

The Billionaire Alpha's Contract Lover by Caesar Erickson

Chapter 421

Chapter 421

When he saw the figure curled up into a ball, his heart suddenly skipped a beat.

“Stop the car!”

Zack immediately slowed down and pulled over. “Sir, what’s wrong?”

Griffon pushed open the car door, quickly got out of the car, and walked towards Taya.

Taya couldn’t see anything clearly. When she felt someone approaching, she immediately got up and stepped back.

“Don’t come over!”

Seeing that she was so wary, Griffon thought that she didn’t want him to get close to her, so he stopped.

The tall and straight figure stood where he was and looked at her quietly without saying a word.

His cold and snowy eyes were tinged with a touch of crimson, and even the corners of the eyes turned sad.

It was not until this moment that Griffon realized that it was over. He could not even take a step closer to her.

Taya didn’t know who the person in front of her was. She only knew that the other party didn't dare to step forward after being stopped by her.

However, she couldn't see it now. If she was discovered, she would come over again.

When she thought of this, the monstrous fury in her heart was gradually replaced by fear.

She quickly turned around and ran forward, regardless of whether she could see or not.

Her resistance, defense, and disregard made Griffon heartbroken.

It was his fault. He had said that he would not disturb her anymore, but he still couldn't help wanting to get close to her.

He looked at the figure who had run away with red eyes and said to Zack, "Follow her, and don't let her find out."

Zack immediately nodded and quickly followed Taya.

Suppressing the pain in his heart, Griffon turned around and returned to the car.

As soon as he got into the car, he saw Amon's car coming over.

He knew that the two of them had a conflict, which was why Taya had left home.

Now, Silas could get close to her, and Amon also could get close to her. Only he could not.

His lips curled into a smile...

The bitter smile, tinted with a hint of sadness, made him feel as if he was being consumed by darkness.

Not long after, Zack returned to the car. "Sir, someone is here to pick her up."

Griffon nodded slightly, suppressed the emotions in his eyes, and said to Zack, "Let's go."

Zack started the car, and so did the other cars. More than a dozen luxury cars drove out at the same time.

Amon turned around to take a look. If he was not mistaken, the man in the Aston Martin was tailing after Taya.

He brought so many people with him, indicating that he had urgent matters to attend to, but when he saw Taya, he stopped to follow her.

Moreover, it didn't seem like he was lustful. Instead, he was silently protecting her. Could it be that man was also an admirer of Taya?

Amon withdrew his gaze and looked at Taya, who was walking forward with difficulty. He frowned slightly and walked over to grab her.

"Come home with me."

The deep voice coming from above made Taya's heart tighten, and the feeling of suffocation that had just been trapped in the car came back again.

She pushed Amon's hand away and turned to escape, but because she didn't know the direction, she accidentally stepped into the bushes on the side of the road.

When Amon saw her fall, his expression froze for a moment. Then he walked over silently and looked down at her.

“Are you blind again?”

Taya fell to the ground without saying a word. Her pale face was full of fear and wariness.

Amon squatted down, turned on the light on his phone, and looked into her eyes. Seeing that she didn’t respond, he understood.

“George said that your eyes have sequelae and need to be protected. You can’t cry or overwork, but you didn’t listen.”

After that, he stretched out his long hand to Taya and said lightly, “Let’s go. I’ll take you home.”

Chapter 422

When Taya heard the word “home,” she found it ridiculous. “That’s your home, not mine.”

She never had a home, from wolf cub to adult period to adulthood. She thought that finding her sister would give her a family, but the man in front of her, who claimed to be her sister’s husband, locked her in the car and tried to suffocate her for not coming home on time. How could she possibly go home with him?

Seeing that she refused to go back, Amon said casually, “That’s the house I bought for your sister. It’s her home, as well as yours.”

The smile on Taya’s face grew colder. “My sister ended her life early in order to escape from you, which means that she doesn't love you at all. Those houses and cars don't belong to my sister. You forced her to accept them!"

Amon's face suddenly turned dark, with a hint of fierceness in his eyes. "She didn't love me. How could she have spent ten years pursuing me with all her heart and mind? It was she who betrayed me and abandoned me after she had me and tried to escape from me by all means. Yet you blamed everything on me!"

Taya was stunned, as she didn't expect that it was her sister who pursued Amon first, and even for ten years.

Then...her sister must have loved Amon, but why did she abandon him if she loved him?

Taya was very confused, but Amon was unwilling to say anything more about Rosalie. Instead, he lowered his head and stared at her coldly.

"Now that I'm willing to give her everything, you should be grateful to me for her instead of accusing me here!"

"Hurry up and come home with me while I'm still patient. Otherwise, I don't know what I'll do!"

When he saw Rosalie lying on the bed with another man with his own eyes, he had already gone completely mad.

Therefore, he didn't even want her body. He only wanted her wolf spirit because her wolf spirit had once loved him.

But the wolf spirit transplant recipient was disobedient, and it annoyed him to the point of wanting to strangle her.

Taya couldn't see his expression clearly at the moment, but she could tell from his tone that he had broken down.

She was very clear that it was because she said her sister didn't love him that he was stimulated and became like this.

But it was impossible for her to go with an emotionally unstable person now. What could she do to make Amon let her go?

After a few seconds of silence, she slowly looked in the direction of the Amon.

"Have you ever thought that a woman who chases a man for ten years must love him very much? If she loves him deeply, she cannot possibly betray him. There must be some misunderstanding behind all this..."

Taya couldn't judge who was right and who was wrong between him and Rosalie. She only knew that there must be a deep misunderstanding between them.

She hoped that after Amon calmed down, he would investigate thoroughly and not accuse her dead sister of "betraying her lover."

Upon hearing this, the angry emotion in Amon's eyes gradually faded and was replaced with Rosalie's silent demeanor..

He had asked her before, and she said there was no misunderstanding. It was just as he had seen. What could be more credible than her own admission?

Amon's black eyes were gradually enveloped in darkness as if he had been caught up in the past and couldn't get out of it.

His silence made Taya not know what he was thinking, so she didn't say anything else. She just quickly thought about how to get rid of him.

About a few minutes later, Amon reached out his hand to her again. "Let's go back."

Chapter 423

Taya's scalp went numb, but she still plucked up the courage and said to him, "I'm afraid of you. Can I not go back with you?"

Even if she had temporarily lost her eyesight, she didn't want to go back with Amon.

She was afraid of being locked in the car by him again, and experienced the feeling of death again...

Amon saw the fear in her unfocused eyes, and a complicated look once again appeared in his eyes.

After staring at Taya quietly for a while, he sighed heavily, "Go back first." When Taya heard that, she knew that there was no room for negotiation.

She didn't struggle anymore. She stretched out her hand to him, she let him take her back to the car which made her feel suffocated.

It was very close to the villa, and within a few minutes, the car stopped.

Amon grabbed her arm, led her back to the bedroom, and brought her a box of medicine.

"This is the medicine that George gave you for your eyes. I didn't give it to you because I was afraid that you would run away."

No wonder her eyes suddenly went blind.

It turned out that Amon had hidden the medicine and deliberately prevented her from taking it on time.

Taya clenched her hands and the desire to leave him became even greater.

.....

She calmly opened the medicine box, took out a few pills, popped them into her mouth, and swallowed them abruptly.

Then, she turned to Amon, who was standing aside, and said coldly, "I'm going to bed."

Amon glanced at her lightly and saw her fumbling to lift the quilt before turning around and leaving the bedroom.

The next day, Taya woke up, and opened her eyes. After seeing the color of the ceiling above her head clearly, she was relieved.

Fortunately, she was only temporarily blind and her eyesight was restored right then, otherwise, she would have to live in darkness forever...

After she got up and washed up, she picked up the smashed mobile phone and pressed the power button, but it wouldn't turn on.

She thought it was just the screen that was smashed, but she didn't expect it to be completely broken...

Taya thought that her old phone could hold dual sim cards, so she quickly reached for the Ziplock bag, took out the phone, and inserted the new sim card.

After installing it, she turned on the screen and clicked on the Facebook app...

