Dauntless God Of War

Chapter 201

After all, Samuel helped Harold's father, who was in a vegetative state for years, regain consciousness with just a few needles.

"You..."

Wrenna was livid with rage when she heard what Harold said.

She regretted agreeing to let Harold pretend to be Charlotte's father.

The hospital's management staff, whom Harold had taken down earlier, slowly got back on their feet.

Just like Wrenna, they tried to forcefully remove the silver needles from Charlotte's body. However, Harold took them all down before they could even get close to the bed.

As they weren't exactly in great shape, their bodies were aching all over from the beating.

The director of the hospital jabbed a finger at Harold as he yelled, "Hey, kid! I've already called the police! You'll go to prison if anything happens to the patient! You'd better remove those silver needles before it's too late!"

Harold ignored him completely and kept his eyes on the clock.

Two minutes later, he quickly removed the silver needles from Charlotte's body.

While doing so, he had his back turned toward the security guards and was completely vulnerable to sneak attacks from behind.

However, the security guards were so traumatized by Harold's display of combat prowess earlier that neither of them dared sneak up on him.

After putting all the silver needles away, Harold turned around and told the hospital director, "All right, it's done. You guys can examine the patient with your medical equipment now."

Wrenna was the first to run toward Charlotte. She grabbed Charlotte by the shoulders and shook her violently as she yelled, "Char! Wake up, Char! Don't scare me like this! It's all my fault! I shouldn't have let that quack attempt to treat you! Please wake up!"

Wrenna's heart sank when Charlotte remained unconscious regardless of how hard she shook her.

Harold quickly stepped forward and said, "Stop shaking her. I gave her some medication to help her remain asleep, so she won't be waking up until one to two hours later."

She could give her daughter a freaking concussion if she keeps shaking her like that!

"Please leave your daughter in our care, Ms. Turner. We'll do everything we can to save her!" said the hospital director as he handed Charlotte over to the doctor in charge.

Before leaving the ward, he turned toward the security guards and ordered, "You guys stay here and watch over him! Do not let him escape!"

However, the security guards were so traumatized by Harold's display of combat prowess earlier that neither of them dared sneak up on him.

The security guards all had troubled looks on their faces when they heard that.

Chapter 202

"I'm sorry, but you can't go in there, Ms. Turner. Please wait outside the door. We'll inform you if anything happens."

Wrenna had followed the hospital director and the other doctors over to the emergency room, but she could only wait outside while they treated her daughter.

"Please be all right, Char! I can't live without you!" she mumbled anxiously while pacing about outside the door.

Thirty minutes soon went by, and yet, the door to the emergency room remained tightly shut.

Wrenna's anxiety got increasingly worse with each passing second.

Right as she lost her patience and was about to barge into the emergency room, the doctor in charge of treating Charlotte opened the door and stepped out of the room.

As though she had spotted her lifesaver, Wrenna rushed forward and grabbed the doctor's arm as she yelled, "Doctor! How is my daughter? Is she okay?"

She squeezed the doctor's arm so hard that her beautiful fingernails dug into his flesh.

The doctor grimaced in pain as he said, "Please calm down, Ms. Turner. We have something very important to tell you."

Wrenna's heart sank when she saw the look on the doctor's face and assumed her daughter was doomed.

She instinctively took a few steps back in fear and waited anxiously for the doctor to continue.

“After repeatedly conducting a series of comprehensive tests, we have made some shocking discoveries. Ms. Turner, not only is your daughter perfectly fine but she's also making a speedy recovery from her cerebral atrophy—”

“Wait a minute, what did you just say? Is my daughter recovering from her cerebral atrophy?” Wrenna cut him off.

She was in so much shock and disbelief that she thought she had misheard the doctor.

“That's right, Ms. Turner. Not only is Charlotte going to be okay, but she'll also make a speedy recovery from her cerebral atrophy. I'm sure she'll be back to normal in no time!” said the doctor in charge.

Wrenna was frozen in shock after hearing that. “You mean that guy successfully cured my daughter? Is she awake yet?”

The outcome was so unexpected that she even forgot to celebrate in excitement.

“Don't worry; she'll wake up very soon! For now, we'll get her transferred back to the ward,” the doctor in charge replied.

Chapter 203

The deputy director and doctor in charge, too, followed in his lead and apologized to Harold.

