Chapter 501 Buy Stocks For His Son To Play With!

Song Yu Han knew that Guo Yun's concern was not derived from fear. Rather, it was due to the fact that his refusal to attend would end up giving his intentions away.

He had planned for so many years and kept himself hidden so much that people thought that he had completely forgotten his past. But the truth was that he had never forgotten about what happened to him and his mother. He was biding his time very slowly until he had every resource to ruin them one by one.

Guo Yun sighed but he no longer asked him to reconsider his decision. He tapped him by the shoulder and said, "I still think this is too fast. But if you really did accept and go there, the first person who will be disappointed would be me. Thankfully, you're still the same man I met that day."

Song Yu Han curled up his lips into a sardonic smile and replied, "What would you do if I changed? Are you going to kill me in my sleep?"

In an instant, the hand that was over his shoulder clutched on tightly as if it was a metal claw. Guo Yun's face turned grim as his voice turned low and mysterious, "Killing you would be a kind of pleasure to you, you sadistic bastard. So, I won't do anything."

"Sometimes, I think it's terrible that you know me best," said Song Yu Han as he smiled bitterly.

Their friendship had been going on for so many years. Not a lot of people know this, but the first time they met was not when Guo Yun applied for the special assistant position in his office, but somewhere else and a bit earlier than that.

Otherwise, they wouldn't be so close that they could treat each other like blood-related brothers.

"Where's Guo Yun?" Ran Xueyi asked as soon as she saw him enter their room.

Song Yu Han took off his jacket and looked around the room to see his wife and son kneeling on the ground while a few books laid open on top of the coffee table.

He strode over with the elegance of a panther and looked down on the books to see what they were doing. At a glance, he realized that while he was outside discussing some matters with Guo Yun, Ran Xueyi had taken out some books provided in the room and let their son look through it.

The books were not bedtime story books. They're all magazines about the latest fashion trends, business topics, and entertainment gossip. Topics that people who are over 20 years old would find interesting enough to look at.

Song Yu Han was in between laughter and tears. He wondered if his 3 years old son could even understand this kind of topic.

Under his disbelieving eyes, Ran Xueyi silently waved her hand to have him sit down beside her and said, "Sit down. I'm just teaching Zhazhan some words that he may not understand."

"Would he even understand what's in there?" Song Yu Han glanced once more at the books before noticing that there were already words underlined with pen marks. "What is this?"

Ran Xueyi calmly answered, "Zhazhan said he wanted to read more about these topics. So, I had them underlined in case he wanted to learn more about it."

Song Yu Han stared at the words 'Car makers are gunning for market shares', and suddenly became mute. Would his son even understand these things? Isn't it a bit too advanced?

His way of thinking was definitely normal and reasonable. How can his son of three years only actually know about cars or even about the stock market?

However, what baffled him even more was that Ran Xueyi didn't doubt their son even for a second and she enthusiastically encouraged him.

Although it was a good thing that their son was curious about such things since that meant Song Yu Han could hand over his power as chairman to YH Group to his son, but isn't it a bit too early to learn about business?

Restless about his son's growth and development, Song Yu Han took out his phone under his wife's and son's confused gazes and started to search some children's stories.

But then, his fingers stopped above the phone screen as he realized that he couldn't remember the names of these stories because his childhood memories were not so innocently spent.

So, he could only type in the search bar 'Books that children like to read'. He found several books with titles such as 'Where Willy Went', 'It's Just a Plant', and Fairy Tales like 'Snow White', 'Sleeping Beauty', and 'Beauty and the Beast'.

Latter three were already controversial and somewhat nonsensical when the fairy tale spark in one's heart vanished, but the former two were definitely not books children should read!

What were the authors who wrote them thinking? Teaching children who knew nothing about how babies were made? Or how to observe a plant to find out if it's a forbidden plant?

Song Yu Han never thought that these books were being placed in school libraries for children to read.

Seeing the deep frown on his face, Ran Xueyi couldn't stop herself and ask, "What is it?"

