

Daddy CEO's Beloved Wife #Chapter 11 Taking The Top Ten Trending Spots Easily - Read Daddy CEO's Beloved Wife Chapter 11 Taking The Top Ten Trending Spots Easily

"F*ck!" Ran Yue's fan spat out a curse as she flexed her fingers and started to fight against the keyboard. The sound of the tip of her fingers furiously and quickly flying over the keyboard resounded in her room.

However, even if she continued to send many hateful comments and replied to the fans' comments in her comment thread, Ran Xueyi's fans and some passersby still went to get her neck.

In the end, Ran Yue's fan was exhausted till her wrists started to hurt. Deep inside of her, she deeply regretted saying anything, but when she looked at Ran Yue's face in the poster she posted on her walls, these thoughts quickly ceased as she comforted himself.

Just as she was about to continue typing away, her phone suddenly rang.

Ran Yue's fan reluctantly left her computer and went to the bedside table, where she put her phone on top of it.

[Manager Zhang]

When she saw the name on the phone screen, her heart began to beat fast. She couldn't believe that this person would call her!

She quickly picked up her phone and answered.

"Hello?" she greeted first.

"Is this Miss Jia?" the voice came through the other line.

Ran Yue's fan was commonly known in the fan world as Ran Yue's shield. However, her real name was Jia Rui, and she was a shut-in otaku and crazy idol fan.

With her heart in her throat, Miss Jia replied, " Yes. What is it, Manager Zhang?"

Manager Zhang was Ran Yue's manager. He handled everything that involved Ran Yue, from her schedule, promotion, meetings, and fans.

"Although it's already too late to say anything since what is done is done, I must tell you to stop posting or commenting for now."

"But I am doing this to Xiao Yue!"

"I know... Anyway, stop for now. We will discuss this first before deciding whether to use the black fans to help you or let this matter be. Just don't make any more trouble." Manager Zhang's voice was stern when he said this to her, leaving Miss Jia no way to retort or use her position as Ran Yue's number one fan.

Miss Jia clearly understood that she was abrupt when she posted her first comment. It was only a selfie from a fallen Queen of the acting industry; why must she feel threatened for her Ran Yue when Ran Xueyi didn't have any chance of making a comeback.

However, what she didn't know was that Ran Xueyi's purpose of posting a selfie of herself and writing the words "Don't Blame Me" was just a trick to manipulate everyone.

When Ran Xueyi posted, she only wanted to get the spotlight that was originally hers and stolen by some scheming minx.

And now, without even lifting a finger, she easily created a bustle and took the top 10 trending spots on social media. Her name "Snowrabbit Ran Xueyi" was all over the internet, and some local broadcast news even briefly mentioned her.

Seeing that Ran Yue's fan didn't reply or comment on her fans' posts, she knew that her desired goal was already achieved. By now, people will get caught in the fire she made, and eventually, nothing can stop her now.

As she was scrolling down the page, she heard a loud banging against her door.

Soon, it was followed by a loud voice but short of shouting at her door.

"Sister, come out!"

Standing outside her room, Ran Yue was pale-faced, and her gaze was resentful as she hit the door with her fist.

She had just arrived after attending a party with all other celebrities and wealthy people when her mother called her and told her to call and beg her grandparents to attend her birthday.

At first, Ran Yue refused and indignantly told her mother that she didn't care if her grandparents didn't come to her birthday like in the past years. However, her mother told Ran Yue that she should think about what would happen if she completely estranged her grandparents.

Hence, Ran Yue sighed and told herself to call her grandparents tomorrow.

But not just after she got a call from her mother, her manager, Manager Zhang, who was mingling with other managers of different celebrities, suddenly approached her.

His face was grim, and he whispered to her ears, saying that Ran Xueyi posted on her Weibo account and had already attracted a lot of attention.

When Ran Yue heard this, she quickly opened her phone and clicked on the app. It quickly showed her that the top trending spots were already taken by her older sister.

Just what is happening? Why was she trying to cause trouble now after staying obedient and quiet for the past six years?

Ran Yue tried to call her mother so she could scold Ran Xueyi and tell her to delete the post, but the call was not connected. It seems that her mother was busy calling someone else and still hasn't found out about this matter.

Without any other choice, Ran Yue left the party early without Manager Zhang's knowledge and offended the host of the party because she was part of the main attraction for today's party.

But Ran Yue's mind was somewhere else, and she didn't realize that she was being considered to be blacklisted by the host of the party and might never get to attend this party again.

So, when Ran Yue ran back to their house and quickly knocked on her older sister's door, demanding an answer.

"Sister, open the door. I know you're in there. Let's talk." Ran Yue said behind the door.

Inside the room, Ran Xueyi calmly looked at the door and smiled. Her beautiful fox-eyes shape squinted happily as she hummed a soft tune under her breath.

When three minutes passed, she finally stood up from her bed.

But before opening the door, Ran Xueyi untied her ponytail and messed with her long curly hair, making her achieve a natural, sultry look that most models and actresses sought in their lives.

After giving herself a lazy and 'just-woke-up' look, Ran Xueyi slowly stepped forward and pulled the door open.

"What's wrong?" Ran Xueyi asked and blinked her eyes.

---

Author has something to say: I promised yesterday to update last night, but couldn't because I fell asleep >.< Here's today's update anyway <3