Chapter 466 So Shy?

After Ran Xueyi finished all her scenes, she had the spare time to do whatever she wanted. However, rather than go back to her room and take some rest, she went to stand beside Director Daren and Assistant Director Qing to watch the scenes they were about to shoot.

It was Song Yu Han's solo scenes which were really exciting to watch. He was a newbie in terms of experience in acting and he had not taken any acting lessons in the past, but everyone couldn't stop themselves from glancing his way because they had already witnessed him slapping their faces with his outstanding acting skills.

No one dared to underestimate him. They used to mock him because they thought he only got into the film to shoot because YH Groups sponsored him, but after watching him act for the past few days and finding out that Song Yu Han was actually the chairman of the YH Group!

They were flabbergasted when they found out during the Night Gala live broadcasting that Song Yu Han was YH Group's chairman. But soon, they couldn't stop wondering why the chairman of a big company that earns millions in a second wanted to act in a film? Was it because he was just too bored and wanted to do something new and fun in his life?

At around 10 pm, the shooting finally ended. Ran Xueyi initially wanted to go back to her room with Adelle when Director Daren stopped her in front of everyone in the crew.

"Don't go to your room. I already talked with Mr. Song and asked him if he can take you to his villa," said Director Daren under everybody's eyes.

His words were somewhat ambiguous and people couldn't help but think of something else. If it was not explained properly, one might assume that Ran Xueyi caught YH Group's chairman's eyes and wanted her to stay with him in his villa. This was like treating her as a lover.

Ran Xueyi was silent for a moment before asking, "Are we rehearsing our scenes there?"

As expected of a veteran actress, she caught the gist of Director Daren's intentions. It was just that the young director was not very careful with his words that made people misunderstand it. Thankfully, she dispelled the idea of her being a sugar baby before they could form in everyone's mind.

"That's right," Director Daren nodded his head. "There were some changes in the script after carefully looking into it. But the two of you weren't here when we announced it. I can only inform you now. Don't worry, the scenes aren't too heavy or tiring. It's just to highlight the development in the main character's relationship."

In films, changes in the script made by the scriptwriter and director was normal. This action was to ensure that the flow of the story wouldn't be too lacking and would go well to the tastes of the directors and the audience.

"If you are uncomfortable with staying with Mr. Song tonight to rehearse your scenes, you can take someone else with you. I already talked with Mr. He agreed," Director Daren patiently told her.

Ran Xueyi agreed without hesitation and said, "It's alright with me. Rehearsing the scenes beforehand can also help me cultivate chemistry between my and Song Yu Han's roles."

"So you agree with it? Then, you can go after packing some things." Director Daren expected her to reply like this and he casually added, "The filming will continue tomorrow at 8 in the morning. Make sure to go back to this place before 8, understand?"

"Yes, director!"

After packing some of her things, Ran Xueyi went down to see Song Yu Han standing beside a Grand Cherokee. He was leaning his hip against the car, his head lowered to look at his phone that was in his hand, and his leg was over the other. He was just standing normally yet he looked like he was ready for a photographer to take his pictures.

Overall, Song Yu Han's presence and looks overwhelmed models and actors who were proud and used their bodies and faces to earn money.

"Did I make you wait?" said Ran Xueyi as soon as she reached his side.

Song Yu Han raised his head to glance up at her before shaking his head. He pushed his phone into his back pocket then reached out with his other hand to take the bag she was carrying in her hands.

Ran Xueyi didn't stop him from taking it and watched him open the door for her. He only went to enter the driver's seat when she finally comfortably sat in the passenger's seat.

"Are you hungry?" asked Song Yu Han as he pulled out of the parking lot. "The local resident here recommended some places to eat. If you're hungry, we can go there."

They finished filming so late in the night. Song Yu Han was worried that Ran Xueyi forgot to eat again, thus he asked this question.

Actually, it wasn't that Ran Xueyi forgot to eat her meals. It was just that she was too busy with filming her scenes that when she felt hungry, it was already hours past meal time. In the end, she was too lazy to get her own meal and eat.

"Let's not go there. Go straight to the villa."

"Alright."

Song Yu Han drove up near the shore where an empty space of lands surrounded them. There were some villas and houses that appeared here and there but there were no lights and with a closer look, Ran Xueyi found that some of them weren't completely constructed.