Song Yu Han snapped out of his thoughts and locked his screen in an instant. He kept his phone away from their grasp and said, "You can continue teaching him. Wait, should I help you?" He then turned to his son, "Zhanzhan, do you want me to buy you some stocks for you to play with? What do you think about LG? Apple? Or Tesla since you like reading about cars?"

"Ah? What are you talking about?" Ran Xueyi's eyes widened in surprise. She never expected him to ask their son this question. Besides, what does he mean by 'some'? Just a few stocks of these companies are at least in the tens of millions!

Ran Xueyi never expected Song Yu Han's method to educate their son was a bit too much! No, it's too unimaginable!

Little Zhanzhan, on the other hand, had no idea what his father was talking about. However, he felt that what his father said was somewhat interesting.

LG, Apple, Tesla, these things sounded a bit foreign to him. However, his father already bought them so much but didn't buy anything for himself. Thus, Little Zhanzhan misunderstood his father and replied, "A'Yu can buy them if you want..."

'En, since you bought me and mommy lots of good and delicious things, you should get a reward, too! Ah, I'm a good son!' Little Zhanzhan thought to himself and praised himself.

Later on, Ran Xueyi watched the pair of father and son move to sit on the sofa to discuss how much they should buy and where they should buy stocks. Mostly, it was Song Yu Han speaking and Little Zhanzhan nodding his head and acting cutely.

Song Yu Han even asked their son whether they should buy an entertainment company to help her. In the end, Little Zhanzhan happily agreed and said, "Present for Mommy!"

In the corner, Ran Xueyi doubted life again and again. She wondered if she was the only normal person inside the room. Or perhaps, she was the only one who couldn't understand the way her son and husband thinks...

Bored and annoyed since the duo completely forgot about her, Ran Xueyi unlocked her phone to look at her Weibo account. As soon as she logged in, she saw that her message box received more than a thousand messages.

As an artist, a very popular one. Getting hundreds of private messages on their message box was normal. So, Ran Xueyi didn't think too much about it and left them unopened and didn't reply to one of them.

She went to the front page to see any news, but instead, she saw her own name on the first ranking of hot entertainment news and gossip. It was even on the Weibo hot topics. The two rankings were the most popular and heated rankings in the country.

And so, when she saw her name on the top five, she couldn't stop her curiosity and checked why she was trending.

She didn't do anything that made her trend on the platform. The film was not even announced yet. As for her other films, the official release date will happen in a couple of days.

So, what made this happen?

Ran Xueyi didn't hold herself in suspense as she clicked on the hashtag trend and for a brief moment, she was dazzled into stupefaction.

It was a headline entertainment post.

[Eyewitnesses have spoken and broken the news. Popular actress Ran Xueyi (Estelle) was seen at a mall with a wealthy businessman. They were seen walking closely with the businessman's son. At a glance, the eyewitnesses saw that they carried several bags of purchased international and expensive items worth thousands! It is being speculated that Ran Xueyi has a parvenu sugar daddy to cling on to and was never married!]

Chapter 502 Parvenu

More than the headline concerning her being seen by some people going out and buying expensive things with a man, Ran Xueyi was even more puzzled by the word 'Parvenu'.

In what way, in what direction, and in which eye did they see Song Yu Han looking like one?

Ran Xueyi pictured Song Yu Han with an awkwardly worn business suit, leather shoes, gold accessories, and a bulging medium-sized rectangular bag clutched between his armpit while sunglasses were perched on top of his head.

Then, he would walk in a wide stride and legs, looking exactly like a gangster in B-rated movies. He would move his hand around and tell the shop employees with a wave of his, "From here to there... Pack them all for me."

As if that wasn't enough, he would glare at whoever stared at him or even smugly show off his gold accessories as if to announce he was a wealthy businessman.

If someone did this in the province or a small village, it would probably work. But if it was done in big cities like the capital or Suzhou City, these people will only look like they're annoying third-rate rich people who had just tasted the world of money.