At first, she wanted to log in to her newly registered account, but she found that her old account was still there.

She logged in and saw a lot of messages...

Her colleague, Brielle, had sent condolences every year on the anniversary of her death.

There were also other colleagues who sent messages like "May there be no pain in heaven, I hope you will rest in peace".

Even Margaret sent a message, "Taya, I'm sorry, I didn't know you had wolf spirit issues."

After seeing that, Taya's eyes couldn't help but turn red again...

She scrolled through her profile and found that Harper had posted a farewell message on her behalf.

It was because of Harper's post that everyone knew Taya had passed away.

Thus, those who treated her well said that they would miss her, and those who had treated her badly asked for her forgiveness.

Taya had moved on from the past. It seemed like one would eventually learn to let things go after experiencing life and death.

After scrolling through the messages, she clicked on the contact list and found that there were countless friend requests.

Those notifications all came from the same person: Greyson.

Despite knowing that she would not accept his friend request, he still continued to send them for many years.

Moreover, under each request, there would be a message attached: Taya Palmer.

For some reason, when she saw those two words, she could feel that Greyson liked her very much.

However, no matter how much he liked her, to Taya, he was still a criminal, and it was impossible for her to have any ties with him.

She stared at his profile photo and as she was hesitating whether to delete those requests, another friend request came in...

Chapter 424

It was still Greyson.

Seeing that he was being so persistent, Taya was a little at a loss.

She didn't accept his friend request, and instead, she cleared all the messages and notifications.

When she was planning to deactivate her account, she saw the group chat with all the clients she had worked with before, and someone had tagged Griffon.

That group was established by the headquarters of Thorin

Group to manage their clients, and the people in it were basically CEOs of conglomerates.

She thought that after her death, people from the company would kick her out of the group, but she didn't expect that...

The person who tagged Griffon was Henry, the general manager of the Wilton pack. It seemed that there he had an urgent matter to discuss with Griffon, so he directly tagged him in the group.

However, it was impossible for Griffon to respond to this kind of message. Previously, it was the people from Thorin Group who asked her to persuade him to join the group.

Thinking of the past, Taya clicked on his profile picture...

She had blocked him after they separated. They were not friends on Facebook) but she could still see records of their past conversations.

She clicked into it and saw the conversation from three years ago.

"Griffon, you've been on a business trip abroad for three months. When will you be back?"

That was when she was afraid that she would not be able to wait for him, so she mustered up the courage to send him a message, but he did not reply to it.

Taya clicked on that message, and she saw that the conversation was very short. There was nothing special either.

The only thing that warmed her heart was when he sent her two messages when he was sick.

One was, "I miss you."

The other was, "Having a stomachache. Come see me." It was already midnight when she saw those two messages, but she immediately put on her coat, bought some medicine, and went over to him.

Taya saw Griffon lying on the sofa, his hand on his stomach.

His tall and straight body was curled up slightly, and he looked like he was in a lot of pain.

She brought a cup of warm water with some medicine and walked up to him. Then, she softly called his name.

Hearing her voice, Griffon slowly opened his eyes, looking at her in a daze.

After a while, he called her name, "Taya..."

His tone was usually cold, but this time, it was soft and gentle, perhaps it was because he was sick.

However, Taya couldn't help curling the corners of her mouth as she heard his gentle voice. She smiled sweetly and said, "I brought you some medicine. Why don't you take it first?"

Griffon shook his head, raised his fingers, and patted the space beside him. "Come lie down with me for a while."

Taya always listened to him, so she nodded obediently, and put down the medicine and water before lying down beside him.

He hugged her in his arms, lowered his thick eyelashes, and looked at her palm-sized face with his beautiful eyes.

After staring at her for a while, Griffon asked her, "Why did you come to me only now?"

Taya didn't dare to look at him, and replied in a soft voice, "I saw the message you sent me, so..."

He continued to ask her, "Which message is it that made you come?"

She answered the one where he said he had a gastric and Griffon stopped talking.

Taya raised her head and glanced at him, just in time to see him frowning, as if he was in severe pain.

She persuaded him to take some medicine, but he refused to take it, so she mustered up her courage, reached out her little hand, and gently rubbed his stomach for him.

She was looking down at the moment so she didn't see his reaction, but she felt his arm around her tighten.

That night, he hugged her as they lay on the sofa. They didn't do anything and just fell asleep with his arms around her like a couple.

The next morning, although fully awake, Griffon maintained the same posture, not willing to let go of her...

Chapter 425

Taya recalled these details and suddenly felt his love for her.

However, everything it's too late right then...

She put the memories of the past behind her, logged out of the Facebook account, and planned to call Harper...

Before she dialed Harper's number, George's call came in first. "Ms. Palmer, didn't you take your medicine on time?"

Taya sighed when she heard that question. "George, Amon was afraid that I would run away, so he didn't give me the medicine."

George was silent for a few seconds. Gritting his teeth, he said, "I'll go see him."

Taya wanted to ask if those medicines were available in the country, but George had already hung up.

In the next second, Harper's call came in. She asked, "Taya, why is your phone always turned off?"

It was already midnight when Harper left the nightclub the previous night. Noticing Taya's missed call, she rushed back, only to find that Taya's phone was turned off.

Fearing that something might happen to Taya, Harper drove to Amon's villa. The servant said that Taya had already gone to bed, so she went home with peace of mind.

When Harper woke up that morning, she called Taya again, but the Taya's phone was still turned off.

Just as she was about to rush to the villa to find her, the call- went through.

Harper was finally at ease.

Taya was embarra*sed and she replied, "Harper, I'm sorry but my phone broke. I just switched back to my old phone."

Harper replied, "It's okay". Then, she continued to ask, "You called me last night. What's the matter?"

Taya briefly explained to Harper the conflict she had with Amon, and after telling Harper not to worry, she rea*sured her, "I'll see you later and take you to meet someone."

Harper didn't ask who she was going to meet; she just agreed.

After making an appointment with Harper, Taya changed her clothes.

That set of pajamas that she was wearing was given to her by Harper the day before. Amon took it away before she could change into it.

After changing into a fresh set of clothes, she took her old mobile phone and went downstairs...

Amon was sitting in the dining room having breakfast. When he saw her, he continued eating as if nothing happened.

However, Taya couldn't pretend that nothing happened, so she glanced at him coldly, turned around, and walked out of the villa.

"Come back."

A cold voice came from behind her, but Taya ignored it.

Amon put down the knife and fork in his hand, and tapped his finger on the gla*s table, “Don’t you want your medicine?”

Taya turned her head and stared at Amon. “What exactly do you want?”

Amon pushed the box of medicine in Taya’s direction and said, “Come here. Let’s discuss some conditions.” Taya glanced at him, then at the box of medicine, and said coldly, “I don’t want it anymore. You can keep it for yourself.”

She turned and left, but Amon said, “If you agree to my conditions, I’ll go back to Aronland.”

Hearing that he was going back to Aronland, Taya stopped.

She turned her head again and looked at him. “On what condition?”

Amon propped one hand on the dining table and beckoned to her with his long fingers. “Come here.”

Taya hesitated for a few seconds before she walked over and sat opposite him.

Amon picked up the envelope on the table, and handed it to Taya, saying, “Sign it, and I’ll leave immediately.” Taya opened the envelope, took out an agreement, and saw the three terms on it.

However, the terms did not clearly stipulate what she had to do. It was only stated she would not be doing anything illegal. Seeing such an agreement, Taya did not want to act rashly. “I won’t sign it if the terms are not written clearly.”

Amon said unhurriedly, "You don't have to sign. It's fine with me anyway..."

Taya sized Amon up and questioned, "Why do you want to go back to Aronland all of a sudden?"

He must have something important to do for him to leave. Afraid that he would no longer be able to control her after he left, he decided to ask her to sign a blank agreement first.

Amon was not emotional, and said in a low voice, "George said that Rosalie's child is sick, so I wanted to go and see her."

Her sister's child?

Taya was taken aback by the sudden news. "She... Did she have a child with you?"

Amon suddenly smiled, but his eyes were full of disgust. "She had the child with her ex-husband."

