Chapter 81 Call Her Mrs. Shi

Even though Ellison had lost his hands,

John wasn't done with him. He turned to Richard and ordered, "Take him to Stone Road. I want you to interrogate him till he tells you who was behind this."

"Yes, Mr. Shi." After that, Richard took Ellison to the Shi family and asked the doctor to patch up his wrists. Richard had already started planning the torture and interrogation that was to follow.

Everyone else returned to the North Yard.

On their way back to the North Yard, Henry asked James about the man who took Ellison down so effortlessly. After John gave his nod of approval, James told him the identity of Richard and his status in the Shi family.

The Shi family was one of the three most powerful families in Lexingport City. Not only was it greatly admired, it was feared.

Those who were in high positions naturally had more enemies and dangers, so they needed people to protect them.

Sam's generation had trained bodyguards to protect the Shi family for a while now. The guards lived in Shi family house on Stone Road and protected the family on a daily basis, There were currently two hundred guards in total and they were usually split into five groups. There was a group for Sam and each of his four children. Richard was the head of the guards protecting John.

Henry just wanted to ask an innocent question but in the end it would be much more than that. He was going to be in charge of all communication with Richard and the guards' salaries.

Henry was so annoyed with himself. He didn't need the extra burden but he couldn't do anything about it now. He had to obey John's orders even if he didn't want to.

The car finally came to a stop as they arrived at the North Yard.

Henry was so annoyed with himself. He didn't need the extra burden but he couldn't do anything about it now. He had to obey John's orders even if he didn't want to.

The car finally came to a stop as they arrived at the North Yard.

Nina was still cold from her soak in the James was befuddled. "Uncle John, why did you ask Aunt Nina to drink hot water? Isn't that a bit pointless?"

Did John actually ever care about anyone? He just wanted her to drink the water?

James thought it was far too ridiculous.

Unexpectedly, John said a single word calmly, "Practical."

The little girl looked like she was getting better so John wanted her to drink more. All he wanted was for her to recover quickly.

Hearing this, James was speechless. He could only curl his lips and look at Nina. He really didn't know what John and Nina were thinking.

Normally, when a girl was sick and her boyfriend just told her to drink water, she would be mad. But Nina wasn't angry at all.

"James, what did Helen just call Miss Lu?" Henry was completely taken aback and wasn't concentrating on their conversation at all. Just now, he heard Helen call her Mrs. Shi. John didn't seem to correct her either.

Nina seemed very comfortable with the title as well.

Were they planning on getting married? Did they promise themselves to each other?

If that was the case, Henry thought that now was as good a time as any to tell them that they already legally married.

"She called her Mrs. Shi. Is that strange? I've been calling her Aunt Nina for a month now. I think you should call her Mrs. Shi instead of Miss Lu. I think Uncle John and Aunt Nina are going to get together finally." James flashed a wicked grin.

"I wanted to call her Mrs. Shi from the very beginning." Henry knew that she was John's wife so it only felt natural that he should call her Mrs. Shi.

Back then though, John wasn't even aware of it yet and he was in a constant battle with Nina anyway. He couldn't tell him especially because Sam told Henry to wait for the right time. Sam always believed that he should only tell them when they had clearly fallen in love.

"Henry, are you a fortune teller? Can you foresee their marriage?" It occurred to James that Henry told him that Nina was his aunt some time ago. Was this all coming true now?

He didn't expect that Henry could predict the future.

"I can't see the future, nor can I predict marriages," Henry denied. It was all just because he knew the truth well before anyone else.

"Then why..."

"If you want to speak, get out of here," John said, glaring at them. He was getting annoyed with their constant whispering.

Didn't they see that his little girl was not feeling well?

The two of them shut up sulkily.

"Keep the noise down. I have a headache," Nina said with her face wrinkled. She felt her head throb as she squinted her eyes. All she wanted to do was go to sleep. John was reprimanding the other two a bit too loudly.

She couldn't help but reluctantly remind him.

She knew that she had to watch what she said because she was in John's home now. She couldn't just do as she pleased.

Today, Nina saw how ruthless John could be. James told her that John had been humoring her all this time. She didn't dare beat John now, fearing she would be chopped.

John looked a little embarrassed. He raised his hand to touch Nina's forehead and lowered his voice. "Okay, I'll be quiet. Go upstairs and have a rest."

"Okay." Nina nodded and slowly closed her eyes. She was exhausted.

John carried her upstairs.

Henry exchanged a look with James, shaking his head and sighing.

"Uncle John really is afraid of Aunt Nina. If I ever dare to try to shut him up, he'd reduce my monthly living expenses to three dollars."

"Sure enough, Mr. Shi only listens to Mrs. Shi." Henry could only imagine what John would do to him if he tried to shut him up. All he knew was that it wouldn't be pretty.

While they were upstairs, the doctor arrived and went to check on Nina. He said that she had a fever because of the cold and gave her some medication to remedy that. After she took the medication, she felt drowsy and fell asleep in John's bed.

Downstairs, Lisa, the manager of the FG headquarters, came in with an array of women's clothes and all kinds of jewelry. The floor hangers were sprawled across the hall with all the clothes neatly hung.

Lisa said respectfully, "Mr. Shi, I brought the products from the FG season's new range. I didn't know Mrs. Shi's usual style so I brought everything. Please let me know so that I can pick out suitable clothes."

"Mrs. Shi? Who told you that?" John kept his cool, expressing a calm outwardly appearance. He was always indifferent in front of his subordinates.

"Henry." Lisa felt a little nervous. Was she wrong? But Henry said the clothes were for John's wife.

John nodded slightly and glanced at Henry. What was Henry doing?

"You told her to prepare clothes for Mrs.

"Yes." Henry also felt nervous. Was he wrong to call Nina that? John didn't object to Helen calling her Mrs. Shi after all.

Lisa's forehead broke into a cold sweat, but she still maintained her calmness as a shop manager. "Is there something wrong with

II NO." He actually really liked everyone referring to Nina like that

One could almost feel the tension of the room ease up.

Hearing John say that there was no problem, Lisa and Henry looked at each other and breathed a sigh of relief.

"You two really know how to please me.

Your salary will be doubled from tomorrow on."

"Thank you so much, sir! Please extend my appreciation to Mrs. Shi as well." Lisa couldn't believe the emotional roller-coaster she was going through.

Henry smiled for only a moment. He didn't mean to flatter John. He was just telling the truth. He never expected that the title "Mrs. Shi" would double his salary.

Why did he call Nina Mrs. Shi from the very beginning?

Henry shook his head and regretted it.

Chapter 82 Good Flattery

James was shocked when Henry and Lisa got their salary doubled just because they called Nina Mrs. Shi. He called her Aunt Nina for so long, but John didn't give him anything. Why?

He was working himself sick trying to increase his allowance. He got his increase from three thousand to thirty thousand but it was quite the job taking Michelle away from Nina.

James was furious.

He felt like he was being unfairly treated but he didn't dare think of telling John that.

Henry noticed James stewing in his anger and decided to calm his mind by giving him some advice.

"James, maybe you should also consider flattery."

"Flattery? I've flattered Uncle John for what — Chapter 82 Good Flattery seems like all my life.” He wasn’t wrong. James did constantly flatter John, trying to be respectful.o

“Flatter Mrs. Shi.” John didn’t need the flattery. Everyone who came into contact with him tried to get on his good side. There was almost a bombardment of compliments from every meeting. He was hardly short of it.

“Aunt Nina?” James was a little hesitant.

“Mr. Adrian Song called her Mrs. Shi and got the VIP card to HD Square. Lisa just called her Mrs. Shi and her salary has been doubled.”

“Did Adrian really get the VIP card? All because he called her Mrs. Shi?”

“Absolutely.”

James was completely bemused. He thought that he might as well give it a try since he was struggling with his current living expense.

Lisa then proposed to John, “Shall I choose clothes for Mrs. Shi after she wakes up?”

— Chapter 82 Good Flattery

For how brilliant John was, he knew little about female’s fashion. Lisa, on the other hand, was very well versed. She had been a designer for many years so she was more than qualified. That was why she had been the manager of the headquarters for the past seven or eight years.

“Okay.” He valued her opinion very much.