Of course, Song Yu Han was not like that. He may have experienced poverty at a young age, but technically, he came from a wealthy background. Both his parents came from renowned great families in the capital albeit the fall of the Lu family in the past. Still, the Lu family has been striving to retake the glory and dignity that had been stripped of them these recent years.

Just what was the post owner thinking when they posted this headline? Which entertainment tabloid was this? They didn't even research a bit more and directly posted it.

Usually, headlines or gossip like this would take at most 24 hours before they will be posted. The most rushed ones can only be released a little bit more than 3 hours later. But everything has to be reconsidered. The tabloid team and management will ensure each post were being monitored and reviewed before it was sent out for the public's eyes.

But it hadn't even been 2 hours since they left the mall?!

Ran Xueyi didn't know whether she should criticize the post owner and the tabloid company, or should she start preparing herself for the incoming calls and troubles these headlines would bring to her.

As she had already expected, her phone screen changed from the front page of the headline post to the screen set when someone called.

It was Adelle.

Ran Xueyi answered and said, "Hello?"

Adelle seemed to be out of breath as her heels echoed to her mic: "Where are you? Did you go to the mall with the big boss?"

Adelle naturally knew that Ran Xueyi would only go out with Song Yu Han. So, she didn't doubt her.

Ran Xueyi sighed softly, "Yes, I did. We just arrived at our hotel room."

The sound of footsteps stopped and Adelle's voice sounded surprised, "Do you mean to say this was captured this morning?"

"Yes," replied Ran Xueyi.

Hearing this, Adelle was confused. Was this an indeliberated post?

As she was thinking, Ran Xueyi curled up her lips into a smile and said, "This post must have been sent without their company or boss's permission. Probably, someone who got a tip and received a monetary benefit for doing it. Otherwise, they wouldn't go against their policies."

Paparazzis and journalists, especially gossipmongers people, will only hold onto especially taken and juicy news until someone takes the bait. They would wait for somebody to take notice and then strike a negotiation. If the person involved reached out, the person who held something in their hands would then make their price.

Whoever pays the highest will win the item.

It was a public market or an auction. It could even be considered a threat or blackmail. However, this was the way of the entertainment world. Things like this are extremely normal and happen a lot.

Thus, Ran Xueyi concluded that the person who posted this without being reviewed received a huge sum of money and other benefits.

Adelle fell silent for a second before she concluded, "I'll ask around to see if I can find the person who posted this. I'll take care of this matter so, you don't have to worry about it."

Ran Xueyi was not worried. If her relationship with Song Yu Han was revealed this time, she didn't want to suppress it or deny it. She would proudly announce that they are married to each other.

But she also didn't stop Adelle from looking for this person and who paid them.

"Something happened?" A deep and manly voice sounded from behind her left ear.

The air coming out from those lips tickled her a bit and Ran Xueyi had to scoot over a little bit to the side to hide her reaction, before looking behind her.

Who knew when he stand behind her? He was just sitting on the sofa with their son, but looking at it now, he seems to have been standing behind her for quite a while now.

"Where's Zhanzhan?"

Song Yu Han straightened his body and then sat beside her on the carpeted floor, "He went to the restroom to pee." He answered her first before asking again, "Someone posted something about you again?"

Ran Xueyi guessed that he overheard a little bit of her conversation with Adelle, and nodded, "Someone saw us together earlier at the mall. They posted a headline about us which is a bit lackluster in my taste. But they only said they have witnesses. Photos and videos proving their claims aren't there. However, once the pan became too hot and tipped over, they will definitely show some photos or evidence to prove their claims."

If things heat up even more than now, photos of them will be released to ensure that the hype won't die down.

And...

They must be waiting for her response so, they are biding their time.

Chapter 503 Little Zhanzhan's Reward

Although Ran Xueyi knew that they were trying to take their time to see how she would respond to their provocation, she wondered why she was being targeted again.