Since when did Rosalie have an ex-husband?

Taya was completely stunned, and she stared blankly at Amon, speechless.

Amon raised his eyebrows, and asked, "Do you also think it's ridiculous?" The surprised expression on Taya's face gradually faded away. She didn't know anything about her sister, and everything she knew was what Amon had revealed to her little by little. She couldn't make any judgments based on his one-sided words, so she chose to keep silent.

Amon didn't want to say more about things related to Rosalie, so he pointed at the agreement. "I didn't write what I want you to do because I haven't thought it through. I'll add it when I've thought it over. However, don't worry. I'm only interested in your sister, so what I'm going to do will definitely be related to her."

Hearing that, Taya smiled slightly and then stated, "I won't sign this kind of agreement."

Amon had planned to return to Aronland no matter what. If she didn't sign that agreement, he would still leave, so why would she sign it?

Amon was indifferent. "I don't care if you don't sign it, anyway, it's her child with someone else, so she has nothing to do with me." This meant that if Taya didn't sign the agreement, he wouldn't return to Aronland. Instead, he would stay there and continue to restrict her freedom.

Her belief that had just been firmly established suddenly began to waver. "You really won't let me do anything crazy?"

Amon seemed to lose his patience, and his expression darkened a little bit. "I like to do crazy things by myself. If you want to try it, you can too."

Taya's face turned pale, and she felt that he was too abnormal. If she stayed by his side, she might be toyed to death by him at any time.

After hesitating for a moment, she picked up the pen next to her and signed Rosalie's name.

After Amon saw it, he said. "Sign your own name!"

Taya asked in puzzlement, "My current identity belongs to my sister, so I should sign her name."

Amon snorted coldly "You are with Griffon, and he has plenty of ways to help you recover your identity. I don't want to be made a fool by both of you, so don't play tricks on me. Hurry up and sign it. I don't have that much patience." Taya was dazed for a moment. Did Amon mistakenly think that she was going to be with Griffon, so he drew up an agreement to continue restricting her?

However, she did not choose Griffon, and no one would help her recover her identity, so signing Taya's name was better than Rosalie's.

Taya didn't argue with Amon anymore. She took another copy of the agreement that he had handed over again, signed Taya's name, and stamped her fingerprints on it.

After signing the agreement, she looked up at Amon. "You said that my sister's child is sick. What illness is it?"

Amon put his seal on the agreement, and retorted in a cold voice, "How would I know? It's not my child..."

Taya was rendered speechless by his answer, but she was still a little worried. "You won't do anything bad to her when you see her, right?”

Amon glanced at her coolly. “I’m just going to see if she’s dead. If she’s not dead, I’ll kill her myself.”

Chapter 427

After saying that, Amon put away the agreement, got up, and went upstairs without even looking at Taya.

Taya was terrified by him. She picked up her phone, walked out of the villa quickly, and called George.

When George heard that, he laughed. “Ms. Palmer, don’t worry. If he wanted to kill Grace, he would have killed her long ago. Why would he wait until now?”

Taya was relieved and proceeded to ask more about the child.

George couldn’t explain things clearly either. He only said that Rosalie had a child with a nobleman from Aronland and nothing else.

When Taya heard that the nobles were involved, she was afraid that there would be some secrets, so she didn’t ask any more questions. She was only concerned. “Then what’s wrong with Grace?” George replied calmly, “She’s not sick, I lied to him. Isn’t he keeping hold of your medicine so I wanted to give him a hard time?”

Taya was startled, and then she laughed. “Doctor George, if you lie to him like this, aren’t you afraid that he will get back at you when he’s back?”

George responded nonchalantly, “Not only am I not afraid, but I will also find a way to keep him in Aronland.”

Taya knew that George did all this to help her, so she quickly thanked him. “George, thank you.”

George said, “No need to thank me.” Then, he warned her,

“By the way, you must take the medicine on time. In addition to the medicine for your eyes, there are also medicines to prevent rejection, so you need to take them on time.” Taya nodded. “I’ve already taken the medicine to prevent rejection.”

George was relieved. “Give me another address, and I will send the medicine to you directly.” After Taya returned to the country, George sent the medicine to Amon’s villa, but he did not expect that those medicines did not reach Taya at all.

Afraid of troubling George, Taya asked him if she could buy those medicines in the country, but he said, “It’s better to use the medicines I give you.” In that case, Taya had to give him Harper’s address. Then, she asked him, “George, how much are the medicines? I’ll transfer it to you...”

George explained, “Alpha Knight gave me 3 billion back then, and asked me to use the medical resources all over the world to find you a wolf spirit. The money hasn’t been exhausted yet, so you don’t have to give me anymore. Moreover, even if you don’t have money, I will help you take good care of Rosalie’s wolf spirit.”

Taya suddenly froze on the spot. Her face turned pale. She parted her lips but couldn't speak or make a sound.

George called her a couple of times but he didn't hear any response from her. He thought that the signal was not good, so he hung up the phone.

Looking at the dark screen, Taya couldn't recover for a long time...

She thought Griffon only asked George to help find her a wolf spirit, but she didn't expect him to spend 3 billion dollars.

It turned out that he was doing things for her behind her back, but she didn't know about it at all...

Taya clenched her phone tightly, and her heart felt even heavier.

She owed Silas many years of kindness, and she had not yet repaid it, but now, she owed Griffon 3 billion dollars.

Such a heavy burden was suffocating her, and she felt as if she had been emptied as she squatted down weakly. When Amon came out with his suitcase, he saw her leaning against the corner of the wall, looking pale.

He couldn't help but stop. In a condescending manner, he snorted at her. "What's wrong? You can't bear to see me leave?"

Taya withdrew herself from her thoughts and looked up at Amon. She stared at him but said nothing.

Amon bent down in front of her and glanced at her casually!

“Let me remind you. It’s okay to play with Griffon, but don’t take it seriously. He is not someone you should be with.”

Chapter 428

Taya felt that there was something hidden in Amon’s words as if he was implying something to her.

However, she didn’t bother to ask. Amon wouldn’t tell her anyway.

Amon really didn’t plan to talk to her. After giving her a reminder, he straightened his body, turned around, and left,

Seeing the luxury car speeding away, Taya heaved a sigh of relief.

Although she knew that Amon would come back, at least she was free for a short period of time.

However, when she thought of the 3 billion, her body tensed up once again.

She was still squatting on the ground in a daze when Harper called and asked her why she hadn’t arrived yet.

Taya put away her messy thoughts and replied, “I’m coming right over.” Then, she drove to Harper’s villa.

Harper was afraid that Taya had not had lunch, so she prepared a lot of food and laid everything out in the small garden.

Seeing Taya getting out of the car from a distance, Harper quickly called her over, "Taya, come and have something to eat."

Seeing the enthusiastic Harper, Taya relaxed a little. She smiled and walked over.

Harper pulled out a chair for her and sat her down. Then, she handed Taya a bowl of chicken soup. "Eat more. You're too thin."

Harper thought that Taya had a good figure, but she was too thin. She couldn't eat much when she was sick, but now that she was in good health, she could eat more.

Taya's heart warmed. "Okay, I'll listen to you."

After she finished speaking, she picked up the spoon and took a small sip.

When the warm soup slid down her throat, her eyes went red.

It was one of her wishes in the past to be by Harper's side, but she had been wandering around for so long and it had never been realized.

Now that she was free, she could finally be by Harper's side, even if that freedom may only be short-lived...

Noticing the look on Taya's face, Harper thought something had happened to her. Her expression changed and she asked with concern, "What's wrong with you?"

Taya gently shook her head. Although there were tears in her eyes, there was also a smile on her face. "Amon has returned to Aronland."

Harper was shocked at first, but then she smiled happily. "He let go of you?"

Taya's expression darkened when she thought of the agreement she signed.

Every step Amon made had been planned in advance.

Now, even if Amon returned to Aronland and was held back by George, there was still that agreement. He still wouldn't let her go so easily.

Being fargeted by such a meticulous person, it was almost impossible for her to escape from him...

Seeing that Taya was silent, Harper understood that it was impossible for Amon to let her go just like that.

