After being asked by Lu Xian, Song Yu Han shut his mouth and did not answer.

Ran Xueyi.

That was the name of the woman who came to the clinic for an IUI in the clinic. Coincidentally, she was the woman who came to hit on him at the bar just this morning.

Wasn't she just heartbroken earlier?

Song Yu Han recalled how she forcefully tried to stop the tears in her eyes when she found out that her friends knew about her fiance cheating on her.

Song Yu Han looked at the monitor and clicked the file his assistant sent to him earlier when he came to the office.

The screen of the monitor turned white and was stuck to show Ran Xueyi's information along with her pictures.

Ran Xueyi.

Age: 23.

She came from the Ran family, a wealthy family in A City. They owned the Ran Corporation and her grandparents were influential figures in the business world.

Song Yu Han remembered that Old Master Song mentioned the old couple from the Ran family when he was young. It seems that the old people were quite close and had known each other for a long time when they were younger. However, because the old couple from the Ran family went to live a quiet life in the countryside, they no longer got in contact.

Furthermore, Ran Xueyi was an A-list actress when she was only twelve years old. At a very young age of four, she starred in a blockbuster tragedy movie and was awarded as a Best Child Actress for seven consecutive years.

When she was fourteen to seventeen, she starred in different genres and themes, and still, she got awarded heavily because of her outstanding acting and portrayal of her characters. She even got the most sought-after award by every actress and actor - The Best Actor/Actress of the Century.

When Ran Xueyi turned eighteen, she was scheduled to be part of a movie with a five hundred million budget; she was suddenly replaced by Ran Yue, who had just entered the entertainment industry as a rookie actress.

The next year, people were dealt with a huge blow when Ran Xueyi announced that she would be taking a long break from the entertainment industry. In the video Song Yu Han played, she thanked everyone for their endless support and announced her break.

However, in the data that his assistant sent him, it seems that the Ran family told Ran Xueyi to retire and end her career to give her sister a chance for success.

But why did she surrender her spotlight to her younger sister so easily? Song Yu Han wondered.

If Ran Xueyi simply wanted to help her sister take off a straight and unhindered path in the entertainment industry, being her sister was enough to give Ran Yue a reason to survive the industry for five decades.

However, they told her to quit the movie she was initially picked to play and even wanted her to retire. If others heard this, they would think that Ran Xueyi was making a great sacrifice for her younger sister. Oh, what a lovely older sister!

But Song Yu Han understood things that others normally wouldn't see with ordinary eyes.

He knew that Ran Xueyi was pitted by her family and was used by them to get what they wanted from her from the very beginning.

It was just that Ran Xueyi didn't notice this.

Or maybe, she already did...

Song Yu Han remembered that beautiful woman sitting on the side as her hand was bleeding. He offered her his handkerchief to stop the bleeding.

But then...

"Mister Handsome, do you have a girlfriend?"

That's what she said to him the first time they met.

As Song Yu Han was thinking about Ran Xueyi, his lips that were usually forming a cold and straight line, were suddenly pulled up into a faint smile.

"So, when are we going to meet again, Miss Ran?" he whispered as he stared at the young woman smiling beautifully in the picture.

"Achoo!"

Inside her room and fully satisfied with her meal earlier, Ran Xueyi lay on her bed as she scrolled down her phone screen when she sneezed. She rubbed her nose and smiled.

She has been thinking about it and finally decided to post something on her Weibo* and Instagram account. (A/N: Chinese social media like Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram.)

Snowrabbit Xueyi: [Don't Blame Me.* (insert wink emoji)]

(A/N: Taylor Swift song. I just found it, but I really like it, and it suits the situation she's currently in. Hehe.)

After writing it, she took a quick selfie and posted it online.

Once her post was seen by netizens, they first ignored it while thinking that the person who posted it was a fan account. However, not even a minute later, the post had a million likes, and people could no longer ignore it.

A lot of people started hitting the like button and commented on Ran Xueyi's post.

[Oh my GOD! Am I crazy? My Goddess just posted something after six years!]

[Rabbit's number 1 fan: +1 You're not the only one going insane! I think I need to check my eyesight. My Snowrabbit is finally back!]

[What?! Upstairs, are you telling the truth? She's back?]

This comment received a hundred thousand likes and was replied to by more than a hundred thousand.

However, no matter how many fans reacted and liked the post, there were still some bitter fans and haters who wanted to clash with Ran Xueyi's fans.

[HA! Who said she's coming back? Come out, I'll beat you up. She's been inactive for six years, and it was Ran Yue, her younger sister, who has been active. Do you think she still has the intention of returning?]

The person who commented on this was a huge figure in the fan world. She has more than a hundred followers, and her account was verified too.

However, everyone knew that she was Ran Yue's fan.

While Ran Yue's fan was composing another reply and wanted to tell everyone that Ran Xueyi no longer has any grounds to step in the entertainment industry, her previous comment was bombarded with an R.I.P and tomb GIF by thousands, almost a million, fans.

When this fan saw this, she was stunned and dumbfounded. When she checked her previous comment, she saw Ran Xueyi had replied on her comment thread.

Snowrabbit Xueyi: [Sister, thank you for worrying about me. Yes, I'm thinking about it.]

Ran Xueyi vaguely answered the fan's last question.

Then, this fan saw that the comment of Rabbit's number 1 fan, which she replied to also liked and sent a reply, she almost fainted in anger.

[Rabbit's number 1 fan: Although I don't hit girls, I can still buy you a coffin. Do you want a rose-filled one or a worm-filled coffin?]