Surprisingly, this time, they had involved her with Song Yu Han while mistaking him as a 'parvenu'.

"Do you want me to take care of it?" Song Yu Han averted his eyes from the phone to look at her.

Ran Xueyi shook her head. "The more I react, the more they will rejoice and do something. I don't want to become a puppet they can just manipulate. And this is not my first time to be in a scandalous rumor, there's no need for me to do anything and just let everyone judge the situation themselves."

Celebrities couldn't escape people's scrutiny. Once they leave their homes, the eyes of the people around them will zero in on them. Ran Xueyi was not a newbie in this type of circumstances.

And she was confident that her fans and some discerning people wouldn't be so blind as to believe the rumor.

As she had expected, under the headline post, her fans and some passersby had commented on it.

[SneakyTea: Do you have nothing else to do? Following a celebrity everywhere they go, are you a stalker?]

[I_am_Lazy_Panda: Were you there at Ran Xueyi's wedding party? How do you know that the man she's with at the mall isn't her husband?]

[GreenLily: Upstairs are so funny, so what if the post owner didn't see it. There are so many people at the mall, what are we supposed to do if a celebrity stood in front of us? Should we run away as if we're being chased by a ghost?]

[TheWorldIsOnline: Hahaha, that's right. I honestly don't believe that Ran Xueyi is married to someone. If she is, she can only be married to me!]

This comment was upvoted a hundred times and followed by similar comments.

[PeasAreTasty: Ran Xueyi is still young and she has been my goddess since I first saw her on television. It's too weird for her to be married!]

[DeathbyMathematics: Then, upstairs, are you saying that she's being kept by someone?]

[PeasAreTasty: No, but she can only be kept by me!]

[+213 likes]

Suddenly, a new hot search 'She can only be kept by me!' was rapidly climbing up the ranks.

Anti-fans gritted their teeths and clenched their hands as they started to fight back.

[DucksareGood: Hmph! You're all so disgusting. If Ran Xueyi is really being kept by someone, doesn't that mean that she's letting a man lay on top of her? Ptui! So filthy! I don't want this kind of actress to stay in the industry!]

[24kGold: I'm honestly questioning myself whether the celebrities I'm following are clean or not. I shudder at the thought of them being kept by someone.]

[SleepIsDead: Upstairs, don't jinx it. I still want to follow the idol groups I like!]

[AnonyMouse: Still, if Ran Xueyi is really being kept by a parvenu, shouldn't she apologize to everyone? She must have taken all those endorsements and films by sleeping with someone!]

While Weibo was having a heated discussion over Ran Xueyi, the person involved was not worried at all.

Ran Xueyi and Song Yu Han collected a lot of materials for Little Zhanzhan's development and education. There's little time until he had to go to school, so they wanted to spend more time with him.

Little Zhanzhan completely forgot about school as he listened carefully to his parents taking turns to teach him about some studies that adults could understand. As a child, it was already a talent for him to understand these advanced learning materials.

Other kids might have found it difficult, but he enjoyed it quite greatly.

At some point, Little Zhanzhan even finished answering a few pages of mathematics problems for middle-schoolers.

When they checked that he answered everything correctly, Little Zhanzhan grinned widely at his mother and said, "Mommy, give me a kiss!"

Ran Xueyi couldn't bear to reject him so she agreed.

But just as she was about to take him to her arms and gently press her lips against his cheek, Song Yu Han interjected by pulling his son towards him and gave him a sounding kiss on the cheek.

Little Zhanzhan: "A'Yu!"

Song Yu Han: "This is your reward for doing good. Are you happy?"

Little Zhanzhan shook his head and pouted: "But I want mommy's kiss, not Stinky A'Yu!"

Song Yu Han grabbed his son before he could slip out of his arms: "What's wrong with getting a kiss from your father? My lips and your mommy's aren't so different."

"No, it's different! Her's is softer!"

Song Yu Han quickly agreed with him: "En, you're right."

Little Zhanzhan: "..."