Harper frowned, and after thinking for a few seconds, she suggested, "Taya, since he's gone, let's take this opportunity to escape."

As long as Taya could get rid of Amon's control, she could go anywhere she liked. It didn't matter to Harper even if she had to go into the deep mountains and wild forests.

Taya had thought about running away, but...

She put down the spoon, and said to Harper, "There is something I wanted to tell you about yesterday, but I didn't have time to say it."

Harper asked suspiciously, "What's the matter?"

Taya looked at Harper, and said softly, "Silas is... still alive."

Harper was drinking her soup with her head down, but when she heard those words, the spoon in her hand suddenly fell.

In disbelief, she raised her head and looked at Taya,

“W-What?”

After explaining to Harper how Silas was rescued, Taya said, “I’ll take you to see him.”

Harper was still in shock. Seeing Taya helping her up, Harper came to her senses and followed Taya into the car in a panic.

Harper didn’t have the strength to drive, so she handed her keys over to Taya. She sat in the front passenger seat, clutching her seat belt tightly in a daze.

Taya didn’t bother her and drove quickly to the villa where Silas was. They arrived just as Nora pushed Silas out for a walk...

Harper, who hadn’t gotten out of the car, saw the familiar

She opened the car door, looked at the figure, and shouted with red eyes, “Silas...”

Chapter 429

The gentle and elegant man in the wheelchair turned his head slowly, and when he saw it was Harper, a gentle smile appeared on his handsome face.

“Harper...”

Hearing that familiar voice, Harper was sure that the person in front of her was Silas, the person whom she had regarded as her own brother since pup period.

The tears in her eyes couldn't be stopped, and they fell down intermittently, but with her chin held high, she walked up to Silas, crying and cursing.

"You b*stard, you are still alive, yet you didn't even ask someone to tell me that! Because of you, I went to church every day to beg God to return my family to me. Do you know that my knees are swollen from kneeling, my eyes are swollen from crying, and I almost went blind..."

Harper's words made Taya go red. Harper had done so much for them; even if Taya spent the rest of her life with Harper, it would not be enough to repay her.

Silas's pure and clear eyes couldn't help turning red as he looked at his sister who had taken good care of him since he was a pup...

Rx

"Harper, I'm sorry, it's all my fault..."

Harper shook her head and said, "I don't blame you, I know you had no other choice."

Taya told her that the Sterling pack wanted to get rid of Silas, so how could he reveal the news that he was still alive to others?

After Harper finished speaking, she looked at Silas's legs, and tears began to well up again.

Since he was a child, he was successful and looked up to.

She thought that when he grew up, he would rely on his knowledge to stand at the top of the world.

Who would have thought that such a proud man would have to sit in a wheelchair forever?

Harper was filled with empathy and distress, "It would be nice if you had listened to me that day..."

That day, she told him not to do stupid things, but he didn't listen to her and insisted on dying for love.

Silas had been so stubborn since he was a pup, and no one could ever persuade him to change his mind.

Well, his legs were gone right then. How was he going to continue living the rest of his life?

Silas didn't care about such things. He raised the corners of his lips and smiled.

Harper had nothing else to say to him, so she didn't bother to talk to him anymore. She wiped away her tears and looked back at Taya.

"Taya, God heard my prayers and returned them to me. I have to go to church to thank Him..."

Taya took her arm and said softly, "I'll accompany you."

Silas parted his thin lips, but before he could say anything, Harper yelled, "You should just stay here obediently. Who told you not to listen to me?" Nora couldn't help laughing when she heard those words. "Mr. Johnson, I thought no one could control you. It turns out that these two beautiful young ladies are your nemesis..."

Silas frowned when he heard those words, "I am lucky to be under their control.”

Nora knew more or less about the relationship between the three of them from Zoey, and she nodded in approval.

For friendships that had lasted for many years, from childhood to adulthood, it was indeed inappropriate to use the word nemesis.

Harper glanced at Nora. She had a sweet-looking appearance which reminded her of the young Taya so she couldn't help but look at Nora a few more times.

“This is...”

Before Silas could speak, Nora replied softly, “I'm Nora, and I am the nurse taking care of Mr. Johnson.”

Harper nodded and smiled at Nora. “Hi, I'm Silas's older sister. You can call me Ms. Duke.”

Nora was very docile, and she called out ‘Ms. Duke, making Harper feel the similarities between her and Taya even more.

That her temperament was very much like the former Taya. However, she didn't think much about it and turned her attention back to Silas...

Chapter 430

“Silas, we made an agreement when we were young that we would move in together when we grew up. Since you and Taya are back, you can move to my place.” Harper bought that villa not only because Taya told her in her dream that she would build a house in another world and pick them up afterlife, but also because Harper remembered the promise she made when she was a child.

And after experiencing so many changes and separation, as a family, they should live together and cherish each other.

However, when Nora heard Harper’s words, she hurriedly stopped her. “No, Mr. Johnson can’t leave this place. It will be too dangerous for him to do so.”

Harper was stunned for a moment, but she understood what Nora meant.

Although Jackson was dead, it didn’t mean that Silas would be safe forever.

If the Sterling family found out that he was still alive, he might not be able to escape death.

It seemed that they could no longer be together freely like they were when they were young.

Harper, Taya, and Silas had gone on different life trajectories because of their growth.

Only then did Harper realize that some promises and wishes were hard to achieve.

Seeing that Harper was very disappointed, Nora was afraid that she would misunderstand things and thought that Silas's freedom was being restricted. She quickly explained,

"Ms. Duke, Mr. Johnson didn't lose his freedom completely by staying here. There are people from the Knight pack guarding him in Peace District. He can wear a mask and hat and leave at any time. He can get some air, go shopping, watch movies, etc. in this area, but it is best not to leave this area because Alpha Knight cannot always guarantee his personal safety." Taya, who had not spoken since they arrived, felt somewhat suffocated when she heard that sentence.

She didn't expect Griffon not only saved Silas, he also sent someone to protect him.

He did this not only for her but also to give Silas freedom...

However, Peace District was huge. How much manpower and financial resources would he have to spend to ensure Silas's safety...

These ensuing incidents were uncovered little by little, making Taya's heart feel heavier and heavier...

Harper glanced at Taya after Nora finished speaking.

Although she doesn't show any emotional changes on the surface, Harper knew that she might feel bad in her heart.

That night, Taya fell into Harper's arms and cried in the rain.

When she told him how Griffon told her that he loved her,

Harper already knew how Taya felt for Griffon.

It's just that she didn't know that Silas was still alive at that time, so she thought Taya rejected Griffon because she hadn't moved on from the past.

Seeing Silas sitting in a wheelchair now, Harper understood everything...

Taya was a wolf who valued love and righteousness. When she knew that the wolf who kicked her was not Silas, she would definitely choose Silas.

After all, without Silas working hard to earn money and buying medicines for Taya, it would be difficult for her to grow up safely.

However, Griffon...

Although the relationship between the two of them had ended long ago, the things he did for Taya were really touching.

Harper didn't know what to say anymore. She could only look at Silas...

His face was pale. It seemed that he had just learned about those things too.

He didn't expect that Griffon had been protecting him for many years.

In order to save Silas, Griffon was seriously injured, and in order to protect Silas, Griffon did not hesitate to send so many people to guard him.

However, even though Silas was under Griffon' protection, he still wanted to be selfish and take the woman Griffon loved...

Harper saw that Silas's eyes were full of shame, so she knew what he was thinking.

She said quickly, "Silas, when the time comes, I will prepare some gifts to thank Alpha Knight on your behalf. Don't think too much about the rest..."

Chapter 431

Silas raised the corners of his lips and smiled bitterly. How could any gift be enough to repay Griffon for saving his life?

He looked up with his eyes and looked at Taya who was standing beside him...

He knew very well that what Griffon wanted was just her.

However, if what Griffon wanted was nothing more than her, and if Silas chose to let go, what should he do...

After Taya suppressed the heaviness in her heart, she said to Silas, "I promised you that I would take care of you for the rest of my life. I won't change easily, so Silas, don't think too much..."