“We don’t need to pick and choose clothes for Aunt Nina. In my opinion, just leave all the clothes here. She looks beautiful no matter what she wears. She is a natural beauty, with a beautiful face, bright eyes and red lips...” seized every opportunity to praise Nina. He used every word in his vocabulary to flatter her almost to the point that he was out of breath.

Henry was exasperated. He told this boy to flatter her, not to go over the top.

James was like that though. He’d risk his life it came to money.

Regardless of the judgment, James took a deep breath and continued to praise Nina. "Whatever Aunt Nina wears will become the — Chapter 82 Good Flattery new trend. There is no need to find her style."

Then he smiled and said, "Don't you agree, Uncle John?"

John gazed at James with a faint smile on his face. He was surprised that James actually knew that many words. He spoke nonstop and the most surprising thing was that it was all accurate.

He described Nina perfectly.

"Go on." John really quite enjoyed what James had said.

'What? Go on? James didn't know what more to say? This was more than he had ever said about anyone else.

He looked around for help. Henry smiled but kept quiet. Lisa shook her head, showing he had nothing to say.

They were helpless. He was left all alone.

"Uncle John, you must have impeccable taste in women to pick such an incredible woman for my aunt. What's more, Aunt Nina — Chapter 82 Good Flattery must have equally good taste to have picked you." James praised both of them simultaneously. He seemed to have a knack for this.

James was doing everything he could to heighten the chances of increasing his living expenses. He hoped the flattery was his ticket to success.

John knew that James was only doing this for the money.

Although John wasn't going to bend to James' will, he enjoyed listening to what James was saying.

He liked hearing that Nina liked him.

“I’ll return your allowance back to normal,” John said nonchalantly.o

“What? Really?” James jumped for joy, hearing that he would be getting his old allowance. This means it would be back to three million a month.

“Don’t you want it?”

“I want it. Of course I want it. Uncle John,

— Chapter 82 Good Flattery you and Aunt Nina are a match made in heaven. I wish you a happy marriage and the birth of lovely children.” James was so happy that he didn’t know what he was saying. He just wanted to express his gratitude in any way possible. He seemed to just start congratulating them out of the blue.

James’ mission seemed to be a success.

A match made in heaven? Birth of lovely children?

John couldn’t help smiling. These words painted such a euphoric life.

“Henry, from now on, James’ living expense will be increased to five million.” Then he stood up and went upstairs. When he thought of Nina, his eyes filled with tender care and love.o

James suddenly burst into laughter.

“Five million! Five million! I get my life back!

1 1 m a genius. How did I pull this off?”O

“James, lower your voice, please. If you disturb Mrs. Shi, that five million will

— Chapter 82 Good Flattery disappear.”O

Shocked half to death, James shut his mouth immediately. He quickly asked Henry to put the money in his account and left before John changed his mind.

Lisa decided that she was going to leave as well. Before Henry could do anything, he received a call from Adrian.

He angrily asked, "Henry, where are you? With a woman? You always act as if you're a simple man with few desires but look at you now. Your head wound hasn't recovered yet.

Get back to the hospital now!"

"Right away," Henry replied with a smile.

The instant he hung up the phone, his smile disappeared and his face turned a ghoulis pale.

He was always gentle and accommodating but this made his blood boil.

What did Adrian mean by being with a woman? Did Adrian think that he was like hirn?O

Did he think that he also liked sleeping

— Chapter 82 Good Flattery around?

Lying in the bed, Nina's head still throbbed as she lay in a daze. She turned over, feeling something pull the quilt.

She felt a strong chest press up against her back. She was held in two strong arms that tidied her silky hair.

"Who is it?" Nina murmured. She shuffled in discomfort, trying to move away. She furrowed her eyebrows and then relaxed.

In a daze, Nina only felt the warmth of the person behind her. Something appeared under her head, making her more comfortable. It was like a pillow that seemed to soothe her aching head.

Nina finally fell asleep. She began to dream deeply. In the forest, she met the elk that had taken her home. Its bright eyes were like stars and its antlers reflected in the water.

The wind blew, causing ripples in the water. In the light, a tall and handsome man reflected in the water as well.

— Chapter 82 Good Flattery

It was John. He appeared in her dreams to bring her peace again.

“Sleep, my little girl.” Seeing her toss and turn, frowning from time to time, John wanted to sleep with her to ease her discomfort.

Once, when Nina was drunk, she slept on his body. That night he realized that she only slept peacefully when he was there. He had to let her sleep on his chest the whole night.

John couldn't help but smile at the little girl sleeping in his arms. Not only did she like his face but also his body.

He also loved those aspects of her.

More than that, he loved everything about her

Chapter 83 An Invitation

Amelia sat leisurely in her chair, about to celebrate with some wine when her assistant rushed in.

He hurriedly reported, “Ms. Fang, Ellison has disappeared.”

“Disappeared? What do you mean?” She stopped swirling the wine in her glass, completely freezing. Her celebrations seemed to be cut short by this sudden mishap.

"I didn't go too close to his house because I was afraid that someone may trace me back to you, Ms. Fang. I have spoken to the man who delivers Ellison's lunch though. He said that nobody was there when he went. Something must have happened and the woman probably escaped."

Amelia tightened her grip on the wine glass with her knuckles turning white. She orchestrated the plan so perfectly. How — Chapter 83 An Invitation could it all go so wrong?

How did anyone find Nina so quickly? Where was Ellison? It was really apparent that whoever saved her was a force to be reckoned with.

There were many rumors about Nina and James being together. She also had seen Nina and John being quite friendly recently so it had to be one of those two.

Neither of them should be trifled with.

"You did a great job. But Ellison..." This really worried her a lot. It seemed that Ellison had been captured.

"I suspect that Ellison has been arrested or taken hostage. I just hope he doesn't give us up."

"His son is here. He won't risk the boy's life." Amelia was confident of that, but she couldn't shake the feeling that if he was tortured, it could all go sour.

"I need you to investigate where Ellison has been taken and try to save him. If he can't be saved then you have to kill him. We can't — Chapter 83 An Invitation afford to get caught." Amelia's eyes were full of malice. She had never been softhearted.

Her assistant left as Isabella walked in.

"Mom, I have good news to tell you." Isabella clutched onto Amelia's arm excitedly, took out a blue invitation card and showed it to her. "This is the invite for Miss Vivian Ye l s twenty-fourth birthday party. It will be held at the Ye family's house. This birthday party must be special for some reason. I heard that the Shi family are going to be there as well. I guess she is going to get engaged to Mr. John Shi at the party.”

It was widely known that Vivian had a crush on John. They were never involved in any scandal and they seemed to be saving themselves for each other. Now that he was back from abroad, the general consensus was that he was going to finally marry Vivian.O

They were both of quite high status so it was somewhat of an ideal match. Everyone could only imagine the heights they could — Chapter 83 An Invitation reach. Even though it was just a birthday party, the Shi family were invited too, so it seemed like an obvious engagement party as well.o

Amelia wasn't so convinced. She heard rumors that John had no interest in Vivian and was actually with some young girl that he was courting. He was apparently only interested in this little girl.

So it wasn't surprising at all at how many different theories had been concocted.

“Isabella, don't pay too much attention to these little bits of gossip. They're all just speculation. No one knows the truth. Don't try to make trouble with the Shi family. Otherwise, we will be the ones in trouble.” Amelia knew that her daughter was a little naive so she had to make sure that she wouldn't get in trouble.

“Mom, don't worry. I'm not going to mess with anyone from the Shi family.” Isabella was well aware of the repercussions. The Shi family were ruthless. They did bankrupt the Zhang family after all. She had to be on — Chapter 83 An Invitation her best behavior.

However she couldn't shake her hatred for Nina. She needed James to be done with her so she could finally get her revenge.

“Good girl, Isabella.” Amelia put down the red wine and stroked her daughter's arm. She took note of the blue invitation card in her hand. It was no ordinary invitation.

Ye family were always engrossed in status. Whenever they held an event, the invitation they sent was an indication of the person's status. The higher the invitation, the better treatment you received.

If you were of the upper class, they'd send a gold invitation with gold trimmings and threads. Below that, they sent blue invitations and anyone beyond there would receive an ordinary card.