Seeing the huge steel gates open automatically for them and the luxurious villa that was revealed upon the gates opening, Ran Xueyi turned her head to look at him.

Song Yu Han didn't need to hear her speak to understand the meaning in her eyes and explained, "This land was due to be developed into a suburb but the construction company that should have been making the development of this place got into trouble. Coincidentally, this villa was the only one that was completely constructed and renovated so I bought it from a real estate agent."

Ran Xueyi stepped down from the car and looked around. The more she looked, the more she liked it. "This place is great! Is that the sea in the back?"

Song Yu Han nodded. Because it was already night, the sea should appear as dark as the night sky, but perhaps because there was a lot of bioluminescence, the sea glowed even in the dark and looked exquisite.

"Let's get you inside first and eat. It's cold tonight so I'll take you around the sea in the morning." Song Yu Han curled an arm around her thin waist before she could take off to the back of the villa to get a closer look of the sea.

Ran Xueyi really wanted to go and look at the sea, but she also didn't want to leave his side so she followed him.

Surprised at her sudden attack, Song Yu Han's lips twitched and he almost missed a step. He gently took hold of her misbehaving hands and hugged her closer to warm her up.

Ran Xueyi smiled amusedly at his reddening ears and whispered in a challenging tone, "So shy? Can't take a few touches anymore?"

The next day, Ran Xueyi was woken up so early in the morning by her husband. The sun was not yet completely out of the horizon but Song Yu Han already carried her out of the bed and let her lie down on a couch in the sea-side patio.

From there, she could see the glowing sea even more clearly and the sea breeze was so fresh and cool that she just didn't want to open her eyes and just sleep the entire day.

But who let Song Yu Han become her husband? Naturally, he didn't allow her to sleep after taking her out to take a look at the sea.

With a tray of steaming food and coffee in his hand, he pulled her to sit up and said, "That's why I warned you to not provoke me last night."

Since they were still young and very energetic, Ran Xueyi didn't waste the opportunity to test out the sound-proofing of the villa and make sure that every corner of the house was explored. Ahem.

Ran Xueyi had only herself to blame for provoking her stallion husband, but she didn't want to admit it!

So, she said, "It's not me provoking you. It's Director Daren's fault for adding more bed scenes for us to test out!"

Director Daren, who was suddenly shot at without doing anything: "...."

Chapter 467 Denied Entry

Director Daren didn't know that Ran Xueyi used him to deflect the words of Song Yu Han. When the married couple arrived at the rented hotel where the film was being shot, a crowd of village people had gathered around outside of the hotel's gate.

It seems that they were here to see some stars.

However, it was somewhat strange to see them now since they weren't around when they first arrived. What could have brought them here then?

When Song Yu Han parked outside of the hotel, the crowd suddenly trembled as one and turned to where their car was parked. The eyes of these people seemed to brighten up as if seeing something interesting.

"He's here!"

"I can't believe what the village chief said turned out to be true. There really is a bigshot in our village!"

"Hurry, let's go and welcome him!"

The video of Song Yu Han appearing on the red carpet of the Night Gala has gone viral to the point that even the small village found out about it. It was first seen by the son of the village chief who had just arrived from the city from the west side of the village. The village chief's son had seen the film group when they first arrived when his father welcomed them to their village.

At that time, the chief's son was only impressed by the appearance of the stars that appeared in their village and that was all. However, after the release of the videos from the Night Gala, he was struck by the discovery that the two of the top trending figures of that night were actually in their village!

Upon learning this, the village chief's son called his father and told him about it. Perhaps, he was afraid that his father would not believe him, so he sent several screenshots of the top trending lists and also photos of Song Yu Han and Ran Xueyi to his father as evidence.

Since then, the rumor that a bigshot had appeared in the village spread like fire.

It was only today that they were able to gather around in front of the rented hotel and wait for the bigshot to appear.

Ran Xueyi looked at the crowd suddenly appearing in front of them.

She turned head to look at Song Yu Han before she said, "I'll go on ahead inside."

She didn't want to deal with the village people after a restless night of tossing and turning in bed after provoking her husband. Anyway, it didn't look like they came here for her so she should let Song Yu Han taste the experience of having fans surrounding him.

Ran Xueyi got off the car before the village people could get near her. She slipped through the narrow path towards the rented hotel and disappeared inside.