Harper was a little shocked. She looked at Taya as if she never thought that the latter would make such a promise to Silas...

Silas pressed his fingers against his unresponsive legs desperately and he was having a breakdown. He did not know how to face Harper and Taya.

He turned to Nora and said, "I'm tired. Please push me back..."

Nora felt what she said moments ago had sowed discord between the three but she didn't know the specific reason.

She could only look at Taya and Harper, and after smiling apologetically, she pushed Silas towards the villa...

Watching their figures from behind, Harper frowned slightly, but said nothing.

She was afraid that if she showed a worried look in front of Taya, it would make things even more difficult for her.

Harper glanced at Taya, saw her face turn pale, and quickly took her arm. Harper quickly said, "Taya, accompany me to the church."

The church was a very sacred place. Harper thought Taya could relieve some pressure and pain when she was there...

Taya came to her senses, and nodded at Harper. "Okay..."

Before meeting Silas, Harper was so depressed that she couldn't drive but right then, Taya seemed a little distracted so Harper drove.

When arrived at the busiest area of the city, Harper stopped the car and said that she had to buy some high-quality fruits for the offertory.

The two got out of the car and walked into the shopping mall. They were just about to go to the first floor where the supermarket was when they saw a group of people in suits and leather shoes walking over.

The leading man was tall and slender, wearing an expensive custom-made suit, which made him appear even more approachable.

His sharp features and perfect facial proportions added an aura of nobility and elegance.

What was even more amazing was that pair of cold eyes. It was without any emotions as if he was uninterested in anything in this world.

He was very good-looking, but because of his supercilious eyes and cold aura, people didn't dare to approach him.

Seeing him, Harper glanced at Taya again. Taya was in a daze so she couldn't help telling her, "Taya, why don't you go and thank him. After all he has done a lot for Silas..."

However, Taya seemed to be nailed in place, unable to move her body.

When Harper saw that Griffon was about to leave through another exit, she was a little anxious, and pulled Taya towards him.

Before they could approach Griffon, they saw an extremely good-looking woman at the entrance of the shopping mall, smiling and waving at Griffon.

The woman was wearing an haute couture evening gown with waist-length wavy hair, delicate and elegant makeup, and a designer bag.

She was tall and slim, and was only half a head shorter than Griffon. She was a perfect match for him.

Moreover, she exuded the same noble and elegant aura as he did, and she looked sophisticated.

Her beauty was not easily comparable to that of female stars or socialites; it was completely higher than those people.

The two stopped at the entrance of the shopping mall. The woman raised her head and talked to the man, and he didn't seem disgusted at all. He lowered his head slightly and listened attentively.

Taya and Harper couldn't hear them. They only saw the woman holding Griffon's arm after she finished speaking.

Moreover, Griffon didn't react too much to the woman's touch. He just led her in the direction of the luxury car...

The Billionaire Alpha's Contract Lover

Chapter 432

Seeing that scene, Taya looked to the ground.

She suddenly recalled the time when he also took Tara's hand and left right in front of her eyes.

At that time, she was not in any place to say anything, and right then, she had even less of a right to mind it.

What they had between them was over, so it had nothing to do with her whoever he was with right then...

After watching the pair get into the luxury car, Harper looked away and glanced at Taya.

Seeing that Taya had calmed down, Harper knew what she was thinking.

"Taya, she's just holding his arm. It's nothing. Don't think too much... Moreover, he didn't see you just now. If he saw you, he would definitely not get close to other women..."

Harper was biased towards Silas. After all, he was her younger brother.

However, if Taya still loved Griffon, then Harper was even more worried that Taya would be sad because of it.

Taya raised the corners of her lips, looked at Harper, and smiled softly, "I didn't think much about it, don't worry."

Harper didn't say anything more, she held Taya's arm and suggested, "Then let's go buy some fruits..."

Taya nodded. The two turned around and walked toward the first floor.

When Taya got in the elevator, she looked back.

When she saw Griffon opening the car door for the woman in a gentlemanly manner, she raised the corners of her mouth and smiled in relief.

In the luxury car, Griffon took off his suit jacket calmly.

Sitting in the back row, Preston, who was playing with his phone with his head down, suddenly changed his expression when he see that figure.

He quickly adjusted his posture, sat upright, and greeted the woman in the evening dress respectfully, "Rebecca."

Rebecca turned her head and looked at Preston. Noticing that he was frightened when he saw her, she couldn't help smiling. "Preston, you have always been fearless, but every time you see me, you're like a mouse that has met a cat."

Seeing her smile, Preston subconsciously gulped, but still pretended to be nonchalant and waved his hand.

"Oh nah, you must be kidding..."

Although he said so, the picture of Rebecca disciplining him echoed in his mind.

The Knight pack was a big and complicated family, but they were very strict with their children.

The reason why the descendants of the Knight pack could become so powerful was all because of Rebecca.

She was the eldest daughter of the family and had been raised by her grandfather since she was a child, therefore she had won the right to educate her younger siblings.

Preston's older siblings were gifted and were quick to learn everything since they were young. He was the only one who...

Apart from some attainments in computer programming, everything, in Rebecca's words, was a mess and a disaster.

Therefore, Preston had become the focus of Rebecca's attention. Once he couldn't learn something well, or failed an exam, he would be dealt with immediately...

He was able to play the piano well now and he could speak several foreign languages all because of his sister...

Rebecca saw the fear in his eyes, but also a trace of dissatisfaction. "Preston, you're still holding grudges against me."

Preston shook his head quickly. "I wouldn't dare..."

How would he dare to hold grudges against her?

He didn't have the courage.

Rebecca curled her bright red lips, and smiled. "You should Chapter 433

Rebecca touched her freshly painted nails, and said to Preston, "You don't have to worry about anyone else's mating, as yours is more difficult to deal with. After all, your reputation is not very good, and many families are unwilling to let their daughters mate you..."

Preston murmured in his heart that he was not willing to mate yet, but he said calmly on his face, "Then let's not rush it. Just take things slow, alright?"

Rebecca knew that Preston hadn't fooled around enough, so she didn't want to bother herself with him anymore. She then focused on Griffon again. "What about you?"

Griffon, who kept looking out of the car window, heard Rebecca's question. With an extremely indifferent expression, he replied, "Don't worry about me."

A look of helplessness appeared on Rebecca's glamorous face. "You can't avoid mating for the rest of your life, can you?"

She had only learned about Griffon's situation after returning to the country that year.

She didn't expect that a person who was taught not to be emotional since childhood would be willing not mate again for a woman.

She didn't quite know what happened between the two of them. She only knew that Griffon had touched the girl, which led to her death.

Although Taya was rescued, she had indeed died once, so how could she accept him again?

From this point of view, he was doomed to never be able to be with Taya, so he couldn't force things, right?

Knowing Griffon's personality, even if she were to persuade him eight hundred times, he still would not listen to her.

However, as the alpha of the Knight pack, how could he be single for the rest of his life?

When Griffon heard her words, his heart ached.

The pain spread to his limbs, making even his palms ache.

He looked down at his right hand, and couldn't help but think of the desperate look in Taya's eyes as she lay on the ground.

He once hurt her like that, and he wanted to spend his whole life to atone for it, so how could he let her go and mate someone else?

He never thought that he should just give up and start a new life just because he couldn't get her.

He thought that if he loved her, then he would love her till he died.

He used to think that love was possession, until Jackson told him that love was not possession, but letting go. Only then did Griffon understand what love was.

Thus, he chose to let go, but not to give up on her. As long as it was her, whether alive or dead, he would love her forever.

Additionally, his wife could only be her. Even if she was not willing to mate him, in his heart, he would only acknowledge her as his wife, and he would only be with her for the rest of his life.

Griffon's silence made Preston feel a little distressed, and he couldn't help but speak for him, "Rebecca, leave Griffon alone..."

Rebecca sighed helplessly and changed the subject, "Let's go pick Edith up..."

Preston frowned, and asked puzzledly, "Why are we picking her up?"

Rebecca replied unhurriedly, "We're picking her up to meet her mating partner."

She had arranged a mating partner for Edith to meet that day, and when the car arrived near the shopping mall, she saw Griffon's assistant.