The security guards standing guard at the door were dumbfounded when they saw that.

The director was threatening to have this punk thrown in prison earlier! Why are they all apologizing to him and treating him with so much respect?

“Hey, captain, it looks like that guy managed to cure the little girl.”

“That has got to be the case. The hospital director wouldn't be swallowing his pride like this if he didn't. Since he's apologizing to that guy, should we apologize as well?”

The security guards exchanged glances as they waited for their captain's response.

“Are you guys stupid? Why should we apologize if the hospital director didn't ask us to? Come on, let's get out of here before he decides to use us as scapegoats!”

The captain of the hospital's security guards quickly led his men out of there when he saw the director apologizing to Harold.

Harold felt a little nervous when he heard the hospital director and the others call him “Dr. Campbell.”

I may have read a lot of books on medicine at Dr. Thompson's house, but this is my first time applying that knowledge!

“Please, don't call me that. I was just messing around!” Harold said with a sarcastic look on his face.

The hospital director felt really ashamed when he heard that.

I was hoping to ask him if he could share his treatment method and the medicinal formula with us, but... judging by his attitude, I'd say it's extremely unlikely to happen.

“Sir, please let me try talking to him instead,” Wrenna suggested awkwardly when she saw the hospital director being humiliated.

Thinking that the two of them were a married couple, everyone else left the ward without saying anything further.

Even the nurses stepped outside after tucking Charlotte in.

A few minutes later, Harold, Wrenna, and an unconscious Charlotte were the only ones left in the ward.

Wrenna then walked up to Harold and apologized sincerely, “Thanks for saving my daughter. I'm sorry we doubted you before this!”

Chapter 204

Fearing Harold would pull any more crazy feats, Wrenna got rid of him before Charlotte woke up.
Fearing Harold would pull any more crazy feats, Wrenna got rid of him before Charlotte woke up.

She simply couldn't afford to put Charlotte's well-being at risk again, especially when Charlotte was starting to recover from her illness.

Although she felt a little bad getting rid of Harold, her rational side told her it was for the best.

Harold could only imagine how Charlotte would cry her eyes out when she woke up and found out that he was gone.

Even so, Charlotte wasn't his daughter, and he had cured her illness, so there was no reason for him to stick around anyway.

Harold assumed Wrenna would take the rest of the day off to look after her daughter, but he saw her arrive at the office on time when he went back to work.

Holy crap! Not only is she insanely rational, but she's also a freaking workaholic! I don't get it. She lives in a luxurious mansion and owns a fancy car. Why would someone as wealthy as her work this hard?

Moments after entering the office, Wrenna walked up to Harold with a folder and said, "Harold, the advertising plan for Larson Corporation is ready. They want it urgently, so I want you to deliver it right away."

"Sure thing, Ms. Turner!"

Harold happily accepted that task while the other employees shot him envious glares.

They were going crazy from working overtime every day, so they all wanted to be given an easy task for a change.

However, Wrenna chose to give Harold the easy tasks instead.

Having assigned the task to Harold, Wrenna was about to head back to her office when he walked up to her and whispered, "Did Char ask to see me after waking up? I think you should take the day off to look after her."

"So what if she did? As long as you stay out of her sight from now on, she'll probably forget you even exist. I don't need you sticking your nose into my parenting methods," Wrenna replied with a look of disgust on her face.

Ugh... Why is this creep getting so close to me?

It wasn't until she saw the other employees staring at her in shock that she realized she forgot to lower her voice.

Wrenna was so embarrassed that she ran back to her office as quickly as her legs could carry her.

"Hey, Harold! What's your relationship with that hot supervisor of yours? How come you two have a daughter?" one of his colleagues asked in surprise.

"Sure thing, Ms. Turner!"

Chapter 205

About ten minutes later, she stepped out of her office and announced, "Everybody, pause what you're doing and listen to me. I have an announcement to make. Starting today, you are no longer required to work overtime! We're going back to the usual working hours."

About ten minutes later, she stepped out of her office and announced, "Everybody, pause what you're doing and listen to me. I have an announcement to make. Starting today, you are no longer required to work overtime! We're going back to the usual working hours."

She then pinned a notice on the whiteboard and returned to her office immediately after.

"Whoa, this is exactly what Harold told us just now!"