Ran Xueyi didn't feel a tiny bit of guilt leaving Song Yu Han to deal with the village people as she safely got into the rented hotel. Since it had a gate and barricade to keep unauthorized people in the vicinity, no one followed her inside.

"Why are you sweating a lot? Did you run here from the villa?" Adelle asked her.

"Ha... I did... Though, I didn't run from the villa to this place. It's just that there's a crowd outside and I had to leave so I won't be trapped in that boiling pot," said Ran Xueyi as she panted.

Seeing her like this, Adelle took out a bottle of water from the small fridge in the room and gave it to her. She looked at Ran with a weird expression on her face while saying, "You left your husband outside to deal with the crowd? Won't you get in trouble later?"

Ran Xueyi: "..."

Well, she'll deal with it later.

Director Daren arrived in the room and saw Ran Xueyi. "You're here?" He looked at his watch and frowned, "There's still some time before 8 am."

Ran Xueyi smiled awkwardly at him. She couldn't tell him that Song Yu Han woke her up so early in the morning and dragged her to look at the sea. And she absolutely could not tell him that she used him to stop her husband from nagging.

"I woke up early and didn't have anything to do. Coincidentally, Song Yu Han was also awake and we both agreed to come here before the scheduled time." Ran Xueyi explained without changing her expression.

Director Daren nodded before saying, "Tell him to come see me when he comes in. I have some things to discuss with him."

"Is it about the script?"

"Yes." The young director paused and thought about something and hesitated to say, "Speaking of which, is it alright with your... uh... your husband?"

"Hm?"

Director Daren pursed his lips and said, "I heard that Mr. Song and your husband know each other well. But the changes in the script might make your husband feel a little bit uncomfortable. Do you want to look for a body double when executing these stunts?"

The film <Unholy Desires> lived up to its name. It might be a story about redemption and achieving one's happiness in the end after experiencing tribulations in life, but no one can deny that the main attraction of the film was the two main character's feelings towards each other.

Two flawed adults would find each other attractive and would eventually test out their feelings. When Daren Wang created the script, he didn't hesitate to add more flavors into the plot and made the characters explore pleasure and pain together.

With the new changes in the script, the bed and kissing scenes were slightly increased. Daren Wang was worried that Ran Xueyi's husband would suddenly pop out here and beat him up because he didn't like his wife kissing someone else other than himself.

In the past, there were some cases where married actors and actresses would rely on body doubles to not arouse their partner's jealousy and anger.

Naturally, there were some sloppy actors who didn't care about their partners and chose to do the bed scenes themselves. However, their partners would find out about it quickly and rush to the filming set and beat the actors who did the bed scenes themselves until their faces were unrecognizable.

Thus, it had been a secret rule in the entertainment industry that if one was married, one should use a body double to not make their partner's angry.

Actually, it wouldn't have been a problem if the partner's of these actors had agreed to let them do what they want, but the directors were too afraid to hire married actors in their films because they think it would hinder the progress of their film and besides, they were afraid that the partners of these actors were too powerful for them to control.

Ran Xueyi also understood Daren Wang's worries. Truth to be told, if Song Yu Han hadn't sneaked behind her to audition for the main leading male role, Ran Xueyi would have relied on a body double too. She could also see the scene where Song Yu Han would be domineeringly pressuring the entire crew to delete all bed and kissing scenes.

It was not impossible with how possessive he had become over the four years they had been together.

In the end, Ran Xueyi refused to get a body double and assured the young director that there would be no problem at all with her husband.

When Song Yu Han entered the filming set, Director Daren called him to talk about the same thing.

Song Yu Han told him that there was no problem with him: "Ran Xueyi's husband would definitely not have any problems with me either. But if it's someone else... there might be a problem."

Hearing this, Director Daren felt that something was wrong, but he couldn't tell what was wrong so he dismissed this thought before shouting for everyone to prepare the next scene.

At the same time, Zhao Fei, who had been beside Feng Huai, was now running around the city to look for people who could help her release Feng Huai from prison.

In the end, she still went to Chestnut.

But when she arrived there, the guard told her that she was not given access to enter the building.

Frowning, Zhao Fei glared at the guard and said, "Is there something wrong with your eyes? Didn't you see me enter the building yesterday? Why are you blocking my way?!"

