Chapter 741 Go Back to The Dormitory

Rufus' POV:

I held Sylvia in my arms and whispered to her, "I'm sorry, babe. I didn't tell them about your pregnancy. The doctor who examined you back in Leonard's pack told them about it. He seemed to have treated Leonard before. You know many questions regarding Leonard's untimely death still remain unanswered. My father wanted to know more about it, so he called the doctor and found out you're expecting a child."

Sylvia lowered her head uneasily. She fiddled with the b*ttons on my sleeve in silence. Seeing her like this was enough to make me worried.

I knew that she was at a loss on what to do. It was my fault. I should have informed the doctor beforehand since Sylvia hadn't been fully mentally prepared for it.

Rufus' POV:

Sylvia's words left me at a loss. It made my heart ache. I knew my possessiveness would sometimes make her think I wasn't giving her any sense of freedom, so I had been trying my best to restrain myself. I didn't want to frighten her.

But even after all my efforts, it still didn't work.

I slowly let go of her hand and looked down. "I'm sorry..." Sylvia lowered her head as well and simply went silent. My heart ached when I saw her like that. I kept silent for a while too until I decided to compromise.

Chapter 743 Stop Loving Her

Sylvia's POV:

As soon as I entered the dormitory, I ran to the window and discreetly take a look at Rufus. He was standing just outside the entrance, smoking a cigarette all by himself. There was a full moon hanging in the sky tonight. It cast a long shadow behind Rufus as he was bathed in the pale radiance of the moon.

Sylvia's POV:

The next morning, Rufus sent a car to pick me up before breakfast. I hesitated for a moment before I decided to go back and see him.

On the way, I stared out the window of the car and wondered how I was going to face him today. 3

Although I had tried my best to clear up the misunderstanding last night, I wasn't sure if he really bought it, and there was definitely still some awkwardness between us.

Chapter 745 Black Bar

Sylvia's POV:

I went downtown to watch an art exhibition. Around noon, I made an excuse to sneak away from Maya Maya and the guard were in queue outside a popular shop to buy drinks and freshly baked cakes for me.

They wouldn't be able to come back in a short while.

I kept quiet and paid close attention to what he was saying.

To my surprise, he then wrapped his arm around my shoulder as if we were close friends. "It's your first time here. Are you shocked that such a place exists in the heart of the capital city? Come on. I'll show you around." The mysterious man took the lead in walking forward. I didn't follow him and just watched his back vigilantly.

Although I could feel Blair's shocked eyes gawking at me, I ignored him deliberately and walked up to the old man. I slung the bag onto the table and said, "I need you to do something for me. This is the reward."

Murray scoffed at me disdainfully and then opened the bag. I watched as his eyes widened in stunned disbelief when he saw all the jewelry inside.