Ye family had helped the Zhang family to get the secret recipe. It was impossible for Kristina to really take a fancy to Isabella so they'd receive an ordinary invite.

"Who gave you this invitation?"

— Chapter 83 An Invitation

"It's from Albert." Isabella blushed just saying his name. "I didn't expect Albert to invite me in person. Mom, do you think he wants me to be his date in the party?"

When she heard that it was Albert that gave her the invitation, Amelia felt like the Zhang family was going to rise. She quickly held her daughter's hand and said, "Isabella, I remember you said that Albert was the one who asked you to ask for Kristina's help, right? Is he the one that gave you this invitation?"

"Yes. Albert gave it to me personally," Isabella said happily.

"Isabella, I think Albert likes you. When you go to the party, you don't have to represent the family or anything. You just go with Albert. Have a good time and behave yourself, okay? Albert comes from a good family and is an incredibly talented man. You should take the opportunity with both hands. Do you understand? Don't let another woman close to him, okay?"

"Mom, I know." Isabella could barely hide

— Chapter 83 An Invitation her shyness. She loved the idea of being Albert's, so there was still a glimmer of pride in her eyes.

Isabella only guessed that Albert liked her, but hearing her mother say the same thing made her sure of it.

She could see her future now and it was perfect. She would always be there for Albert and do everything for him. She knew that she had to keep him away from Nina.

Amelia smiled gleefully, "That's my good daughter."

She quickly thought of Nina and said, "Isabella, keep an eye out for James at the party. Let me know if he takes Nina with him."O

If James took Nina with, he definitely liked her a lot. That would really foil their plans for

"How could James take Nina with him? She's just a country girl. She's nothing but a pretty face. Wouldn't he be embarrassed to take Nina with him?" Isabella gnashed her — Chapter 83 An Invitation teeth. Just Nina's name was enough to set her off.

"But she is beautiful. That's all a woman needs. A pretty woman can be much more successful than you realize. You'd better doll yourself up because you can't squander your chances with Albert. FG currently have three evening dresses which cost about ten million. Miss Ye has bought one and Ms. Shi had bought one. I think you should wear the last one as well. Maybe Albert can buy it for you, but if not, use my gift card," There was a lot riding on this. If Isabella could marry into the Song family, then Amelia could get the Zhang family to prosper again.O

"An evening dress worth ten million?" Isabella was overjoyed. If she had that dress, she would be the center of attention. "Mom, don't worry. I will be the most beautiful woman at the party."O

She had to get that evening dress.

What she didn't know was that the dress she had been thinking about was actually already booked. John was getting it for

Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love

When Nina woke up, it was already dusk. There were rosy clouds dancing around in the sky.

The North Yard was very quiet and the bedroom was in a deafening silence. Finally, the sound of Nina moving and the quilt slipping to the floor, broke the stillness.

Rubbing her eyes, she felt that the left side of her face was warmer than the other side. She didn't think too much of it and got out of bed.

On the way downstairs, she happened to see Helen cleaning. Strangely, the whole living room was full of clothes.

"Helen, what's all this?"

"Good morning, Mrs. Shi. Do you still have a headache?" Helen turned around and asked with concern. Seeing that Nina was still wearing her old and shabby clothes, Helen said, "Mrs. Shi, Mr. Shi bought these clothes — Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love for you. You can change into these and get rid of those old tattered ones."

Nina was a little surprised that John bought her any clothes, let alone this large selection.

She looked through all the clothes and put on a long dress. The hemline of the dress was long enough to touch her ankle and there was a round collar and lovely sleeves. This dress was exactly what she wanted. Then she picked a pair of white flat shoes.

She made a conscious effort to check the price and when she saw it, she decided to send John the money through WeChat.O

“Mrs. Shi, you are so beautiful,” Helen praised sincerely. She was genuinely taken aback by how beautiful Nina was. She was convinced that she was the prettiest girl she had ever seen.

Helen had seen Vivian before and acknowledged how pretty she was, but Nina was leagues ahead. She was truly incomparable.

— Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love

Hearing the praise, Nina smiled, but told her, “Helen, don’t call me Mrs. Shi anymore.”O

If John’s fiancée found out, she would be in all kinds of trouble.

“Yes, Mrs. Shi,” Helen answered, still calling her Mrs. Shi.

Glancing around, Nina couldn’t see John anywhere. She was about to ask where he was but decided to keep quiet.

Helen noticed Nina looking around the room and she figured that Nina was looking for John but was too shy to ask.

Helen took it upon herself to just help Nina out. “Mr. Shi has just left. He has gone to the company to deal with some work. He said that if you wake up, you can eat and there’s no need to wait for him.”o

Nina was speechless. The thought of waiting for him didn’t even cross her mind in all honesty.

If he only left for the company now, what was he doing all day? Maybe he was just — Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love enjoying some leisure time.

Nina sighed. ‘He has been working so hard lately to keep the company going. I hope it all goes well so that he doesn’t have to go back to teach to earn some money.’

Nina touched her belly and was indeed a little hungry. "Helen, may I have dinner?"

"Sure. Mrs. Shi, please take a seat." Helen happily brought the dinner to the table. She had made chicken soup especially for Nina.

After dinner, Nina was about to go back to college. Helen asked her to stay and wait for John and said that someone would take her back tomorrow, but Nina insisted on leaving right away. Helen thought that Nina probably had classes tomorrow morning so she didn't ask Nina to stay.

But before Nina left, Helen took out two bags and handed them to her. There were logos of FG on the bags and there were two exquisite boxes inside.

"Mrs. Shi, Mr. Shi asked me to give these to you. This is the latest evening dress from — Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love the FG and these are a pair of high-heels. Mr. Shi said that you promised to go to Miss Vivian Ye l s birthday party with him. So he picked out these for you to wear."

"What?" When did she promise to attend the birthday party with him?

It was his fiancée's birthday party.O

What was he thinking?

Seeing the puzzled look on Nina's face, Helen also became confused. "Did you not know about this, Mrs. Shi? Mr. Shi said you had promised him one condition."o

One condition?

She suddenly remembered what had happened. It was all because of that elective course.

Just so that John wouldn't deduct that classmate's credit, she had promised to do something for him.

"Oh, I see." Nina lifted the two bags and forced out a fake smile.

She couldn't turn back on her word,

— Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love especially because of what he had done for her today. He saved her life so she had to do something in return.

Walking out, Nina realized that she didn't have a car. She strode back into the house, smiling and asked Helen, "Helen, can you ask someone to send me back?"

"Ah! How could I forget such an important thing?" Helen smiled and put a hand to her face, embarrassed. She took out five sets of car keys and put them in Nina's hands.

"Mrs. Shi, these are the car keys that I was ordered to give you. Aside for the Rolls-Royce that Mr. Shi took today, you can drive whichever one you like. If you want to drive all of them away, that's okay too but you may not be able to do that alone though."o Hearing Helen's words, Nina raised her eyebrows in shock. What did Helen mean that she could drive them all away?

She could take them one by one, but why was John so nice to her?

— Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love

She knew the logos on the five keys. They were Lincoln, Maybach, Bentley, Ferrari and Audi.

At last, Nina hopped in the Audi and drove it away.

John only came back from work late, around ten o'clock. He couldn't see Nina and even though he knew that she'd leave, he was still a little upset about it.

He could barely enjoy his delicious dinner because he was so distracted. The news that she at least took the dress and shoes cheered him up though.

He loved Nina and he hated the idea that she just left.

It seemed like he was starting to brood a little in his depressed state.

Suddenly, his WeChat notification went off.

It was from Nina.

Nina transferred five thousand two hundred dollars to him. As soon as she finished transferring the money, she was about to — Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love tell him that it was the money for her dress and shoes. As she was typing, Michelle dragged her away. She didn't even have time to send the message.

Why did she transfer money to him? John looked at the message completely perplexed.

Was she thanking him for saving her life?

He messaged her, asking what the money was for but to no response.

He was so befuddled that he screenshot the message and sent it to Adrian. He just wanted to know what was going on.

Adrian replied, "Oh my God! Someone gave you money. Was it a man or woman? If it was a woman, well, this is interesting. So many beautiful women are after you. Who is o

John replied, "Out."