The guard looked down at her and replied, "Orders from the higher-ups. Only employees of the company can enter today."

"What? I'm the Chief Agent of Chestnut, how is it possible that I can't go inside the building where I worked?!"

The guard was not moved by her words and merely told her to get her ID and scan it on the scanner beside him. Zhao Fei had only used this scanning system once when they first moved offices, but she remembered that when she used it last time, it gave her access to enter.

"What is your name? Aren't you afraid that I will fire you?" Zhao Fei was confident that the scanner would not reject her ID as she scolded the guard.

But who would have thought that the moment her words had just fallen, the scanner would suddenly beep and turn red while showing two words in caps lock...

[DENIED ENTRY]

Zhao Fei: "...!"

The guard: "Heh..."

Chapter 468 Driven Out

Zhao Fei never felt so humiliated like this. She had been proud of her status as the chief agent at Chestnut and had never cared about what other people would think of her.

But today, she was actually slapped in front of a security guard! How could she accept this?

She didn't know if Ran Xueyi did this because of them falling out yesterday, but this sort of move was extremely childish!

Zhao Fei didn't know the name of this employee but she calculated in her heart that she could use this person to get into the building. "You, are you going inside? Take me there with you!"

The employee felt strange by her sudden domineering way of ordering him around. But out of respect towards her as his senior, he still politely walked over towards the entrance and scanned his ID.

It was a different scene when he scanned his ID. It beeped once and the door automatically opened for him as if it was a magical door. He entered first and looked at Zhao Fei, waiting for her to pass through the threshold.

Zhao Fei was happy to free-load on somebody's entry pass. She first threw the security guard a sneer and stepped her feet forward.

Half of her body entered into the building, but just as she was about to completely enter the place, the magical door suddenly closed in on her, trapping her in between!

Who would have thought that the door wouldn't give her any face and slap her too?!

But what Zhao Fei didn't realize was that if she only entered the building without wasting a few seconds to glare at the security guard, the door would have not closed itself on her. Too bad, she was too busy trying to scare off the guard and ended up making a hilarious scene today.

It was also at this moment that Wu Qi went down to the lobby. He had somewhere to go urgently but he saw Zhao Fei being bitten by the door.

Even though this person had betrayed his master, he didn't want the poor door to become a murderer and used his own fingerprint to open the door.

Zhao Fei finally released herself from the clutches of the door. In a burst of anger and shame, she kicked the door in retaliation before she said, "What's happening?! Senior Wu, why am I banned from entering the building?"

Wu Qi was not fazed by her angry look and calmly said, "It's the president's order to let only employees into the building."

She gritted her teeth and spoke in an even louder voice, "What? Am I not an employee here, too?"

Wu Qi blinked his eyes and said, "Under the company's rule, once an employee has been proven to have acted against the company's best interests and betrayed the trust of the company, they will be evicted and fired immediately."

It took a few seconds for Zhao Fei to realize what he had just said and flared out again, "What are you talking about? Since when did the company have that rule?"

Wu Qi was not disturbed by her gaze that looked as if she was greatly wronged by everyone. Because of her loud voice, the employees who were minding their own business in the lobby stopped and glanced their way.

Unfortunately, she had to face him, Wu Qi!

Wu Qi chuckled softly and asked the employee who used his ID to let Zhao Fei in instead, "How long have you worked here?"

The employee was scared out of his wits. He was afraid that because of his action earlier, he would be fired too so he didn't hesitate to answer, "I've been working here for a year, Sir! Uh, I apologize for not knowing that I should have not let this person into the building!"

Wu Qi shook his head and said, "It's alright. It was not publicly announced yet. Hm... One year. Then, you must have at least read the rules and regulations of the company, right?"

The employee nodded and honestly said, "It was a requirement for interns to memorize the rules. When I was an intern I memorized every last one of the rules in the rule book."

"Then, what I just said earlier should be in the rule book, right?" asked Wu Qi again.

"Yes, sir."

Wu Qi waved for him to go ahead before turning his head to glance at Zhao Fei, whose face was turning pale, and asked curiously, "Did you hear it clearly? Even interns have memorized the rules in the rule book. Why can't the Chief Manager remember the rules she, herself, has clearly agreed to input into the rule book three years ago?"

