Chapter 851 What're Friends For

Sylvia's POV:

It was late at night, and the streets were mostly empty. Still, in order not to draw any unnecessary attention, Harry and I took a secluded path. About half an hour later, we drew near the imperial palace and finally slowed down a little to catch our breaths.

I took out a handkerchief and tried to wipe the blood off Rufus' face and then pulled his collar to check on him again. The black thorns, which had already retreated just now, had encroached on his neck again. In fact,

"As for you two, I need you to go to the forbidden forest and find a specific kind of poisonous snake. It's purple, about the length of a baby's arm, and there are green scales above its eyes. Cutting the tail of the snake and smashing it. It can detoxify the lycan king."

I turned to the two remaining two guards and ordered them to look for the snake Noreen had described. The two guards probably heard the rumor that the lycan king was dead, but the truth had been concealed. Now that they heard that the lycan king was still alive and there was even a cure, their eyes lit up and they hurried to the forbidden forest to look for the snake.

Meanwhile, I rushed inside the palace with Rufus as fast as I could.

Chapter 855 Painful Choice

Sylvia's POV:

I sprang from the chair and closed the distance towards Rufus' bedside. I gently held his hand and whispered, "It's rueful to think that the only thing I can do for him is to hold his hand. The truth is, it is indeed all my fault! I made him suffer. If doing this would at least ease away his pain, then I have no regret."

Title of the document

"It's not your fault; you didn't wish for any of these to happen. You're also the victim. If any, you've been through a lot of pain more than anyone else in this matter," Laura consoled.

I subtly brushed off the tears that stained my cheeks before turning to Laura and apologized, "There's another thing I must do that I hope you can understand. I'll take the baby with me. I believe keeping the child by Rufus' side will only increase the risk of him remembering anything about me."

Sighing, Ethan said, "Sylvia is a good girl. It has not been an easy road for her and Rufus to get to this point. I didn't expect that fate would play such a cruel trick on them. It would appear that neither Leonard and Olivia nor Rufus and Sylvia can avoid their destinies."

Title of the document

"Then what should I do?" I was at a loss, not knowing what to do. I know that any decision I made would be detrimental to Rufus and Sylvia. But I also couldn't bear to see them suffer.

For a long moment, Ethan just stared at me blankly. Finally, he sighed and said, "Just do as Sylvia said. That's the best way for now. No matter what you do, at least one of them is destined to get hurt. In this case, we should choose the plan that would hurt them the least." "But I'm afraid that Rufus will hate me if he finds out the truth. It won't be easy to make amends after this." I was worried. There were only two men I cared about in the whole world and they were Ethan and Rufus. I didn't want to risk losing everything.

In the dead of night, I sat on the balcony, drinking one bottle of cola after another. I didn't stop until my stomach was about to burst.

However, the cola couldn't drown all my worries. I still missed Joanna so much. I had never before felt so helpless in my entire life. Had I been stronger, I could have protected Joanna from getting hurt.