John had no choice but to send the message to Henry. Confused, Henry said, "Mr. Shi, who owes you money?"

— Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love

Then John replied, "Out." How could Nina owe him any money? Everything belonged to him was hers.

In the end, John sent it to James and got a reply. "Uncle John, is this Aunt Nina? That is her profile photo. Don't trouble yourself. She is expressing her love for you. Look at this number. What does 520 mean? Do you

'Expressing her love for me? A smile appeared on John's face. He could rest easy accepting this answer. As for what 520 meant, he really didn't know. He replied, "I don't know."

"Uncle John, I've told you not let work take over your life, but you don't listen to me. You don't know what girls are thinking these days, do you?"

520 means I love you."O

As for the disrespect in James' words, John already started thinking of how to punish him. But when he saw the last sentence, he couldn't think of anything else anymore. The sentence "I love you" was the only — Chapter 84 Expressing Her Love thing that was on his mind.

Was Nina really expressing her love for him?

The light from his phone screen was put to shame by the happiness that shone from his face.

John couldn't stop staring at the screen.

He took the money and replied to Nina, got it and I'll accept it."

She did like him!

He appreciated her initiative.

Chapter 85 Carry Her Again

"Nini, do you want more? You need to eat more. James told me that you were frightened and sick today, so I brought some soup cooked by my mother for you. She said that the ginseng soup is good for the health.” Without waiting for her response, Michelle took another bowl of ginseng soup and put it in front of Nina.O

Nina swallowed as she looked at the soup in front of her. She didn't want to have another bowl.

As soon as she got back, she was forced to drink a bowl of soup by Michelle. It tasted delicious so she had another bowl.

This bowl in front her now was already the third one.

Besides, she had also drunk chicken soup in the North Yard, so she was worried that she would have a nosebleed because of excessive nutrition.

— Chapter 85 Carry Her Again

“Mimi, I've had enough soup for today. How about drinking it tomorrow?” Not wanting to disappoint Michelle, Nina had to speak in a euphemistic way.

She couldn't drink it now, but she could still save it for tomorrow.

For a moment, Michelle observed her face. When she saw that there was nothing wrong with her, she reluctantly nodded.

“Then I'll heat it up for you tomorrow. You must drink it, okay?”

“Okay.” Nina nodded immediately.

When it was time to clean the kitchen, Nina offered to help, but she was dragged back into the bedroom and was locked up by Michelle. Michelle thought she had just gone through a lot and needed more rest.

It was a bit embarrassing for Nina to do nothing at all, but she was really grateful because Michelle was taking care of her. In the end, Nina just thanked her with a smile. As soon as Michelle went back to the kitchen, Nina sat on the bed and picked up — Chapter 85 Carry Her Again her phone.

It showed that he had accepted the money. She didn't think about it too much and felt a little relaxed.

But not too much. Because she now owed John a favor for saving her life.

The next morning, Nina got up early for a morning run as usual. She was surprised to see John downstairs who just flicked a cigarette butt from his hand.

John looked different today. He was wearing a white shirt, white casual pants with two red wide lines on both sides which helped to make him look livelier, and a pair of white shoes on his feet.

His fair skin made him look much younger.

Was John really thirty years old?

Nina couldn't help but sigh in her heart. If he could just put a smile on his stoic face, people would really think that he was only twenty years old.

The longer Nina stared at him, the more she — Chapter 85 Carry Her Again couldn't take her eyes off him.

If he didn't have a fiancée, she would file a divorce to bring John home just to stare at him all day long.

After all, she liked all the good things in the world.

As soon as she recovered from shock, Nina asked, "Why are you here?"

Seeing that his little girl took the initiative to step closer to him, John felt proud. He pursed his lips and flashed a gentle smile that reached his eyes. Then he raised one finger to beckon her.

The moment she saw John smile, Nina swallowed hard. And when John gestured for her to come closer, she almost lost control of her feet.

“Well, do you have class this morning?” It was the first thing that came up in Nina’s mind when she got closer to him. “But you shouldn’t have parked your car here if you have a class. It will take more than half an hour to get to the teaching building.”

— Chapter 85 Carry Her Again

John was speechless for a while.

‘Do you really take me as a teacher?’

“Morning run? Let’s jog together.” It was only then that he glanced at her outfit. His eyes narrowed at the pair of shorts she was wearing, which exposed her long and fair legs. He ordered angrily, “Go back and change!”

Does she want all men to see her almost naked? he thought.

They must be replaced by longer ones that could cover her long legs!

Frowning, Nina looked down at her clothes. There was nothing wrong with what she was wearing, so she asked, ‘ I IS there any problem?’

I won’t change. I’ll start jogging. Bye!” No matter how much John was used to giving orders, she wouldn’t just obey him like she was one of his people.

“Will you change your clothes or not?” Her resistance made John angrier. The temperature around him suddenly dropped, — Chapter 85 Carry Her Again making the wind in April even colder.

Shaking her head, Nina insisted, ‘ I l won’t.’ Why did he suddenly come here to discipline her?O

Why wouldn’t he go to his fiancée instead? Wasn’t her birthday coming soon? Shouldn’t he be preparing a gift for her?

“Really?” Clenching his jaw, John thought to himself that this girl was becoming bolder. How could she be so stubborn?

To annoy him more, Nina snorted. "I won't."0

Since Nina was firm with her decision, John had no other choice but to bent down and carried her on his shoulder. He spanked Nina's butt and said, "Go back and change!

Don't move, or I'll teach you a lesson."0

John had already learned how to tame her whenever she was being violent.

After several fights, he came to realize that she couldn't beat or kick him when he carried her on his shoulder.

It would be a shame for John to be beaten

— Chapter 85 Carry Her Again up by a little girl again.

So he could only carry her.

"John, put me down." In an instant, Nina's face turned red from anger and embarrassment. But she couldn't do anything so she just clenched her fists tightly.

He carried her again!

How many times had it been?

II NO." This was the only way he could control her. How could he let her do anything to him? "Don't try to beat me. I just don't want to fight with you."

Being beaten up was not a big deal to him. But he couldn't accept that she was dressed like this. He couldn't afford other men to see his woman's long legs.o

'Is she trying to seduce other men? he wondered.O

When he said he just didn't want to fight with her, it reminded Nina of what had happened yesterday and what James had — Chapter 85 Carry Her Again told her.

When it came to her, John had always been tolerant.

If she would think about it, John was a strong man, an excellent person who held money and power. But he was bullied by her several and did not fight back.

He had never hit her back, but he had tricked her several times.

However, after seeing his man cut that man's hands off, she realized his tricks were too mild.

Needless to say, Nina's heart was in a mess.

The passers-by on the road were looking at her with strange eyes, which embarrassed her more. So, she used her hair to cover her face. She couldn't stop herself from cursing John. "Shame on you!"

"Which apartment?" They spoke at the same time.

Annoyed, Nina didn't bother to answer.

She felt like weeping but had no tears.

— Chapter 85 Carry HerAgain

When Nina didn't respond, John asked again, "Which apartment?"

The truth was, John had asked James for her address, which was the reason why his car was parked outside her apartment building.

He knew she lived on the third floor. There were two apartments on the third floor, and John didn't know which one she was living in.

"On your left," Nina said sourly. "I don't have the key, so there's nothing we can do. Mimi is still asleep, and under normal circumstances, she won't wake up."

It could be told based on her tone that she was still angry, but John ignored her and took out his phone instead. "You said she won't wake up under normal circumstances."

Surprise was written all over her face when Nina saw him dialing Michelle's number. "Why do you have Mimi's number?"e

"I always get what I want." Oh, right. Nina

— Chapter 85 Carry14er Again almost forgot that he was the mighty John who could always find way to get what he wanted.

No one answered his call, which made Nina feel complacent. "I told you, Mimi is asleep. It's useless for you to call her."

There was one time when she came back without having breakfast after jogging. The door was locked and Michelle didn't hear her phone ringing because she was asleep.

She didn't believe that John could carry her like this for an hour.

On John's next attempt, Michelle's voice came through the phone. "Hello, Uncle o

To say Nina was shocked was an understatement.

Why would Michelle answer his call?

Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough

"Open the door." Looking at her reaction, John smirked, as if he was provoking her.

Before he came here, he had already made preparations in advance.