When the company first started, Wu Qi helped establish its footing on behalf of Ran Xueyi, who had gone to Ren Country. Because of his experience in life where betrayal was frequently constant, he decided to create a rule book that even the law had to recognize.

He wrote every bit of the rules in the rule book and asked the opinions of Ran Xueyi and Zhao Fei and if they wanted to add some other rules. Ran Xueyi signed it, but Zhao Fei didn't take it to heart as she was busy guiding Feng Huai to become a fully fledged manager.

She simply agreed to the creation of the rule book verbally before completely forgetting its existence.

Zhao Fei also remembered this part in her memory. However, she didn't want to back down just yet.

She reclaimed her calm and coldly said, "Even if it's stated in the rule book, there is no evidence that I went against the company. I didn't do fraud or illegal embezzlement of funds. So, pray tell me, just what did I do to lose the trust of the company?"

Wu Qi understood that Zhao Fei was not an easy opponent since she had been at the pinnacle of her position as a star agent for so many years.

However, Wu Qi had stood in front of many storms and winds, just one Zhao Fei won't take him down easily.

"Don't worry, I have all the evidence that will prove your actions against the company," declared Wu Qi. "I'm on my way to the courthouse to file a case against Feng Huai. Miss Zhao, you have claimed yourself to be his adamant supporter, you will be suspected to be an accomplice."

"Instead of worrying about others, why not worry about yourself first?" Wu Qi continued to say as he passed by her and went out of the building.

He did not lie about going to the courthouse to file a case of leaking trade secrets and personal information against Feng Huai.

Zhao Fei helplessly watched as Wu Qi got into his car and drove away. He didn't even spare her a glance or drove her out of the building. He was not afraid of her nor worried that she would do something else.

This made her heart turn cold.

She went to the office building to gather as much evidence that will allow Feng Huai to get out of prison. His morals should prove him not guilty of the charges that have been given to him by Dauntless. She wanted him to save Feng Huai even if it meant losing a bit of her flesh.

Zhao Fei was slightly disturbed by the words that Wu Qi left to her before he turned away from her. However, she still remembered she had purpose in coming to this place.

She stepped forward unashamedly, but before she could even step a free step towards the elevator, the employee who let her in and the other employees who watched the show on the side blocked her path.

"Get out of my sight! Stop blocking my way!" Zhao Fei shouted at them.

But unexpectedly, their gazes no longer held the previous respect and politeness that they showed to her.

Only disdain and indifference could be felt from them.

"Miss Zhao, the company announced that only employees can enter this building today. There is no visitation allowed nor entry from non-employees," a woman in a neat black skirt and white shirt said to her.

Zhao Fei glared at the woman and recognized her, it was the employee who worked directly under her. She was stunned and said, "You..."

The woman incited the others to speak as well and stepped forward to drive Zhao Fei out of the building.

"Miss Zhao, your great presence is not welcome in our office. Please return!"

"Leave!"

"We can't greet you respectfully anymore. But at least, allow us to show you out of this place!"

Even if Zhao Fei was headstrong and shameless, she could not possibly win against a crowd of people who are determined to drive her out.

In the end, she stumbled outside of the building and stood before the security guard that she showed contempt with.

The guard stared at Zhao Fei for a few seconds before he said, "Miss Zhao is fired?"

Zhao Fei: "..."

Earlier, Zhao Fei threatened that she would fire him. But the situation was overturned and she was the one who got publicly driven out and was also fired!

This shameful ending was truly unexpected.

Chapter 469 Little Zhanzhan's Move!

What happened in the headquarters of Chestnut was naturally reported to Ran Xueyi by Xiang Lin, who heard about what happened as soon as he entered the office building from his other colleagues.

Ran Xueyi had just finished one of her scenes and stood in a corner to talk to him. "Alright, thank you for reporting everything to me. Tell everyone that the restriction of not letting any non-employees in the company will continue for a week."

Xiang Lin was feeling a little bit nervous because of what happened to Feng Huai so he asked, "Will I be sent to prison too?"

Ran Xueyi replied without taking the time to think, "It's not necessary for you to be brought to prison too. However, expect to be in the court to state your statement as the witness and whistleblower of the case. You will be testifying against Feng Huai and Gong Sun."