Ran Xueyi: "..."

Obviously, the big bad wolf was feeling jealous of his cub. Little Zhanzhan could kiss his mommy anytime and anywhere while he could only do it when they were behind closed doors.

Besides, Song Yu Han didn't want to allow his son to develop a bad character where he would forget to include his father in his sweet and childish antics.

"Mommy!"

"Dear!"

Ran Xueyi: "..."

She was even more speechless when the two almost look-alike people turned around to look at her simultaneously. It was a weird sight to be looked at by a big and small version of Song Yu Han.

In the end, Ran Xueyi had to pacify both big and small wolves in her family by giving both of them kisses on their lips.

A few hours later, the time for their departure from the capital to the filming site arrived. The rest of the group who had arrived with him at the capital went ahead of them. But the truth is... they didn't want to become light bulbs in light posts for this family.

On the other hand, Adelle and Guo Yun had to be left behind at the capital to take care of some things that their bosses left for them to take care of.

Despite his busy schedule, Guo Yun took the time to send Adelle a message: [Are you free tonight? There's a new restaurant my colleague recommended to me. My treat.]

There was no reply for a while.

"Assistant Guo, this document has been rearranged and reviewed by our team leader. Should I send it directly to the boss?"

Guo Yun looked away from his phone and reached out to take the papers from his colleague: "The boss is out for a business trip. I'll take this to him."

Three hours later, Adelle finally read his message. A smile unconsciously appeared on her lips.

[Okay! Send me the address.]

By the end of the day, Guo Yun didn't send her the address. Instead, he arrived in his car outside of Chestnut Entertainment building.

Chapter 504 Subtle Meaning

As soon as she stepped out of the automatic door of the office building, Adelle saw Guo Yun standing next to his car. He seemed to be on the phone with someone as his mouth moved. When he noticed her, he waved his hand at her.

Adelle didn't want to disturb him and walked over to him. When she finally stood before him, she didn't make a sound. After a minute, Guo Yun finally hung up the call.

"Sorry, some employees forgot to submit their papers for tomorrow's meeting, " said Guo Yun. The company's speed in taking care of their business has not stopped because Song Yu Han chose to go on a long break from work. But it only made his time to be preoccupied most of the time since he is the big boss' right-hand man.

Guo Yun was already used to the intensity of his work and the demands of his job, but that was before he had met someone he wanted to be close with.

In the past, he had casual relationships with women, who had shown their interest in him. He didn't mind agreeing to date them because he thought that working and dating someone wouldn't make much of a difference in his life. Besides, his mother's request to have him introduce his girlfriend to her had bothered him so much.

In the end, none of those girls he had dated before would last long enough to meet his mother. They had the same complaints about him after breaking up with him. All of them were fed up with such a dull and monotonous relationship. It made them feel unloved.

Guo Yun tried his best to change, but it seems that his change was not enough as they still complain about having less time to spend with each other than working. He could understand their reasons and feelings. But he simply couldn't relate nor empathize with them.

Thus, Guo Yun wondered if he was worthy enough to be in a serious relationship.

In the end, he chose not to date someone for the rest of his life and focus all his attention on his job.

But that was until before the foreign woman that Ran Xueyi picked to become her new manager.

At first glance, she looked ordinary and taller than most women, but once you get a deeper look at her, she seemed to bloom like a flower in spring. Guo Yun found himself unconsciously drawn to her. He initially thought that he wanted to get closer to her because she was the manager of Song Yu Han's wife. However, he dumbfoundedly found out that he was wrong in his previous conception.

He was not curious about Adelle because she was Ran Xueyi's manager, he was unknowingly falling for her.

Once he realized his feelings, Guo Yun was perplexed. But in the next second, he didn't want to let go of this feeling.

He decided to pursue Adelle even though it was only subtle so he wouldn't scare her. But lately, he felt that there was a need to hasten things up.