Last night, he did not only ask for Nina's address, but he also called Michelle. He told her that he might need her help the next day and asked her to pay attention to his phone call.

The next second, they heard the door creak open.

Rubbing her eyes, Michelle opened the door wide and said, "Nini, Uncle John, are you back after jogging? Have a good time. I have classes later."

Then, Michelle yawned again which made her next words a bit incoherent. "Why am I so sleepy today?"

Usually, Nina would come back and finish

— Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough her breakfast around eight o'clock. It was exactly the time when Michelle had to go to her morning classes.

But why was she so sleepy today?

While Michelle was busy looking at the bookshelf to find her books for her classes, John walked in and threw Nina on the sofa.

Then his eyes surveyed her small apartment, which was well decorated. One thing that John noticed was, there were rabbit decorations everywhere. rabbit-shaped and a carrot-shaped cushions were on the sofa.

Did she like rabbits?

Nina sat on the sofa in silence, trying to contain her anger.

In her mind, she was blaming herself for letting John carry her just like that. If she wasn't taken by surprise, she would have beaten the hell out of him.

As soon as he was done scanning the room, John's attention was on Nina's exposed legs again. It was very eye-catching. How chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough dare she show her legs to other people?!

“Where is the wardrobe?”

But it seemed like Nina didn't hear him.

Instead, it was Michelle who pointed at her bedroom and said, “In the room.”

Hearing Michelle's voice, Nina finally came to her senses. She hadn't settled accounts with Michelle yet.

“Mimi, what are you doing? You didn't answer my call before. But today, when John called, you answered and even opened the door for him!

Michelle, have you been bribed?’

Nina indignantly questioned in her heart, but she couldn't say it in front of John, for fear that she would be laughed at by him.

“I'm looking for my books.” Clueless as she was, Michelle didn't understand what she meant nor did she notice the accusation in Nina's eyes. “Where are my books? I remember you have classes later. What classes are you attending? I will find the hapter 86 Fif And Strong Enough books for you too.”o

Obviously, Michelle's answer was irrelevant. But her voice was so gentle, especially when she said she wanted to help Nina find her books. Therefore, Nina didn't blame her anymore and just lay down on the sofa like a deflated ball.

‘Forget it. No matter how stupid Mimi is, I have to endure it.’

To check the time, Nina took out her phone. “Mimi, it's only six fifty now.”

“What?” Surprised, Michelle blinked a couple of times. “Is it only six fifty?”

“Yes.” Nodding her head, Nina added, “You can go back to sleep.”

Since she still had time, Michelle walked towards her room with a smile. “Okay, I can still sleep for half an hour.”

At the same time, John came out with a long dress. Michelle closed the door behind him after he got out.

“Put it on.” The dress he was holding was — Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough the same dress she had worn at the North Yard yesterday.

Although Nina wanted to refute, she couldn't. So, she took the dress and looked at it helplessly. “Do you want me to jog in this dress?”

“You don't have to jog in the morning. You are fit and strong enough.”

Rolling her eyes, Nina asked, “How do you know how strong I am?”

A wicked smile appeared on John's face. “I've experienced.”

When they were in the Four Seasons Garden Hotel before, she had been tortured by him the whole night. The next morning, she woke up early and ran away without a trace. Wasn't she just very strong?

But unfortunately, it never happened again.

It took Nina a while to react, and then she sprang up and took the dress. She was walking towards the door when she heard John's evil laugh.

— Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough

“I experienced it back in the Four Seasons Garden Hotel.” His low and magnetic voice sounded evil and attractive. Word by word, John said, “You really have a great physical strength.”

The last sentence he had said was bewitching, which seemed to pull Nina. Unmoving, her hand held the doorknob but she was unable to open the door.

Gradually, her whole face turned red in embarrassment.

Not only Nina's face was as red as a tomato, but also her heart began to beat faster.

It also felt like there was a lump in her throat. What was this man talking about just

What did he mean by her physical strength?

Crazy!

She felt like she would blush every time she saw John.

Now that she only heard his voice as he said those words, her face heated as if she was — Chapter 66 Fit And Strong Enough burning.

What more if she could see his face?

That was why Nina didn't dare to look back at the blazing sight. She gritted her teeth and tightened her grip on the door handle. Then she slipped into the bedroom and shut the door.

It was so loud that Michelle, who was sleepy, suddenly sat up straight.

But she fell down again after the sound disappeared.

In a low voice, Nina asked herself, "How could this be?"

Hoping that it would lower the temperature, Nina lightly patted her cheeks. She thought she would be burned if it didn't stop.

Right now, her mind was full of indescribable scenes of the two of them. Her mouth felt limp and numb, just like how it felt whenever John bit her lips. "What am I thinking about? No, no, I can't think about it."

— Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough

Then Nina shook her head, hoping to erase the images in her mind. But the more she tried to forget it, the more she imagined herself with John.

In the end, she decided to open the window. The April wind blew, and the images gradually dissipated.

Trying to calm herself down, Nina closed her eyes. Only in this way could she calm down and stabilize her heartbeat.

As if he could see through the closed door, John stared at the door and imagined Nina's flushed face. His eyes sparkled as he thought of this.

This girl was indeed young. She was too

Shy C)

So, he decided to teach her more in the future.

When Nina came out, she had already changed into the dress John had chosen, with a scowl on her face.

"Well, that's good." Upon remembering Nina's clothes a while ago, John added,

— Chapter 86 Fit And Strong Enough

"Throw away all your revealing clothes and pants. Are you so poor that you can only afford clothes with such little cloth?"

'Is this about money?

Nina rolled her eyes.

"It's none of your business." Didn't he have enough things to handle that he even had the time to meddle with her life?

"Why can't I discipline my woman?"o

"Who is your woman?"

"You. Have you forgotten what you've said?" With an evil and attractive smile on his face, John reminded, t' You said 'John is my first man, and also the last.'"

"I didn't say that," she retorted. Didn't he say that he cared about pride the most? Was the John she met recently a fake one?

Where was his pride?

Chapter 87 Was She His Downfall

John slowly stood up and walked towards Nina. He raised his hand to her head as she flinched backwards.

“I told you not to touch my head.” She hated when he did this. It felt like she was a pet and he was petting her. How did he forget so easily?

John withdrew his hand and smirked. He slowly moved it towards her face and pinched her cheek. “I also said that if I couldn’t touch your head, then I’ll pinch your cheek.”

Her face was so soft to his touch. Her youthful radiance shone brightly as he enjoyed every second of being in contact with her skin.

“Ah, let me go!” Her eyes opened wide as she firmly grasped his wrist. She glanced down at his body, thinking up a plan.

His eagle-like sharp eyes caught Nina’s

— Chapter 87 Was She His Downfall
glance. He knew what she was thinking.

As Nina raised her foot to kick him, he clutched her calf while still pinching her cheek with his other hand.

“Little girl, what do you think?” He raised his eyebrows, as if he was waiting for her praise.

He had somewhat prepared for this moment. Richard had taught him some moves to avoid getting beaten by Nina.

John never thought that he would need any of this training. Because of his status, nobody would dare hurt him. Probably one of the most important things was that Richard was there to protect him all the time anyway.

He didn't expect that he needed to learn how to defend himself against Nina.

Whatever the reason, at least he was prepared.

Nina really didn't expect him to withstand the kick. She could feel the warmth from his hand on her calf and it reminded her of — Chapter 7 Was She Ais Downfall something.

He had been humoring her before.

That didn't mean that she wouldn't put up a fight, though.

"What about it?" Nina quickly changed her posture, pressed her thumb on the meridians of John's wrist and slowed down the speed of his blood circulation.

She smiled maniacally.

John's right hand loosened and gradually became numb. If Nina exerted a little more strength, he would be in a lot of pain and his wrist would become numb and swell.

It felt like she held his life in her hands.

"Let go of me." He didn't know whether he should laugh or cry. Why did she always have a way to control him?

Was she his downfall?

"Let go of me first." Nina eased up and made a counteroffer.

He smiled and decided to compromise.

— Chapter 8 Was She Ais Downfall

“Okay, let’s do it at the same time.”

Nina glared at him. She knew that he wouldn’t try to play tricks on her. She was able to make his whole hand go numb from here. He had to be on his best behavior.