She stopped the car and planned to look for Griffon but she saw him coming out, so they exchanged some pleasantries, and she invited him to meet Edith's mating partner with them.

Fortunately, Griffon still cared about Edith so he agreed, but he didn't expect Preston to be there.

However, it was for the better anyway. With so many family members around, presumably Edith's mating partner would not even dare to even say a word.

Hearing that, Preston gasped.

As expected of Rebecca, as soon as she returned to the country, after arranging his brother's mating, she began to torment her younger sister.

Suddenly, Preston was glad that his reputation was not so good, otherwise it would be his turn right then...

Of course, his brothers who were sent abroad also avoided such misfortune.

Chapter 434

The relationship between the cousins was not actually complicated.

Griffon' father had 4 siblings, and they had eight pups in total.

Griffon' father was the eldest, and he had two pups, Griffon and his older brother, Simon. Rebecca is Griffon' cousin as well as the eldest daughter of the Knight pack. Rebecca and Simon were born in the same year.

Christopher and Sebastian were the sons of Griffon' third uncle while William and Liam and fourth brothers were Griffon' fourth uncle's sons. Preston and Edith were born to Griffon' youngest uncle...

The grandchildren in the Knight pack were mostly male, and there weren't many female descendants. Thus, the youngest descendant, who was also a female, Edith became the treasure of the Knight pack.

Everyone was invested in her marital situation, fearing that she would not mate a good man, so they began to pick out suitable mating partners for her almost four years ago.

At first, the Sterling pack was chosen, but Jackson rejected it, so they gave up. Now that Edith had returned from studying abroad, they had to start looking again.

After the luxury car started, more than a dozen luxury cars followed suit.

The car soon arrived at Edith's neighborhood. After getting out of the car, Rebecca went up to pick Edith up with graceful steps.

Seeing that Rebecca had left, Preston quickly asked, "Griffon, why did you suddenly get out of the car and rush into the shopping mall just now?"

Griffon's action scared all the bodyguards and they quickly chased after him.

Seeing so many bodyguards, Preston was not worried, but he didn't know what happened to Griffon for behaving like that.

Griffon didn't reply to Preston's words, but a trace of fear appeared in his eyes. Back at the shopping mall, he saw a figure which resembled Taya, so he couldn't help but take a few extra glances.

Coincidentally, he saw Tara following that figure into the shopping mall so he asked the driver to stop and rushed over, only to find that it wasn't Taya.

At that moment, he, who was covered in a cold sweat, suddenly breathed a sigh of relief, but he still couldn't move on because of the trauma from the past...

For the past years, he had repeatedly dreamed of the mall, the bathroom, and Taya lying on the ground with a face full of despair. The expression on her face...

At the thought of it, an overwhelming sense of guilt hit Griffon like a violent storm, making his face turn pale with pain.

Preston saw that Griffon seemed to be stuck in the matter of the past and couldn't extricate himself, so he didn't dare to ask any more questions. He only patted Griffon on the shoulder to comfort him.

Harper and Taya went to the supermarket on the first floor and bought a lot of fruit.

When they left the shopping mall, they happened to meet Tara who was carrying several shopping bags.

When Tara saw Taya, she reacted as if she had seen a ghost, and she stood there in fright, her face turning pale.

Taya didn't respond at all. She just glanced at her lightly, then pulled Harper away.

Harper was still furious after leaving the mall, she said, "You should have rushed over and slapped her twice!"

After putting the fruits into the car, Taya looked at the man who was following Tara. "She always has bodyguards with her. I can't hit her..."

Harper glanced over, and when she saw several bodyguards following Tara, her face sank, "The Thorin pack has been bought over by the Knight pack yet she still lives like a rich young lady. Well even though things had gone south for her, she's still living life better than ordinary people like us."

After Harper finished speaking, she looked at Taya again, and said sadly, "Taya, when will I become a rich person?!"

Taya opened the car door with a smile and said to Harper, "Let's go. We'll go to the church and ask God about it."

Harper was amused by her. "Okay, I'll go and make a wish. Maybe it will come true."

Chapter 435

Talking and laughing, the two got into the car and drove to the church where Harper often went.

As soon as they arrived at the foot of the mountain, they heard deep and distant bells, as well as the sound of music and prayers.

Those voices sounded refreshing and calm, and their hearts felt lighter.

Carrying the fruits, Taya followed Harper, step by step, and walked into the church very piously.

When she saw the statues and paintings, tears welled up in her eyes.

It seemed that there had been too much pain accumulated in her heart, and she had nowhere to vent, so she could only find a moment of peace there...

After they entered, one of the priests led them to a pew to pray and light candles, and Harper piously made her offerings...

After Taya was done, the priest glanced at her signature, and said kindly to her, "Young lady, you owe too much debt and you need to pay it off, or you will have no peace in this life.." Taya felt as if she had been seen through by the priest. She stood there in a daze, her face turning pale.

The priest brought her three ribbons, and asked her to write her wishes on them and hang them on the tree.

Taya slowly came to her senses, took the pen handed to her, and wrote down her wishes on the ribbons:

First wish, Harper's safety.

Second wish, Silas's health.

Third wish...

At this point, Taya held the pen and her fingers froze. Images of Griffon flashed in her mind.

The priest saw her hesitation. He looked at her kindly and said, "Write whoever comes to mind. Don't worry about it."

Hearing that, Taya began writing. Third wish: Griffon is happy.

She wished him happiness, and she also wished that he could find a partner whom he could spend the rest of his life with.

After Taya finished writing her wishes, she thanked the priest, said kindly to her, "Young lady, you owe too much debt and you need to pay it off, or you will have no peace in this life..." Taya felt as if she had been seen through by the priest. She stood there in a daze, her face turning pale.

The priest brought her three ribbons, and asked her to write her wishes on them and hang them on the tree.

Taya slowly came to her senses, took the pen handed to her,
and wrote down her wishes on the ribbons:

First wish, Harper's safety.

Second wish, Silas's health.

Third wish...

At this point, Taya held the pen and her fingers froze. Images of Griffon flashed in her mind.

The priest saw her hesitation. He looked at her kindly and said, "Write whoever comes to mind. Don't worry about it."

Hearing that, Taya began writing. Third wish: Griffon is happy.

She wished him happiness, and she also wished that he could find a partner whom he could spend the rest of his life with.

After Taya finished writing her wishes, she thanked the priest, turned around and walked out of the church.

She found a tree that wasn't very tall, and hung all three wishing ribbons on it.

Seeing the red ribbons fluttering in the wind, Taya's heart was completely relieved.

After finding out that what he did was unavoidable and learning all the things that he had done for her, she felt burdened.

However, when he saw him with other women, the feeling slowly dissipated.

From now on, he had his new life, and she also had her mission to complete...

Just like the priest said, she had too many debts that she needed to pay off...

She had been raised by Silas in the first half of her life and he took care of her when she was growing up. Now, it's her turn to repay the debt.

Moreover, she would also find a way to pay off all the things Griffon had done for her.

After Taya sorted out her thoughts, she gradually let go of the heavy burden in her heart...

After she was done praying, Harper wrote a few wishes on the wishing ribbons.

She found a very tall tree, climbed a ladder and hung it up.

She firmly believed that the higher you hung the ribbons, the faster your wishes would come true.

After the two were done, they bid farewell to the priest and turned to leave the church.

Harper planned to drive home directly, but Taya asked, "Harper, can you take me to the cemetery?"

As soon as she returned to the country, she had been busy looking for Harper and Silas, and dealing with Griffon and Amon. She had not had the time to visit the cemetery.

Now that those matters are all dealt with, it was time to go and visit her sister's grave in the cemetery...

Harper nodded quickly. "I will take you there."

Soon, they arrived at the cemetery.

Before going in, Taya glanced at the scenic mountain scenery opposite.

She remembered that that was the place Silas took her to...

At that time, he promised to bring her there next time, but before he could do so, he was met with an accident.

Taya didn't expect that after her death, he would bury her there in order to fulfill this promise...

Silas did everything he promised her...