Xiang Lin had been worried about this matter after he heard that Feng Huai was arrested. He feared that he would be next, but hearing Ran Xueyi's words made him loosen up the tension in his nerves.

If he hadn't changed sides, he would have been put to prison like Feng Huai and Gong Sun. His sister would be left behind by him and no one will be able to support her. And after he was convicted of his crimes, he might even never see his younger sister again.

But all of these didn't happen because he accepted Ran Xueyi's offer. He didn't touch the check she gave to him but he swore that he would help her in any way to bring down Feng Huai and Gong Sun.

"Will Dauntless allow me to escape from their clutches?" Although he was relieved to have Ran Xueyi's words that he won't be sent to prison, he still had some concerns towards Dauntless.

Dauntless didn't become the number one entertainment company in the country and just let him, a former accomplice of Feng Huai and Gong sun, go and not be sent to prison. Xiang Lin was afraid that Ran Xueyi and Chestnut might not be able to protect him from Dauntless.

However, Ran Xueyi unexpectedly told him, "Dauntless won't touch you."

Xiang Lin was surprised and asked, "What do you mean?"

Xiang Lin: "...!"

Ran Xueyi didn't hide it from him and said, "Xiang Lin."

Song Yu Han had little opinion about Xiang Lin and said, "What about him?"

"He was too shocked to speak after I told him that he's no longer an employee in Chestnut but in your company. It might take him a while to recover so I'll just let him be for now." Ran Xueyi thought about something before she said, "But are you sure you want him to move to YH Group?"

Song Yu Han shrugged, "It's not me who wants him to be transferred. Wu Qi thinks that his talent in programming is great and took the chance to recommend him to me. I don't see any reason to reject him and besides, didn't it save you the trouble of facing Dauntless head on?"

Ran Xueyi helplessly smiled, "That's right. Dauntless is too much for me to handle for now. I can only rely on my husband and trouble him to clean up the mess I can't solve."

Song Yu Han tilted his head and narrowed his eyes. It was rare for him to hear her say this and wondered if she meant every word. But looking at her eyes that were as clear as the starry night sky, he knew that Ran Xueyi was not angry and mocking herself for being weaker.

He raised his hand to hug her, but then, he remembered that they were still in this role play of pretending to be friends and could not do it. Thus, his hand hovered in the air for a second before he changed the trajectory of his hand to pat her head.

Ran Xueyi blinked her eyes after being patted on top of her head. But Song Yu Han had already turned around and left without saying anything.

At the same time, Little Zhanzhan, who had to stay in Imperial city, felt so bored that he lay on the bench like a salted fish of a park in the community where the villa was located.

During this time, his only companion was Guo Yun.

Naturally, their relationship had gotten closer and they became bonded brothers with a two decades age gap.

"Yes, let me know when everything is done. I will head over to the office later." Guo Yun stood a few feet away from the bench and was talking to his phone.

Several feet away from where they are, children who lived in the same community were having fun playing with their playmates. It was only Little Zhanzhan who didn't want to play and just lay on the bench under the sun.

Brother Yun didn't look like he would be done speaking to his phone and the little boy was so bored to death, and just when he thought of returning to the villa, he saw an old man sitting in the pagoda near the park.

Curiosity took over Little Zhanzhan. He first glanced at Guo Yun before he walked over to the pagoda. When he got closer, he saw that the man was not just sitting there but also playing chess.

The old man seemed to be struggling about something as it took him a while to make a move before falling silent. Little Zhanzhan watched him glare at the chessboard for a while before moving closer.

Little Zhanzhan had played chess with some adults back in Ren Country. So he was curious why the old man couldn't finish the game.

Of course, playing chess with someone and playing alone was different. However, Little Zhanzhan was too bored and tired to wait for the old man to take his move.

Moving closely, Little Zhanzhan thought that the old man was not that good in playing the game so he said, "C4"

The old man didn't hear him and moved a pawn. Little Zhanzhan stared in disgust at the old man's movement and sighed, "You'll only reach a bottleneck if you continue moving in that direction."

Chapter 470 Grandmaster Qin And The Completion Of Angel's Gambit

The old man finally noticed the little boy and turned his gaze to look at him.

Little Zhanzhan was already frustrated by the old man's suicidal moves. Even if he watched for an hour, he could already tell the outcome of this game.