“One, two, three...” Nina counted and loosened her grip on John’s wrist.

At the same time, John also loosened his grip gradually. A hint of slyness flashed through his eyes and he suddenly grabbed Nina’s ankle and pulled her into his arms.

Nina cried out. She lost her balance and fell into his arms. She didn’t expect him to go back on his word.

Before Nina could react, she was already in his arms and bumped into his strong chest. She could smell his familiar fragrance, with a faint smell of tobacco. She felt his big hands propping up her back.

“You lied to me!”

‘Don’t move. You know how dangerous I can be in the morning.’ Nina felt his hot breath against her ear as he threatened her — Chapter S’ Wag She His bownfåii with a smile.

“Shame on you!” Nina cursed. She could complain all she wanted but she wouldn’t dare move.

‘Shame on me?’

John used to be a man who cared about his reputation very much.

But when it came to Nina, he was going to be a shameless man.

Nina was surrounded by the warmth of John’s breath and the faint smell of tobacco.

She knew that he had the habit of smoking. However, it seemed that he hadn’t smoked in front of her since they came out of the billiards room last time.

She hated the choking smoke that always filled the room. But in this moment, the scent was soothing and quite special to her.

It was John's smell and only he could ever have such a unique aroma. She could always smell it when she got close to him.

— Chapter 5 Was She Ais bownfail

"Let go." Nina broke free from John's clutches with just a little strength.

He definitely voluntarily let her go because if he wanted to, he could have kept her trapped no matter how much strength she used.

Taking a look at his watch, he said in a soft voice, "Well, I have to go to work."

'Hurry up and leave.'

Nina was eager for him to go.

When he was about to disappear at the door, a wave of disappointment flooded her body and she suddenly stopped him.

"John..." She immediately regretted it and quickly thought up an excuse. "Have you got your pen? I gave it to the receptionist at your company a while ago."

"I got it," John answered, his bright eyes looking a little confused.

Did she really just stop him for a pen?

"Oh, that's good. It looked like a really expensive pen." Nina nodded. To keep the — Chapter 6 Was She His Downfall conversation going, she casually continued, "When I dropped it off, the receptionist was being very careful with it."

Then he remembered that the receptionist had put the pen on a tissue in the box. He nodded and turned away.

"Nini, are you reluctant to let Uncle John leave? Just go out to stop him," Michelle said with a rabbit-shaped cushion in her hands.

"When did you wake up?" Nina was stunned. Did Michelle see everything?

"I woke up when you were in his arms."

"Why didn't you help me? Why didn't you call me? You just let him hold my head in his arms for that long. I almost fainted," Nina said dramatically. However, her flushed face betrayed her.

"Really? I just saw you laughing happily in his arms." Michelle didn't hesitate to tell it like she saw it. She really exposed Nina.

This time, Nina couldn't ignore it. She looked away to take the books for today's — Chapter 87 Was She His Downfall classes.

John was finally at work at the Time Group.

He walked in, passing by the receptionist and saw her smiling and nodding. "Good morning, Mr. Shi."

He remembered that Henry was working for Adrian now. He needed a temporary assistant.

He didn't feel like finding one so he told the receptionist to be his assistant.

Standing in the CEO's office, the assistant didn't feel the joy of promotion. Instead, she asked gingerly, "Mr. Shi, why did you ask me to be your assistant?"

She didn't think she was capable or good-looking enough.

John had never hired a woman to work as his assistant. Since he suddenly promoted her, she would probably become the public enemy of all the women in the company. Being his temporary assistant was really not a good job.

— Chapter 7 Was She His Downfall

“She said you are a careful person,” John said, not even raising his head.

“She?” the assistant asked in confusion. Who was he talking about?

“You’ve met her before.” He seemed to be being too discreet. He explained further, “The pen.”

The pen?

Was he talking about that gorgeous girl that came to return his pen?

“Miss LUI?” The assistant’s pupils shrank slightly and she couldn’t hold back the millions of thoughts flying through her mind. Nina really had a close relationship with John.

He frowned at how she addressed Nina. “Call her Mrs. Shi from now on.”

He felt more comfortable when all the people around him started calling her Mrs. Shi.

Besides, they would be married sooner or later anyway.

— Chapter 8 Was She His Downfall

“What? Mrs. Shi?” The assistant’s jaw dropped. She stuttered and couldn’t believe that Nina was John’s wife.

She was absolutely astonished.

“Yes, Mr. Shi.” She then went off and started working on all the tasks he put her on.

The first job was to make a summary of Nina’s class schedule and living habits.

The second was to drive to pick up Nina and take her to the restaurant for dinner.

When the assistant saw Nina in L University, she saw her in Noah’s car.

She had no choice but to call John and tell him what had happened. She didn't want to cause any trouble but she didn't want him to be angry with her either.

"Mr. Shi, Mrs. Shi has got into another man's car."

Chapter 88 Meet Noah

Noah and Nina then drove to the Chinese restaurant on the sixteenth floor of the HD Square.

Being the gentleman that he was, he let Nina finish ordering and then gave her a square gift box.

"There are lollipops of twelve different flavors in there," he said in a hoarse voice.

The lollipops weren't the attraction but rather Noah's voice. She looked up from the box and met his clear eyes.

Although she loved John's low and deep voice, she took a particular liking to the hoarseness of Noah's. It was a similar situation with their eyes too. John had magnificent deep eyes but Noah's crystal clear eyes were equally as charming.

Nina couldn't help comparing the two men. If Noah didn't become a policeman, he would definitely have become the business — -Chapter 88 Meet Noah tycoon that John had become.

To become the superior force in the business world though, he had to be completely ruthless like John. He had to be a tenacious leader and she wasn't so sure if Noah could be like that.

“Wow, you really give me lollipops!” When Nina came to her senses, she opened the box and saw twenty-four lollipops pleasantly arranged inside.

“You like lollipops, don’t you? I’ve given half of the lollipops to you and I’ve kept the others. You can ask me for more when your lollipops are finished.” Seeing that she really liked the lollipops, Noah smiled.

Nina took out one and gently rotated it with her fingers. She was like a child whose parent just gave them candies.

The lollipops were not only delicious, but also looked great.

She didn’t like the idea of getting free handouts though. “You can tell me where to buy them. I can buy them myself. I can hapter 88 Meet Noah afford lollipops.”

Noah smiled. He obviously knew she could afford them but these lollipops weren’t for sale.

They were custom made for them.

“They don’t sell them in the shops. You can either take them from me or buy them from me.”

“Oh, I see. No wonder I’ve never seen the packaging before.” Nina suddenly had a thought. Noah must be a rich man. Rich men loved to have unique things that nobody else could have. “In that case, I want to buy them from you. Can I become a regular customer?”

“That’s a good suggestion. Of course you can,” Noah nodded.

“How much? I will transfer the money to you.” Nina put the lollipops away in her bag. Then, she remembered that Noah wasn’t her friend on WeChat. “What’s your WeChat ID? Is it your phone number? I’ll add you and transfer the money to you.”

— Chapter 88 Meet Noah

“Yes.” Noah didn’t want to accept her money since the lollipops were supposed to be a gift, but when he heard that she was going to add him on WeChat, he hesitated for a moment and didn’t say anything.

Nina asked again, “How much is it?”

“Twelve dollars,” Noah answered. The actual price of the ingredients alone were much more expensive than that. He tried to keep the sugar levels low so they were healthier than normal lollipops. Besides, the lollipops with different flavors had different effects. For example, the orange-flavored one would refresh oneself.

As far as he was concerned, she was just a college student and didn’t have any income. It was a better idea to sell the lollipops to her at market price.

Nina really trusted him so she never believed that he would lie to her. She transferred him the twelve dollars right then and there.

“Nina, I have always wanted to ask you something. How did you know my phone — Chapter 88 Meet Noah number?” He had been back in Lexingport City for less than a month and just changed his phone number. Except for some of his colleagues and one of his teachers, no one knew his new number.

His family didn’t even know he had come back to Lexingport City, let alone his phone number.

So naturally he was intrigued.

“I have your name card.” Nina took out Noah’s name card from her bag. “My teacher gave it to me.”