The corners of Taya's mouth twitched. She turned around and bought a bouquet of white roses, then followed Harper into the cemetery.

Her grave was much larger than the others and it was surrounded by trees, flowers, and sunshine... There was a photo of her on the tombstone, and the photo was very clean, as if someone had been there to wipe it.

She bent down, put down the flowers in her hand, and raised her hand to touch the tombstone...

With her name, she was buried there for three years. Taya thought that her sister must be very lonely...

Chapter 436

Taya had never met Rosalie before. She had only seen photos of her, but she could imagine that Rosalie was an extremely gentle person. She had selflessly given Taya her wolf spirit and given her a chance to be reborn...

Taya, on the other hand, couldn't even use her own identity and could only be buried here...

Taya didn't quite understand it before. Amon obviously loved her sister so much. How could he let her body be cremated and buried so hastily like that?

Later, when Amon told her that Rosalie had betrayed him, although he loved her, he hated her too.

That hatred made him abandon Rosalie's body, letting her stay in that cold cemetery alone for many years.

Rosalie must be exhausted to be with someone like Amon.

However, Rosalie had pursued him for many years...

Did she love Amon?

Thinking of this, Taya looked down at the ring on her ring finger. She took it off and placed it in front of the tombstone.

"Rosalie..."

"If you loved him, then in your name, I will hold a complete wedding for you and Amon in a church in Aronland... If you don't love him anymore, then in your name, I will end this mating with Amon here in our country...”

Rosalie must have loved him to pursue him for many years, but later she wanted to run away from him so much that she was willing to end her own life. Maybe she didn't love him anymore.

Rosalie was gone, and Taya couldn't find the answers. She only hoped that her sister would meet someone who would love and protect her in her next life.

Taya stood in front of the tombstone, quietly accompanying her...

Harper also stood aside, watching as Taya spoke to her sister. Without saying a word, her eyes suddenly turned sad.

Both Silas and Taya had found their loved ones, but what about her? Whose child was she? Where was her family?

Harper raised her head to control her tears. The principal said that she had been abandoned by her parents, so it was impossible for any relatives to come to her.

As the sun set and the cemetery was about to close, Taya got up slowly, bid farewell to her sister, and left the cemetery with Harper.

Harper asked Taya to move in with her and the latter agreed.

However, before moving into the villa, she had to go back and get some things.

Harper drove Taya to Amon's villa.

After greeting the servant, Taya went straight back to the bedroom.

She took out her suitcase, packed her clothes, opened the drawers, and took out a Ziplock bag.

She took out a mating certificate, looked at it carefully for a few seconds, and put it into the suitcase.

Then, she took Rosalie's official documents. After all, she still had to use Rosalie's identity as Taya was already dead on paper.

After putting everything in the suitcase, she went to Amon's bedroom to get her medicine.

Once she was done, she carried the suitcase with her and went downstairs.

Seeing that she was going to move out, the servant quickly stopped her, "Taya, Mr. Yardley said that you have to stay at home..."

After they divorced, the servants in the villa addressed her as Ms. Palmer instead of Madam or Mrs.

Taya smiled at the servant who looked nervous. "I'm just going to stay at a friend's house for a few days. Don't worry."

After saying that, she dragged the suitcase and left. However, just as she was walking out the door and was about to run to Harper, a phone call from Amon came in.

Taya stopped and looked at her phone, hesitating whether to answer the call. Then, Amon sent a text message.

There were only two words, "The agreement."

He called her again. Taya gritted her teeth and pressed the answer button.

The first sentence Amon said was, "Taya, starting from today, you need to implement the first condition of the agreement."

The Billionaire Alpha's Contract Lover

Chapter 437

Taya sighed deeply. "What is it?"

Amon's cold voice came from the other end of the phone,

"Can you draw?"

Taya froze for a moment, not understanding what he meant.

"Yes..."

She was talented in drawing since she was a child, which was why she studied design.

Amon said, "The first condition is that I want you to replace Rosalie and take over her unfinished projects."

Taya was stunned. She remembered that Rosalie was the most famous architect in the world, but she on the other hand was just a graduate of a design school. How could she replace Rosalie and complete her unfinished projects?

Amon didn't care whether Taya could do it or not. He continued to speak in a cold voice, "I have already asked someone to send you the drafts and architectural drawings Rosalie had completed. There is also a blank album for the unfinished projects she had accepted previously. You need to complete the projects according to their order."

Taya frowned and asked, "But I majored in brand design, not architectural design. I don't know anything about architectural drawings..."

Amon paused for a few seconds. Taya could tell that he was at a loss for words. "Your sister has a construction company in Arcadia, and I will ask the chief designer, Neil, to teach you in person. Remember, study hard, and don't ruin your sister's reputation."

Taya was worried. "But..."

Amon began to lose his patience. "Don't question it. Just do as I say."

Taya had no choice but to agree. At least Amon didn't lie to her this time. What he asked her to do was indeed related to her sister.

But she still couldn't figure out the reason he was doing this.

"Why do you want me to complete her unfinished projects?"

Amon was silent for a few seconds before he spoke in a deep voice, "I just found out that she still had many dreams that she wasn't able to fulfill..."

Taya fell silent when she heard those words. It turned out that her sister left the world with many regrets...

Amon calmed himself down and returned to being indifferent.

“We are helping her to fulfill her dreams by completing these projects for her.”

Knowing that it was for Rosalie, Taya no longer refused.

“Okay, I will study hard...”

When Amon heard that, his tone softened a little. “Each one of her designs is worth tens of millions. All the income will belong to you.”

Taya was stunned. She didn’t expect her sister’s net worth to be so high.

She was flustered. Even if someone was there to teach her, with her abilities, it would be difficult to reach Rosalie’s level, wouldn’t it?

Amon didn’t know what she was thinking, and continued,

“There are about 50 projects, and Rosalie had agreed that they would all be completed. Now, time has pa*sed, which means that you must complete everything. Thus, you have to learn everything about architecture as fast as you can...”

If Rosalie was here, it would’n take many years, but unfortunately she was gone, and there was one less talented architect in the world.

At first, Taya felt that she was incompetent, but when she heard that she had to learn everything and complete more than 50 projects, she was overwhelmed.

However, this was her sister's dream, so she couldn't refuse.

Under immense pressure, she responded faintly, thinking that Amon would hang up the phone. However, he told her his whereabouts. "Something went wrong here in Aronland, so I can't go back for the time being..." Taya was very happy and she thought that it would be best if he never came back.

However, she replied calmly, "It's okay. I understand that you're busy with your work."

Amon hung up the phone. Looking at the darkened screen, Taya heaved a sigh of relief. So far, that agreement was not too much of a problem.

Chapter 438

Seeing that Taya was still standing rooted to the spot, Harper honked.

It was only then that Taya came to her senses. She hurriedly dragged the suitcase along and walked towards Harper.

When they arrived at Harper's villa, the two of them lay on the same bed like they used to in the past, chatting about many things.

Taya listened to Harper's rambling words, and she gradually relaxed. She leaned on Harper's shoulder and eventually fell into a deep sleep.

Seeing that Taya had fallen asleep, Harper covered her with the quilt, and slowly closed her eyes as well, falling into a sweet dream...

The next day, Harper planned to meet Silas with Taya but something happened at the nightclub which needed her to be there. Hence, Taya went to meet Silas herself.

Before leaving the house, Taya put the mating certificate into her small backpack.

Silas was still sitting in the backyard, reading a book with his head down. Looking from a distance, the scene looked like a painting.

He looked extremely lonely, as if he had been abandoned by the whole world, and he seemed lifeless.

Taya could feel his emotions, but she pretended not to know anything. She walked towards him as if nothing had happened.

"Silas..."

Hearing her voice, Silas didn't turn around happily like before, but clenched the book in his hand.

Taya squatted down to his level and looked at him. "How are you today? Do you feel any discomfort today?"

Silas looked down, trying to hide his sad eyes and responded softly, "I'm fine. You don't need to come and see me."

After staring at him for a while, Taya asked, "Silas, is it because Griffon saved you that you feel indebted to him?"