Right at this moment, the woman that his heart had been calling out to was sitting on the passenger seat. A thirty-four year old man like him didn't know what to do. He seemed to have returned to the time when he was still a teenager who gets worked up at a swimsuit magazine.

Adelle had a tall figure, her legs were especially long and slender like a model's. Guo Yun suddenly wondered how nice it would feel to have his waist and hips wrapped around with that pair of legs...

"So, where are we heading?" Adelle, unbeknownst to his thoughts, shifted on her seat and turned to look at him.

Gripping his hand around the wheel, Guo Yun shook off the muddledness in his mind. He felt ashamed and disgusted that he had just thought of the woman he likes disrespectfully. Then, he cleared his throat, and replied, "My colleague went to this sushi restaurant. It opened a few months ago and they seemed to be popular in this area." When the traffic light turned red, he turned his head to look at her and said, "But if you're not able to eat anything raw, I can get you something else."

"No need. I am able to eat 'dishes' that are raw," Adelle shook her head and looked away, slightly embarrassed by their word choices.

[A/N: The word 'Raw' has two meanings/pronunciations in this context. One is the raw which is fresh and uncooked. And the second meaning is to have 'unprotected sex'. Guo Yun accidentally used the second one.]

Guo Yun didn't notice it at first, but when the traffic lights turned green and he was about to press on the gas, he finally found where the strangeness in his heart was coming from.

My God!

What have I done?!

He blamed his thoughts that had gone down the drain, which led him to say things that were too weird. Of course, if others were to hear it, they might not react much, especially those who are naïve and innocent. But the two of them were adults and have more experience in that area...

Of course, both Guo Yun and Adelle could hear the subtle meaning in his words.

But...

That's not what he truly meant!

He was simply and innocently asking her, but it was all due to his stupid male hormones that made him confused for a second there.

"Uhm... are you possibly not dating anyone?" While Guo Yun was still agonizing in his mind, Adelle was not affected by what had happened that much. She even teasingly told him, "Don't be too embarrassed, it's possible for people who haven't been in a relationship to have an accident like that. Anyway, I don't have much of a preference for what I eat so you can worry less."

Guo Yun's eyes were filled with shame and terror. But his face paled when he heard her and he couldn't help but ask, "Was it too obvious?"

Adelle: "What is?"

"That I'm desperate and frustrated?"

Adelle: "Not really."

Guo Yun: "Then, how did you find out?"

The corners of her lips turned upward. Adelle turned her head to look away while the tips of her ears were slightly red, "You've been shaking your legs this whole time. And... I didn't really want to mention it but... your little brother seems to be awake."

As if he was struck by a thunder, Guo Yun's body froze instantly.

He slowly, like a broken puppet, looked downward to check whether his little brother was awake. He wore dark pants today that fit his thick and sturdy legs very well. Though there was a bulge from the center where his zipper was located, it didn't look abnormal. Rather, it looked extremely normal like any other men who had a slight bulge in their center.

He confirmed that his brother didn't rise from his slumber because of his indecent thoughts.

As Guo Yun was about to release a relieved sigh, he heard a rollicking laugh from the passenger seat.

Slowly, like an outdated film, images of his previous actions appeared in his eyes. Guo Yun realized what he had done just now.

Adelle covered her mouth with her hand and twisted in her seat as she tried to contain her laughter.

But in the end, she couldn't continue holding it back.

"Pfft!...Ha...Sorry! Hahaha!"

Guo Yun: "..."

Chapter 505 Mysterious Statement

"I'm really sorry! I didn't mean to make fun of you, but I saw you being in a daze and it's been a stressful day for me. I have a disease where I should make fun of someone when it's too stressful for me so I can feel like myself again," Adelle finally stopped laughing and apologized to him.

Earlier at the office, she was stressed by the incoming calls from brands that Ran Xueyi had endorsed in the past and still had contracts with. The directors whom the film was still not released also asked her what they should do after the scandalous rumor of Ran Xueyi being kept by a parvenu had taken the top spots of trend searches on Weibo.