He took the card from her hand and looked at it. He realized what was going on and asked suspiciously, “Professor Gu?”

“Yes.” Nina nodded. It was no surprise that he knew Nina’s teacher, but it was strange that he also called him Professor Gu.

‘Is it because he is one of Professor Gu’s disciplines?’ she wondered.

“Do you also call him Professor Gu? Are you

— Chapter 88 Meet Noah also one of his disciplines?” she asked. There was a flicker of expectation in Nina’s eyes. She had always admired Professor Gu’s other disciplines. He often told her the cases his disciplines had dealt with.

Noah understood what she meant. “So you are the last discipline who he often mentions. I’m not his discipline. He once gave directions to me though.”

“So you are my senior.” Nina’s eyes lit up in wonderment, as if a fan had seen her idol.

“Sort of,” Noah said, fascinated at Nina’s sparkling eyes.

Nina sat up straight, raised her hands and clasped them. She smiled seriously and said, “I hope I can get more advice from you in the future. Come on. I’d like to propose a toast to you. But let’s drink water instead of wine.”

She was absolutely overjoyed and drank a glass of water as if it were wine.

He was amused by how she was behaving. He also raised his glass and mirrored her.

— -Chapter 8B Meet Noah

“You flatter me.”

Nina smiled from ear to ear. “I finally get to meet one of the legendary seniors. I am ecstatic.”

“Well, I also get to meet Professor Guts last discipline. Two years ago, when I and his other disciplines heard about this, we were all curious. One of us asked Professor Gu especially. All he said was that we would find out at the right time.” Noah thought of her calmness when he first met her, the whiteboard with the information of the deceased and her wise judgment. He was impressed from the first minute.

No wonder Professor Gu took such a liking to her. Such a brave and wise girl was bound to be captivating.

“Professor Gu is right. We did meet at the right time. Don’t call me Miss Lu. Just call me Nina.” Nina seemed to feel closer to Noah now. She was not as reserved as before and became more lively and expressive.

He remembered that her surname was Lu.

— Chapter 8B Meet Noah

He didn’t know many people with that surname in this city. Her surname was mainly more popular in C Island. The mascot from around those parts was an elk. For such a small country, it was the wealthiest nation in the world.

“Nina, I have a question. Your surname is Lu right?” Noah suspected she was from C Island. She just fit the bill. Her surname was Lu and she had the distinct features of being tall with a straight nose.

The people there were extraordinary with their own unique characteristics. He couldn’t see the difference when he was on the island, but after he left, he could really tell the difference by keen observation.

After all, people from different places had different characteristics.

Chapter 89 Not A Mistress

When Nina noticed the look in Noah’s eyes, she blinked a few times and spoke as if it was nothing. “Yes, my surname is Lu. Is it strange? I live in a fishing village in Spring City.”

“It’s not strange.” At first, Noah didn’t find it strange. But the way she told him where she lived, as if she was misleading him, was suspicious.

As far as he knew, Spring City and C Island were across the sea. It was true that there were people with the surname Lu who were living in some fishing villages. It was said that they had moved from C Island a long time ago.

His instinct was telling him that Nina had something to do with C Island.

But because she was unwilling to tell him who she really was, Noah could only respect her decision. He didn't want to — Chapter 9 Not A Mistress force her to reveal her true identity if she wasn't ready.

"I once stayed in Spring City for a period of time and was lucky enough to go to a small fishing village nearby. I heard that people there like to call others by their nicknames. Since you are from Spring City, I will call you Nini from now on. What do you think?"

Hearing the nickname, Nina straightened her back in surprise. Only his family and Michelle called her like that.

When Noah called her Nini, it was as if she had seen her brother sitting opposite to her with a gentle smile on his face.

It was a nice feeling, and Nina didn't find anything wrong with it, so she nodded. "Well, my family also call me that."

However, she failed to notice the huge loophole in her answer.

The residents of the fishing village in Spring City didn't call others like this. Only people from C Island would.

Therefore, when Nina said that her family

— Chapter 9 Not A Mistress also called her that, Noah confirmed that she was from C Island.

People who lived in C Island were either rich or powerful. Why did she choose to move to Lexingport City?

Although Noah had a lot of questions running in his head, he didn't dare to ask anything because they were all Nina's own affairs.

When his eyes fell on the dishes on the table, he softly said, "Nini, let's eat first. I know a restaurant where the fish are very delicious. They are all transported from the C Island. They are fresh. I'll take you there next time."

C Island was a rich place guarded by the sea, so the people there mainly ate fish and other seafood. Besides, they were used to eating Western food more than Chinese food.

On the contrary, the people Lexingport City normally ate Chinese food. He wondered if she could get used to it.

Nina's hand stopped midair. She finally noticed that Noah seemed to know that she was not really from Spring City.

Slowly, she raised her head to look at him, only to find Noah's clear and sincere eyes. His voice and expression were natural, and he seemed not to get the root of the matter. Because of this, Nina felt a little relieved.

It didn't matter whether he found out who she really was, just as long as he wouldn't tell anyone.

"Okay, I like fish since I was a child, but I don't want everyone to know about it." Nina's pun just proved Noah that his guess was right. She was indeed from C Island.

The last sentence was to warn him not to reveal her identity. She didn't want anyone else to know about it, for fear that it would cause trouble.

Even so, Noah was still shocked with her implication. He didn't expect that Nina would confirm his guess. As for the fact that she didn't want others to know, he would keep it a secret even if she didn't ask him.

It had only been a week since they had known each other, but Nina chose to believe that Noah would keep her secret. After all, he was a righteous law enforcer and also her senior. She trusted him.

"Nini, eat more meat. You are so thin." Indirectly, Noah was thanking her for her trust.

Looking at the dish Noah placed in front of her, Nina licked her lips and smiled in gratitude. "Noah, you really understand me. I like meat."

“But why do you look so thin?” At first glance, Noah thought Nancy didn’t eat anything that would add fat, such as meat. He had seen his aunt avoided eating any greasy meat in order to maintain her figure, so she thought Nina was doing the same thing.

“Am I thin? Maybe I just don’t get fat.” Using her chopsticks, Nina picked up a piece of meat and put it in her mouth. She slowly chewed the meat to savor its flavor. This place was worthy of being a five-star — Chapter 89 Not A Mistress restaurant after all. She could give the chef a thumbs-up for his great cooking skills.

“If my aunt hears this, she will be furious.” With a smile, Noah shook his head and ordered a glass of juice for her.

“You must have a good relationship with your aunt.” This was not the first time that Noah mentioned his aunt. Except for her, he had never mentioned any other family members.

Maybe because she was his closest relative.

“Yes, she is two years older than me. She is a very successful female entrepreneur, but her life isn’t easy.” She was so focused on their family business, that she couldn’t even consider her own life.

When Noah said this, a hint of sadness crossed his eyes. He felt sorry for his aunt, because the burden fell on her when he insisted on becoming a policeman.

“Nini, eat more.” To change the topic, Noah put some food on Nina’s bowl.

Apparently, he didn’t want to talk about it

— Chapter 89 Not A Mistress anymore, and it was easy for Nina to understand him, because she didn’t want to mention anything about her family either.

They ended up talking about criminal psychology and case reasoning. These were their common interests, so they both always get excited whenever they would talk about these.

Nina was asking him for some details about a case, and Noah would patiently tell her everything he could. They were both engrossed with their conversation that they didn’t notice a man standing outside the restaurant. His cold eyes were fixated on the two people who seemed to be having a good time.

Danger was approaching.

“Mr. Shi, do you need me to invite Mrs. Shi out?” The assistant quietly moved a few small steps aside, fearing that she would be frozen by John’s coldness.

“No.” Even John’s voice was as cold as the wind, enough to send shivers to anyone. The assistant followed him in a hurry when — Chapter 89 A Mistress he walked inside the restaurant.

No waitress dared to come forward. They all pretended not to see John, for fear that he would snap at them.

“Sir, do you have an appointment?” asked a bold waiter, but his legs trembled when John glared at him. He still followed where John was headed to, in case that he would be angry if he couldn’t find a waiter when necessary.

Ignoring everyone else, John went straight to Nina and Noah’s table. His tall and slender body cast a shadow over them. “I’m here to catch adultery.” These words squeezed out from his gritted teeth, were like sharp blades, chopping down on Nina and Noah.