Silas pursed his thin lips. He didn't answer and he didn't even dare to look at Taya. The guilt in his heart swallowed him, and the burden weighed extremely heavily on him.

Taya took the book in his hand and said softly to him, "Silas,

I will help you pay back what you owe him. Don't worry too much." Silas looked up with his red eyes and asked Taya, "How are you going to repay him?"

Taya looked down when she heard his words. She replied, "I don't know how yet, but I always feel that I'll be able to do so one day."

Silas smiled softly. "He doesn't need you or me to repay him.

All he needs is you."

Taya's face turned a little pale, "How many times do I have to say it for you to believe me? Griffon and I are over."

Seeing the disappointment in Taya's eyes, Silas's heart tightened, and he quickly bowed his head to apologize. "It's my fault. It's because I worry too much about gains and losses, and it's because I thought you and Griffon..."

“Silas.”

After interrupting him, Taya looked into his eyes and said solemnly,

“There was no point of return for Griffon and I the moment I left this world. Recently, I found out what he did, and I also know that he has done a lot for me. I have indeed felt very conflicted because of all this. However, Taya who used to belong to him, had died because of him. Now I... I just want to move on. I don't want to look back... As for Amon, I had successfully divorced him, and he has also returned to Aronland.”

“Silas, I did all this because I had decided to stay by your side from the very beginning.”

“You have accompanied me and taken care of me for many years, so at least let me spend the next same years with you...”

Silas's eyes welled up in tears. His vision became so blurry that he couldn't see Taya's face clearly.

He raised his fingers, wanting to touch her face, but he reluctantly retracted his hands.

He grabbed his legs tightly, struggled for a few minutes, then looked up at Taya with his tear-filled eyes.

think about your mating now.”

Preston's handsome face suddenly tensed up. "Rebecca, don't. Let's settle my sister's mating first..."

Chapter 439

"Taya, what you felt for me is guilt. The person you love has always been Griffon."

"He loves you very much too. I can't be so selfish as to break up a couple who love each other. You..."

When Silas said that, he paused for a moment, and his voice gradually became hoarse, "Then you should go to him and leave me alone..."

He thought about being selfish for once, but Griffon had done so much for him. How could he feel at ease and take possession of Taya?

He raised his head and controlled the tears and reluctance in his eyes. He turned his wheelchair around and left.

Taya squatted on the spot, looked at his back, and shouted in frustration, "You... Are you leaving me?"

Silas stopped, and looked back at Taya who was squatting on the ground.

He wanted to run towards her, pull her into his arms, and tell her how much he wanted her. He would even sacrifice his life to have her.

However, now, he was just a good-for-nothing bound to a wheelchair. He would only make things difficult for her...

How could he take advantage of her guilt for him to keep her by his side? How could he be this selfish?

With sad eyes, he said to her, "Taya, you don't have to feel guilty about what happened to my legs. I did it to myself and it has nothing to do with you. Also, you should know that everything I have done for you is voluntary. I don't want my love to become a burden to you, do you understand?"

Taya slowly got up, walked towards him, and took out a mating license from her bag. She unfolded it and handed it to him. "Did you forget that we are mated?"

Pointing to the official seal on the license, she said to him, "Look, this mating is legally valid. How can I let you go? How can you say that you are my burden..."

When Silas saw that mating license, the tears he had been holding back rolled down his cheeks.

He covered his eyes with one hand, not wanting Taya to see how discomfited he was.

However, Taya squatted down and looked into his eyes. "If you don't hate me, then let's start over."

The words "start over" were what Silas had been looking forward to the most since he recovered his memory, but at that moment, he felt extremely guilty.

"I have never hated you, but I hope you can be with the person you love...”

Taya lowered her head in silence for a few seconds, then raised her head. Looking at him with determination on her little face, she stated firmly, “Give me some time. I will fall in love with you again...”

She admitted that she didn’t love him now, but she made a promise to fall in love with him again, just like he once promised to be with her for the rest of her life.

Sitting in his wheelchair, Silas looked at the girl in front of him whom he had loved for half his life. His eyes turned red again but he did not say a word.

He hesitated, struggled, and he felt tormented.

As time pa*sed, Taya was still standing there, quietly waiting for his answer.

When the pain invaded his bones, his strong reluctance for her suddenly gained the upper hand, and he couldn’t help but let go of his worries. “Okay, I’ll wait for you. However, if you don’t fall in love with me, then I will definitely let you go...”

Taya smiled and nodded at him. “It’s a deal.”

Taya looked at the mating certificate again and she said, “Silas, do you still remember what you said to me when you were eighteen?

Silas looked straight at her with his clear, pure eyes and answered. “I will always remember what I said to you...”

He reached out his large palm to Taya. “I promised that I would give you a grand wedding...”

Taya raised the corners of her mouth and put her hand on his. "I was absent after we applied for the mating certificate. I will not be absent from the wedding." She once promised him when she was young that she would mate him when she grew

He promised her that he would give her a grand wedding when they grew up.

Now that many years had pa*sed, it was time for him to fulfill his promises...

Chapter 440

Harper was completely shocked when she heard that the two of them were going to re-do the wedding. "You... Have you thought it through?"

While stirring the white clay mask with a little spatula,

Taya replied to her, "Of course. We already have a mating certificate, so we should have a wedding."

She was afraid that Silas would worry, so she wanted to use the wedding to rea*sure him. That way, they could both let go of the past and start over again.

Harper looked at Taya who had already made her decision, and she didn't know what to say.

While Harper was silent, Taya said to her, "Harper, you said that you want to be my bridesmaid when Silas and I get mated."

Harper didn't respond. She raised her hand to stroke her short hair as she asked, "Taya, have you really decided to start over with Silas?"

Taya nodded. She said honestly, "I wanted to take care of him for the rest of my life, but if I did that out of guilt, then it would be unfair to him. After I sorted out my emotions in the church, I decided to let go of everything and start over with him..."

Hearing that, Harper didn't know whether she should be grateful for taking Taya to the church. She felt that Taya was being unfair to Griffon. After all, he had done a lot for Taya, and he even saved Silas's life...

Taya seemed to see through Harper's thoughts. After a few seconds of silence, she said, "Harper, I'm about to start work in place of my sister. Each of her design drawings is worth tens of millions, and she still has more than 50 unfinished projects. When I finish these projects, and if I take on more, I can pay off the 3 billion Griffon spent on me. As for what he did for Silas, I will find a way to repay him..." She also added, "I won't keep in touch with him anymore, so when I have collected enough money, I will need to trouble you to give it to him on my behalf."

Harper stood frozen in place. After struggling for a few seconds, she asked, "You... Are you like this because we saw Griffon with another woman that day? Is that why you wanted to break up with him completely, and you don't even want to owe him these favors...”

Taya shook her head. “When I found out that he had spent so much money looking for my wolf spirit, I already thought of returning the money to him...”

Harper understood that, so she didn’t say anything about it.

Instead, she said, “I’m afraid it won’t be appropriate for me to be your bridesmaid. I’m an unmated female, it might not be a lucky thing for you.”

Taya didn’t mind it. She smiled and reassured her, “I don’t believe in superstitious things. As long as it’s you, that’s enough.”

Seeing that Taya was being so persistent, Harper agreed. “Then when will you try on the wedding dress?”

Taya thought about it, then replied, “Tomorrow.””

She had to start learning about architecture soon, so she was afraid that she wouldn’t have much free time left. Thus, she wanted to complete these things before then.

Harper nodded. “Okay. I’ll accompany you tomorrow then.”

Taya sweetly replied, “Okay.” After that, she turned and went into the bathroom to apply the mask.

Harper looked at her back, pondered for a while, then opened a drawer. She took out two bank cards, walked into the bathroom and handed them to Taya.

“Taya, one of these cards was what you left for me in the past. I put it in your pocket previously, but you were taken away by Amon before you had time to change your clothes that night. I took it out and even wondered when I would have the chance to return it to you...”

“The other card is my savings from opening nightclubs over the years. Of course, it’s just a drop in the bucket and it’s impossible to be enough to help you pay off Griffon’ debt, but I hope that I can help a little...”