The official page of their company received thousands of emails, asking how they will respond to the rumors. Every staff member in Ran Xueyi's team was on their phone. And at the end of the day, Adelle only got to resolve the problems that needed immediate response. As for the post owner, she was not able to reach out to them because they suddenly deleted their accounts.

This made her job a little troublesome. Now that the post and the post owner disappeared, it will only make people speculate for worse.

Eventually, there will be people who thinks that Ran Xueyi's parvenu keeper targeted the post owner, threatening them until they deleted their post.

There were about ten to fifteen people in Ran Xueyi's team. All of them were already busy with the upcoming release of her films and the reviews of the oncoming scripts. Now that there were thousands of people who are asking them to deny the rumors, there was no time for them to even go to breakroom to drink a cup of coffee.

Guo Yun's timely appearance was like a beam of light in the darkness. Adelle just needed to harass someone to make her feel a little bit better. Guo Yun became her victim in a long time.

Guo Yun had never expected her to tease him like this. He was slightly annoyed and extremely embarrassed because he was made to believe that he had reacted and she noticed it, but his emotion was soon replaced by awe and satisfaction upon the sight of her undisguised and genuine laugh.

He had made her smile.

He was the reason her lips were stretched to a wide grin.

Somehow, he felt like he had accomplished something worthwhile.

Social media was always a pandemonium, but this strange wave was rare. Major marketing accounts, who used to be the first to share and post their opinion about some topics and celebrity scandals, seemed to be blind and didn't express their opinion on Ran Xueyi's matter.

Initially, a lot of agencies who didn't want Ran Xueyi to further succeed in her career and push their young and fresh artists forward to boost their images wanted to take advantage of this event to steal the scripts and directors that considered Ran Xueyi as their first muse in their films.

But they couldn't help but hesitate as Chestnut Entertainment didn't do anything at all. No response, no statement, or announcement. Nothing was posted both in their official page and site.

It was as if they were completely unrelated from everything that was happening to the world.

With them staying silent, many agencies and studios who wanted to strike while the iron is hot, stood on the tips of their toes. They all wished Ran Xueyi would say something then, they could take their first steps to chew down the benefits that followed.

Until the still water was stirred and shook out of proportion.

Yang Baihua, who had been waiting on the side, couldn't wait any longer.

He pressed his fingers on the keyboard several times, forming words to sentences. Eventually, he had a mysterious statement on his Weibo account.

[YangBaihua: Why can't people mind their own business? It's just taking a walk with your beloved and shopping at the mall.]

Once this was posted, not many people viewed it. No one even commented on it. However, it seemed to be hinting at something.

After he had his engagement with Ran Xueyi annulled, he finally got what he wanted and got together with his pregnant white moonlight, Song Qian. However, after tasting the forbidden bliss, the excitement he felt while being together with her didn't last. Previously, he thought he would marry Song Qian, but he was tempted by Ran Yue, who then later became his wife after his affair with her was exposed. The Ran family and the Yang family didn't have much to say in their matters. They only cared about the advantages they could take from each other.

At first, Yang Baihua was happy to have two women in his life. However, that changed when he saw Ran Xueyi on the TV screen.

The woman he had toyed with and manipulated in the past now became a beautiful flower that no one could tear their eyes off. Though he was mesmerized by her, Yang Baihua was now married and a father. He couldn't continue holding the past within his hands.

But then, just when he was going to let go of the past, he heard the rumor that Ran Xueyi was being kept by someone. Actually, he also heard that she had married a mysterious man, but no physical evidence came out. Hence, this was quickly crossed out. And many believed that Ran Xueyi was not married, including Yang Baihua.

Now, Yang Baihua regretted that he didn't get to taste her in the past. If he had manipulated her when she was still naïve and desperate for love, he might have been her first.

What annoyed him even more was that she settled for a 'parvenu'. This was setting her standards too low. If Ran Xueyi had only stayed by his side despite his affairs, he would have pampered her granted that she would put the Ran family within his hands.