Their discussion stopped abruptly.

Both Nina and Noah raised their heads to look at the source of the voice. They were both stunned to see John’s gloomy face.

‘Catch adultery? What does he mean?’

— Chapter 89 Not A Mistress

“Mr. Shi?”

If looks could kill, the two would be dead on the spot.

Without saying a word, John bent down to carry Nina on his shoulder, then walked away from the table with a stoic face.

In an instant, Nina’s face turned red out of anger and embarrassment. Her entire body hung upside down on John, attracting people’s attention.

Again!

Again!

“John, you fucking let go of me!” At this moment, Nina had no time to filter her words. Her loud voice seemed to be able to pierce the sky.

“Can you stop doing this? You always carry me on your shoulder. What do you think of me?” Flames of fury gushed out.

“No.”

‘This method is the most useful to you. Why not use it?’

— Chapter 89 Not A Mistress

As soon as he recovered from shock, Noah stood up and said in an authoritative tone, “Mr. Shi, please let her go.”

Clenching his jaw, John turned around and asked, “Any problem?” Before Noah could answer, John added with oppression and ridicule, “Who do you think you are to ask me to let go of my woman? Are the policemen so idle?”

‘Is Nini John’s woman?’

Confusion was evident in Noah’s eyes when he looked down on Nina’s red face. However, Nina roared, “John, don’t push your luck. I am not a mistress!”

‘A mistress?’

“When did you know that?” This was one of the rare moments when John was dumbfounded.

How did the little girl know that he had hidden his marriage?

Chapter 90 My Wife Is Nina

“Put me down.” Venting out her anger, Nina repeatedly hit John’s back.

Although she had already known that John had a fiancée, Nina never talked about it. But now that he declared to Noah that he was his woman, she couldn’t help but speak it out.

“I have already known it. John, we both have our respective partners. It’s immoral for you to blatantly claim that I’m your woman.”

Nobody spoke after hearing Nina’s words.

Her words weighed a thousand pounds that John couldn’t take a single step forward. He stood still in a daze.

For Nina to stay with him aboveboard, John had planned to solve this matter secretly.

But she had already known about it!

When it came to business, John had always been decisive. But right now, he didn’t know how to explain to her.

“Mr. and Mrs. Shi...” The assistant next to them was stunned when she heard what Nina said. “They both have their respective partners?”

What kind of joke was this?

Even Noah, who had always been calm, was confused. What did he hear just now?

Why hadn’t he heard about John’s marriage?

And Nina was also married!

It was immoral for two people who were not single to love each other.

As soon as he recovered from shock, Noah said, “Mr. Shi, please put Nina down. Many people are watching you.”

People who were looking at them lowered their heads and didn't dare to make a sound when John raised his head and looked around.

Hearing John's name was enough to frighten them, so they turned their attention to something else.

Upon realizing that there were several people who witnessed the scene, John ordered, "Clear the site."

Without further ado, the assistant warned everyone, "Sign your name at the front desk before you leave. If anyone talks about what happened today, he will be opposing Mr. Shi."

Before she started working for John, Henry had already warned her that in front of Nina, John had the tendency to be impulsive without thinking that his image would be damaged. Therefore, as an assistant, she must protect John's image all the time.

But why didn't Henry tell her that this lady was not John's wife?

Either way, since John declared that Nina would be his wife soon, she could only respectfully call her Mrs. Shi.

Moreover, she was very grateful to Nina. If it wasn't for her help, she wouldn't be John's assistant.

Being John's assistant might not be a good job, but she could earn more money.

"Mr. Shi, everyone left the place except this gentleman." When she saw John put Nina down, the assistant sighed in her heart. 'Mr. Shi must have done it more than once.'

It was not until her toes touched the floor that Nina felt her heartbeat a little more stable. Her heart was racing after she said those words out loud.

Avoiding John's burning eyes, Nina soothed her hair declared, "I've made it clear. Don't tease me anymore. It's not funny at all. Don't worry, I'll fulfil the conditions I promised you. I'll try to repay you for saving my life."

"Repay? How do you want to repay me?" John knew she wasn't an ungrateful person, but he didn't like the way she treated him.

Sooner or later, she would become a part of his family.

As for the woman he was married to, it wouldn't take long until he divorced her.

How could she ask him to let her go? No way!

His authoritative eyes focused on her. "You have to marry me to express your gratitude."

John was not the type to give up, but Nina wouldn't allow herself to be controlled either.

"Even if I get divorced, you still can't marry me. And I won't to be a mistress." Nina didn't believe that he would break off his engagement to Vivian.

After all, Ye family was not just an ordinary family. The engagement between the two of them was a political marriage.

She had investigated the powerful families in Lexingport City, and found out that the Shi and Ye families were on good terms. He once dealt with the Zhang family. But when the Ye family stood out, he stopped.

In the past, they did not interfere with one another. But the Shi and Ye families were going to be closer. When this happened, their power would reach the peak. At that time, the Lexingport City and even the domestic economy would be monopolized by Shi and Ye families.

A marriage, in exchange for great power, was worth it for such a noble family.

Nina hated political marriages the most.

Her voice, which was neither humble nor arrogant, echoed in John's mind.

With furrowed brows, he came closer to Nina and threatened her,

"You have no choice." Using his one hand, John grabbed her shoulder and didn't allow her to break free from his grip. He curled up a strand of her black hair with his other hand and bent over to whisper in her ear, "Don't get too close to any other man without my permission, if you don't want him to break his hands or feet, or something even worse than that."

Both his hot breath and his words of terror made Nina shiver.

'Son of a bitch! He always threatens me with the people around me!'

All Nina could do was glare at John. It seemed like he had known that her weakness was the people around her. She couldn't let them be hurt because of her.

"John, you're going too far!" In the end, Nina couldn't help but curse.

"If I don't do this, you wouldn't know how to restrain yourself." It seemed like John's anger had not subsided yet. He turned to his assistant with a gloomy face. "Take her to L University. If she runs halfway..."

There was no need for him to finish his sentence because everyone knew what he meant.

"Yes, Mr. Shi. Mrs. Shi, please." The assistant nervously looked at Nina with expectation in her eyes. She could only hope that Nina would be merciful and not make things difficult for her.

For fear that John would scold his secretary, Nina reluctantly moved along with her.

They walked out of the restaurant, leaving the two men looking at each other.

"Noah, stay away from Nina. Otherwise, Kristina won't live a peaceful life." Just like his words, John's eyes were sharp too, as if he could kill at any time.

On the contrary, Noah remained calm. 'I think you have misunderstood me. I'm Nini's friend. But Mr. Shi, since you already have your partner, you shouldn't show affection to others.'

The last sentence seemed to have deeper meaning, but John only clenched his jaw. They both stared at each other with a straight face but John didn't say anything more.

They both left the restaurant after their short conversation. John headed straight to the Stone Road, to get the divorce agreement that had already been signed by his wife.

"Give me the divorce agreement." As soon as he arrived, he didn't waste time and asked for the agreement he needed. It could be seen on his face how serious he was about the divorce.

Since he didn't have time to contact his wife, the fastest way for him was to get the divorce agreement that she had signed. He just needed to sign it and he would be a free man again.

Of course, he could leave a place for his little girl.

With a serious look on his face, Sam only stared at his son. He didn't agree until Jake whispered something in his ear.

"Go and get the divorce agreement."

"Yes, sir." In a hurry, Jake took out the neatly folded divorce agreement and handed it to John. "Sir, this is the divorce agreement signed by Mrs. Shi."

At this moment, Sam could only look at the divorce agreement that John was now holding. He wouldn't give up just like that. He couldn't lose such a precious daughter-in-law.

"Please see clearly who your wife is before

Chapter you sign it!" Sam snorted and let Jake help him walk away.

John took out his pen and turned to the space where his signature was needed. Because of what Sam had said, John paid more attention to it.

The moment he was about to sign the paper, he recognized a familiar handwriting.

Nina's name appeared in front of him, occupying his entire heart.

"Nina?" His lips slightly opened as he was shocked with what he saw.

'My wife is Nina?

Is the little girl my secret wife?'C)