"He claims there's nothing going on between him and Ms. Turner, and yet, he has access to such confidential information? Yeah, I'm not buying it!"

Wrenna's announcement only made those employees all the more suspicious about their relationship.

Meanwhile, Harold had arrived outside the office building of Larson Corporation.

He was completely oblivious to the fact that his colleagues were onto him and Wrenna.

A beautiful journalist happened to be walking toward Larson Corporation's entrance with a microphone in her hand and a cameraman following closely behind.

As she wasn't paying attention to where she was going, she bumped into Harold while entering the building, causing him to drop his files all over the floor.

Harold's gaze fell upon her employee ID pinned to her chest when he looked up at her, and he arched an eyebrow in admiration when he saw her name.

Linnell, huh? What a beautiful name.

The journalist's face burned bright red when she saw him staring at her chest.

"Y-You pervert!" she shouted while glaring fiercely at Harold.

Because she was in a hurry, the journalist stormed into the building immediately after that.

Harold simply let out a wry chuckle as he bent over to pick up the files.

Right as he was about to pick up the last piece of paper, someone stepped on it and said arrogantly, "Hey! How dare you ogle a beauty like her with those filthy eyes of yours?"

Harold looked up and saw a young man with a camera in his hands glaring coldly at him.

As if that wasn't enough, the young man proceeded to stomp on the paper a few more times just to mess it up even further before storming off.

Naturally, Harold didn't take too kindly to that young man's actions.

They're the ones who bumped into me, and yet, he has the audacity to act like I'm the one at fault?

With that in mind, Harold reached out to grab the young man's camera and broke it in half.

"You..."

Chapter 206

Instead of being intimidated by Jose's threat, the receptionist snapped back at him sternly, "Sorry, Mr. Fields. I'm just following protocol here. Even your father himself would need to make an appointment prior to entering this building."

Instead of being intimidated by Jose's threat, the receptionist snapped back at him sternly, "Sorry, Mr. Fields. I'm just following protocol here. Even your father himself would need to make an appointment prior to entering this building."

"You..."

Jose got so mad that he was at a loss for words. While he was trying to come up with something to say, he noticed Harold casually walking past them.

Wait a minute... I remember seeing his employee ID earlier. This guy isn't from Larson Corporation!

Jose jabbed a finger at Harold and asked, "How come you're letting him in, then? Does he have an appointment?"

Upon hearing what Jose said, the receptionist instinctively looked up and called out to Harold, "Hold it right there, mister! Who are you looking for? Do you have an appointment—"

However, she stopped herself mid-sentence when she realized it was Harold, whom even the chairman and his heir respected deeply.

Harold paused in his tracks when he heard the receptionist calling out to him.

"Do I need an appointment too?" he asked in confusion.

Galaxy Media is now an exclusive partner of Larson Corporation, though. Why would I still need to make an appointment?

The receptionist was so scared that she broke out in a cold sweat and struggled to find her voice.

"N-No, I just wanted to confirm if you're here to see Mr. Philip or Mr. Daniel. Please let me know, and I'll show you the way."

"My supervisor wanted me to deliver a proposal. Just take me to the relevant department," Harold replied after giving it some thought.

"Understood. Please wait a moment while I get security to throw these two out of here. I'll take you there after this."

The receptionist then grabbed a walkie-talkie and summoned the security guard at the entrance.

Autumn and Jose were shocked after hearing the conversation between Harold and the receptionist.

Based on what this guy said, it's obvious that he holds a clerical position at the company he works for. I, on the other hand, revealed my identity as the heir to the Fields family! Why would the receptionist treat him with the utmost respect as though he is some kind of VIP? Why would she have security kick us out? What is going on here? The Fields family is the second-largest family in Dellmoor! No one outside of the three prominent families would dare disrespect us like this!

The receptionist was so scared that she broke out in a cold sweat and struggled to find her voice.

Chapter 207

Harold paused in his tracks and turned around. "Are you talking to me?"

Harold paused in his tracks and turned around. "Are you talking to me?"

"Duh! Who else would I be talking to? Look, I've decided to stop this nonsense and make up with you!" Autumn muttered through clenched teeth.

She then ran up to Harold, grabbed him by the arm, and whispered in his ear, "Take me in with you, or I'll tell everyone you molested me!"

