't tell it to Michelle himself, but she heard it from others. So he always forgot about it a r. Smelling the smell of the girl, an improper desire arose in his mind.

He walked slowly on purpose, trying to be stay with her in so close distance one more moment.

When he arrived at the door, he stared at the breakfast in Michelle's hand. "Can you give me some? I'm hungry and have a stomachache. I don't have anything to eat at home."

He guessed that the breakfast in the bag must be made by Michelle herself, so he wanted it very much. He was satisfied even if she could give a mouthful to him.

Michelle hesitated for a while. Seeing that he looked so pitiful, she thought she had two breakfast in her hand, so she gave him one.

"There is hot milk in it. You have a stomachache, so you can drink it first."

Tim took the hot breakfast from her hand, and his whole palm was hot. It was warm like the hot potatoes someone threw into his hand when Tim was on a mission for the first time in a snowy winter.

At that time, he was still a young man who smiled wantonly.

"Thank you." Just like what Tim had thanked that person in the past, he had thanked to Michelle, but not as wantonly as he had smiled at that time.

Ten years had passed, and he had become a cold man. However, the warmth in his palm still melted away a thin layer of ice. Michelle saw a vague smile.