And so, without waiting for the old man to move another chess piece, Little Zhanzhan used small steps to reach the table and stood on his toes before moving a few chess pieces while telling the old man how he should play the game to win.

"Grandpa should play like a clueless child. If you move like that, you're just going to let the opponent eat your Knight."

"Now, if your opponent moves like this... You can see an opening to the back lines and target bigger fish. You might even get to the opponent's King if you move wisely."

"Your opponent will be too busy thinking on how to protect their King so they won't see that your pawn can now eat your Queen."

The old man listened patiently for a second while thinking of entertaining the nonsense of a child. However, the more the little boy talked, the more the old man felt amazed.

Although he used simple moves to move his chess pieces, every move was calculated to deal the opponent a huge pressure on themselves that they don't know where to move their pieces to escape the enemy attack.

Moreover, the old man was surprised that a young boy could actually think like this!

Where did this boy come from?

Little Zhanzhan finished moving and teaching the old man so he stopped talking. With this, this old man should be able to win the game now, right? He thought and looked up at the old man to see him staring at him.

Frowning, Little Zhanzhan thought that the old man didn't listen and could only sigh in disappointment.

He said, "Well, it's okay if you don't listen to me. But you should still play a little bit smarter. I'm a kid but why, an old man like you, can't win a game and move so recklessly?"

The old man's lips twitched when he heard the little boy scold him, but he was not offended. Rather, he was amused by him and asked, "How old are you, little boy?"

The old man frowned. The boy's height was too small to be seven years old, but children don't usually lie so he believed him. Besides, it was the right age to learn how to play chess.

But the old man didn't know that he had been lied to by the little boy whose age was actually still 3 years old. He would turn 4 in two months but Little Zhanzhan didn't tell him that.

At this moment, Guo Yun finished talking to his phone and realized that Little Zhanzhan left his side. Thankfully, the little boy didn't run off too far and was in the pagoda near the park.

Guo Yun picked him up and nodded at the old man before leaving. But then, he felt strange for some reason.

He looked back towards the old man and thought that the old man looked a bit similar to the country's chess grandmaster, Qin Kun.

But Qin Kun was rumored to retire this year. That grandmaster would certainly not be in a park to play chess, right?

Guo Yun would have never dreamed that the old man really turned out to be the Chess GrandMaster of the Country. And he would never imagine that Little Zhanzhan scolded him for being stupid and less smarter than a kid.

A middle-aged man wearing a Changpao walked over to stand beside the old man and politely asked, "Master, did those two disturb your game just now? Were they your fans?"

Qin Kun pulled on his beard and said, "No. I don't think they recognized me. But what are you doing here? Didn't I tell you that I would like to be alone?"

The middle-aged man was his disciple, Han Che.

Han Che wiped his sweat and replied, "Everybody's worried about you after you left the academy. I kept looking for you in every park in the city and this was the last park I could think of."

As the only senior student of GrandMaster Qin, Han Che knew his master well. He knew that whenever his master would be in a bad mood, he would run off to a park to play a few rounds of chess before returning.

However, after announcing his retirement, the juniors in the Chess Academy were worried that their old master would leave without telling anyone. Thus, they sent him, the senior disciple, to look for their grandmaster.

Han Che wanted to persuade his master to return to eliminate the other student's worries, but then, he couldn't help but be thoughtful when he saw the chessboard in front of him.

"Master, this is... Was the Angel's Gambit a success, after all?" Han Che sat on the other chair across the table and excitedly stared at the chessboard in front of him.

As this country's grandmaster of Chess, Qin Kun has been thinking of making a series of golden moves in Chess. Unfortunately, before the old man could announce his creation of special chess moves, he announced his retirement. Angel's Gambit was the name of the special moves that he wanted to create and showcase to the world.

Unfortunately, it was not easy to think of new moves that could defeat Empress' Gambit and several other chess moves that were created by other grandmasters around the world.

Grandmaster Qin also looked down at the chessboard before him and said, "It is... but I didn't do it."

Han Che: "Huh?"

Grandmaster Qin said, "That boy did it."

Han Che: "..."

What boy? Han Che glanced over to the two small and tall figures that had just left the pagoda and frowned.

Old master, are you sure you're not going senile? How can a little boy or even anyone finish Angel's Gambit by just playing a game of chess in front of you?!