What the... Just how desperate is she to get that interview? I can't believe she's prepared to sacrifice her reputation like this! Well, since she's willing to go this far, then I suppose I could lend her a hand.

With that in mind, Harold decided to play along and said, "All right. We can make up, but you need to stop seeing that guy from now on!"

Autumn shot Harold a grateful look and agreed to his request without any hesitation. "You're the best, Honey! I promise not to see Mr. Fields ever again!"

"Let's get going, then. I still have some work to do!" Harold said as he led Autumn further into the office building.

Both Jose and the receptionist fell speechless when they saw that.

Thinking the two were a couple that had a little fight, the receptionist didn't dare stop Harold from bringing Autumn with him.

Jose, on the other hand, was still in a state of confusion.

What's going on here? Since when did Autumn get all buddy-buddy with that guy?

By the time he snapped out of it, Autumn was already walking next to Harold with her arm wrapped around his while they followed the receptionist's lead.

"Hey, Autumn! You—"

Jose tried to go after her but was stopped by the security guards.

With one arm still wrapped around Harold's, Autumn turned around without anyone noticing and motioned at Jose to wait for her outside.

It wasn't long before the receptionist brought Harold and Autumn into a conference room.

"Please wait here while I go to inform Mr. Larson."

She then left the two inside the conference room and went off to inform Daniel of their arrival.

In order to show Harold his appreciation for Galaxy Media, Philip placed his son in charge of their partnership.

Daniel was the only one in the entire company who knew about Harold's identity and the potential consequences of offending him.

Jose, on the other hand, was still in a state of confusion.

Chapter 208

Monkey and a few other former classmates had tried to curry favor with him ever since the class reunion.

Monkey and a few other former classmates had tried to curry favor with him ever since the class reunion.

As Daniel had personally promoted Leroy to supervisor, those working in the HR department didn't dare comment on the people he recruited.

Because of that, he was able to hire Monkey and the others without issue.

"Hey, Boss! Mr. Larson must trust you a lot if he's putting you in charge of so many things! I bet you'll be promoted to general manager if he takes over the company!" Monkey said flatteringly as he followed behind Leroy with two other guys.

"Let's try to keep a low profile, you guys!"

Despite what Leroy said, his gleeful smile showed just how much he enjoyed their bootlicking.

While waiting for Daniel in the conference room, Autumn shot Harold a curious glance and asked, "Who are you? Why was the receptionist being so respectful toward you?"

Being a journalist, she had strong observational skills and could tell there was more to Harold than met the eye.

"I'm just a clerk in an ordinary advertising company. I'm just as curious as to why the receptionist treated me like that. Maybe you can help me ask her about it later!" Harold replied with a smile.

"Hmph! Fine, you can keep your little secret! I'm leaving!"

It was obvious that Harold didn't want to talk about it, so Autumn decided to not press on any further. As she stood up and got ready to leave, she accidentally stepped on the wire of her microphone.

"Ah!" Autumn screamed in shock as she lost her balance and fell backward.

Fortunately, Harold had quick reflexes and was able to catch her in time.

Leroy and the others, who had just arrived outside the conference room, rushed in the moment they heard her scream.

Upon entering the conference room, they saw Harold pinning a beautiful woman to the table.

"Harold? What are you doing here?" Leroy asked.

They were in so much shock that it took about thirty seconds for them to fully register what was going on.

Harold, too, froze and stared at them in response.

He wasn't expecting Monkey and the other former classmates to ally with Leroy so soon.

"Hmph! Fine, you can keep your little secret! I'm leaving!"

Chapter 209

"Are you blind? Don't you see the nametag pinned to my chest?" Harold retorted after listening to Monkey yelling at him. I used to think of these people as my classmates, but they are merely disdaining me to make themselves feel superior. In that case, there's no need for me to treat them like they're my friends.

"Are you blind? Don't you see the nametag pinned to my chest?" Harold retorted after listening to Monkey yelling at him. I used to think of these people as my classmates, but they are merely disdaining me to make themselves feel superior. In that case, there's no need for me to treat them like they're my friends.

Leroy strode up to Harold, lifted the nametag on the latter's chest, and took a glance. Then, he asked while wearing a frown, "You're from Galaxy Media?"

