Chapter 1651 Vacation

Eventually, they decided to skip the engagement process since they'd have to wait for a while before they could get on with their marriage. They wanted to go straight for the wedding, and Queenie had no objections to that. She didn't want to go through the engagement process either.

"I have an idea of where to hold our wedding. Let's do it on a beautiful island. My cousin and his wife had held their wedding there before, and it was really romantic."

"Okay." Anticipation flowed in Queenie's eyes.

"We can spend a week there starting tomorrow. Take a look around. If you like it, I'll get the wedding planner to start the preparations," Nigel suggested.

Queenie was already looking forward to the trip, and she nodded. "Sure, we can take a trip there."

It was already lunchtime, and the elders were still chatting happily. They agreed to the idea of skipping the engagement and going straight to the wedding.

"Mr. and Mrs. Silverstein, Queenie and I will be staying on the island for a week to see if we like the place. If Queenie likes it, we'll be holding our wedding there," Nigel said.

Queenie started gasping and praising the view. Nigel stared at her lovingly, and he combed her bangs when the wind billowed them.

About an hour and a half later, they finally saw the island. From the air, it looked like a green pearl embedded on the sea's surface. It was a beautiful sight. Even before they landed, Queenie had already decided to hold her wedding here. She said, "I love this place. Let's hold our wedding here."

"We're not in a hurry. You can look around." Nigel patted her head.

She nodded enthusiastically. Once the chopper had landed, they got into the car that was waiting for them. On their way to the villa, they were greeted by flowers in full bloom.

She was taking pictures and recording some videos while Nigel was content with just looking at her. As long as she's happy.

In the end, Nigel picked her up and returned to the villa. The air was filled with the sound of her chuckles. Oh, he's such a tease. He maintains a weak grip for me to lean closer and hug him tighter.

And he even spins me around. It was exciting but also tense. She knew he wouldn't let her fall, but still, she was worried. "Hey, hold me tight. Stop spinning," she grumbled.

He stopped teasing her then and took her back to the villa. Two hundred yards was nothing for him, even with Queenie in his arms.

It was about 9.30PM when they returned. Nigel took the guest room, leaving the master bedroom for Queenie. She had lived her whole life in a bustling city. Now that she was alone in a room with nothing but a moon as her companion, she felt like staying with Nigel.

A thousand thoughts flashed through his head. Suddenly, someone knocked on his door, and he reached it in one moment. His breathing was ragged, but he nonetheless opened the door. When he saw what Queenie was wearing, he gulped. That's all she's wearing? "It's cold at night. You're gonna catch a cold. You should—"

Nigel wanted her to change into something thicker, but before he could even finish his sentence, Queenie interrupted, "I don't wanna sleep alone. I wanna share a room." She went past him and entered his room.

Nigel's lips formed into a smile. I knew it. She was afraid to sleep alone. So, she's sleeping here tonight? "Don't worry. This is a safe island. My cousin had bought the whole place. This is my family's turf now," he assured her.

You dummy. That was just an excuse. Don't you know what I'm getting at? She got into his bed and covered herself with the blanket, showing only her head. She looked cute with her cheeks red and eyes wide.

He then looked at the sofa. "I'll sleep on the sofa, then?"

Chapter 1655 Teatime

“Alright, fine. But be gentle, okay?” Queenie relented. She had given herself to him anyway. All she wanted to do was grasp his heart and make sure nobody would catch his eye.

She missed breakfast the following day as the only thing she wanted to do was sleep. She felt like she could sleep the whole day. Even when Nigel called her to have breakfast, she didn’t even bother to get up.

She only woke up at lunchtime, and when she saw the hickeys all over her, her face turned red—she was embarrassed!

Nigel took her around after lunch. Their diving session would have to wait until the last day.

Back in the city, Jessie spent the whole week learning new things. Except for mealtimes and sleep, she spent all her time learning and making notes. She even spent a lot of time working between sets, learning things she couldn’t learn in class. And Stardom’s marketing for her was a success. So, today, she was heading to the company to shoot a bunch of posters for her official debut.

Jessie arrived at the company at 10.00AM. She was then led to the dressing room. An hour later, she went to the photoshoot. Even though she was debuting as an actress, this wasn’t her first rodeo in filming. She knew how to pose for the camera. Even the cameraman thought she stood out among all the beauties. She would be one of the best-looking women in the industry.

Hey, I'm riding on his coattails, too.

I wonder if the public is also gossiping about me.

"The only one who can match Julian now is Jessie.

Nobody else can." "That's right! The only female celebrity he treats nicely in private is Jessie.

Nobody else." The assistants kept praising Jessie as they ate their cakes.

Jessie blushed hard at their words.

Back on the island, Queenie was enjoying the beautiful morning view.

Every day she woke up, she would have something to look forward to, and life never felt better.

She loved this feeling, though, for three days, she didn't manage to see the sunrise as she had overslept.

Every day, she was woken up by Nigel's kiss, not the sun.

She didn't mind the place.

As long as she was with him, it was fine.

Stardom's PR department had been busy marketing Jessie and raising her fame.

Since she used to work in many films before, they got a lot of info on her.

A bunch of indie directors and actors had praised her for her professionalism as well.

She started out being hated, but now fans were starting to know her.

And the photos that were released finally showed her true beauty; she looked innocent in them.

“You think Julian would fall for a nobody like you? His tastes are better than this.” Jessie kept ignoring her.

A grey sports car was parked outside.

Just as she was about to call her driver, the sports car came over to her.

Someone rolled the window down, and a male’s voice came from inside.

“Get in, Jessie.” She looked inside the car, and the sight of Julian shocked her.

Why is he picking me up? Xandra came out just in time to see that, and her eyes went wide with envy.

Julian came to pick her up himself? Impossible! I must be seeing things.

However, she wouldn’t mistake Julian for anyone else.

Not only did he come to pick Jessie up, he even buckled her up.

That was something only a boyfriend would do.

Jessie was aware Xandra was watching, but she rolled the window up anyway.

Julian drove off into the streets, leaving Xandra alone.

Annoyed, Xandra stomped her foot.

Sir, you're holding her hand.

How do you expect us to comment? If we say anything bad, we'd be getting on your wrong side.

"Jessie fits the description for the lead I have in my mind.

Her looks and personality are a perfect fit," Vincent commented.

It was a true comment.

Everyone else heaved a sigh of relief.

Julian does have an eye for talent.

Jessie was prettier in real life, and she felt a lot more innocent than most people they met.

The look in her eyes was as clear as water.

Jessie blushed a little.

She had no idea what to do, and she didn't even hear what they said.

However, she did feel courage brimming within her, and she was certain that it came from Julian.

Jessie was listening to the music and enjoying the view.

The question came out of nowhere, and it made her blush.

“Will the scene get really intimate?” “For you, yes.” Julian looked at her.

Her heart skipped a beat.

So, there’s going to be something more intimate than a kiss? But I’m going to act with him anyway, so...
She decided to go all in.

“I’m fine. I’m ready.” The man beside her stayed silent.

Does she have to ready herself even when she’s acting with me? Is she that reluctant? “Just asking, but whenever you have any intimate scenes, do you shoot it yourself, or do you use a stand-in?” She looked at him.

He used to have a few kissing scenes in his works.

Most of his works were heavily story-based, but kissing scenes were unavoidable.

Julian was speechless.

Why is she asking that? Is she jealous, or is she just curious? I guess he’s not answering that.

She then smiled sheepishly.

“Sorry.

Just asking.

You don’t have to answer if you don’t want to.” “Stand-ins,” he answered.