"That's right. Aren't you all in a hurry to produce the advertisement for your new product? Our company's supervisor asked me to bring this document over to let you see if your company is satisfied with our proposition."

Harold handed over the folder in his hand.

Monkey, behaving subserviently like a servant, received the folder from Harold before handing it to Leroy.

"Your proposal and design are both of subpar standards. Take it back and redo it," Leroy commented on the inferior quality of the proposal without even taking the folder from Monkey.

Monkey immediately tossed the folder back at Harold and uttered arrogantly, "Did you hear that? Mr. Kowalski said your proposal is not good enough, so take this back and redo it!"

The papers inside the folder scattered on the floor once again.

Everyone else eyed Harold contemptuously.

"Are you sure you want to make things difficult for me in this manner?" Harold asked coldly.

His gaze darkened when he saw Leroy discrediting the project proposal without even reading it.

“That's right. I intend to make things difficult for you. What can you do? Are you going to bite me?”
Leroy asked through gritted teeth.

Whenever he shared an intimate moment with Linda, he would constantly be reminded of how she used to fancy Harold. That thought irked Leroy, especially since Harold had found a new girlfriend who was much prettier than Linda.

That unexpected turn of events caused Leroy to feel aggrieved.

In the past, Harold had been the most impressive guy at school, while Leroy was constantly beneath him.

The Campbell family had gone bankrupt now, while Leroy had attained success through his own effort. He even managed to win the affection of Linda, the prettiest girl in their class.

Unexpectedly, Leroy noticed in incredulity that Harold's current girlfriend was much more gorgeous than Linda.

In comparison, Linda appeared like a country bumpkin next to Harold's girlfriend.
The papers inside the folder scattered on the floor once again.

Despite his achievements, Leroy still felt inferior to Harold.

Sensing Harold's silence, Leroy suggested lecherously, “There is something you can do to convince me to say yes. As long as you send over your pretty girlfriend to my place tonight and let her keep me company, I'll immediately give you the green light tomorrow. What do you say?”

Dauntless God Of War

Chapter 210

This time, Harold did not sound angry, nor did he speak in a cold tone.
This time, Harold did not sound angry, nor did he speak in a cold tone.

Instead, he sounded like he was describing a fact to Leroy and the others.

“Do you think you're qualified to blacklist me? Are you trying to make me laugh so hard that I'll die due to shortness of breath so you can inherit my wealth? You two, go and summon the security guards over.”

Leroy thought his ears were playing tricks on him after he heard Harold's speech.

After he forced himself to calm down, he immediately ordered his men to call the security guards.

Harold halted the two men who were about to summon the security guards over and uttered calmly, "There's no need to call the security guards. I do not wish to drag innocent people into this mess. Who is your department's manager? Tell him to come and meet me. Otherwise, I'll directly contact your company's chairman, Philip Larson."

After finally regaining his composure with difficulty, Monkey, covering his face, retook his position behind Leroy and mocked Harold, "Our department's manager is Larson Corporation's heir. You're not even qualified to meet our manager, much less contact our director. Can't you quit your boastful pretense for once?"

Harold glared at Monkey. As a result, Monkey cowered fearfully because the scene of him being slapped by Harold resurfaced in his mind.

Harold decided not to entertain Leroy and the others further and immediately dialed Philip's number.

"Mr. Larson, I'm Harold Campbell. Who is the person in charge of handling the collaboration between Galaxy Media and your company? Tell him to contact me."

With that, he hung up the phone without hesitation.

Leroy and his friends were astounded when they saw Harold making the phone call.

"Mr. Kowalski, no sound came from that punk's phone. He's just keeping up appearances."

Seeing how Harold had ended the call without waiting for the other party to respond, Monkey instantaneously assumed Harold had faked the call.

Feeling that Monkey's remark made sense, Leroy regained his confidence and jeered at Harold, "Hmph! Harold, can you be more careful when you're bluffing next time?"

The call connected to Philip's phone was answered by his secretary.

Harold had hung up the call before giving the other party a chance to speak, causing the seductive secretary to be baffled.

"Harold Campbell... Oh no!"

Suddenly, she recalled Harold was the person who had come to meet with Philip the other day.

Harold decided not to entertain Leroy and the others further and immediately dialed Philip's number.

The revelation resulted in her face turning terribly pale from fright.
