

Dauntless 25

Dauntless God Of War

Chapter 25

Harold turned to question Kayden coldly, "Am I fired? I remember that if the company fires employees, it must be signed and approved by the people at the manager level. What right does Gary have to fire me as a supervisor?"

Just as Harold wanted to turn to go and look for the manager, the door to Gary's office suddenly flung open.

Brittany and Gary walked out of the office as they talked and laughed.

Brittany was still as pretty as ever. Those alluring eyes could charm any man.

Harold's emotions became complicated upon seeing Brittany.

For the past five years, he had thought that Brittany was that little girl back then and helped her a lot.

He paid most of the down payment for her house.

He also paid for the capital for her parents to grow greenhouse vegetables in the suburbs.

Moreover, he often gave some pocket money to Gordon, her brother.

Like those simps online, Harold had spent most of his hard-earned money on Brittany and her family over the past five years.

Nonetheless, Brittany's attitude toward him was hot and cold, and he was no better than a backup guy for her.

Even when they were out having a meal at high-class restaurants, Brittany would only take pictures of the food and never him.

During every festive season, she would demand monetary gifts from him. She also wanted the amount to be a symbolic figure.

If he didn't give her enough, she would throw a tantrum.

In May last year, Harold had just received his monthly salary when Gordon came and "borrowed" all of it.

Hence, due to financial constraints, Harold could only give Brittany a small monetary gift on the romantic holiday in May.

However, Brittany was dissatisfied and slapped Harold in front of everyone in the company.

None of those mattered to Harold.

At most, other people would assume that Brittany was merely pretentious and loved vanity.

What really angered Harold was that when he asked about the walnut bracelet, Brittany lied and said it was hers.

Therefore, ever since he found out the truth, Harold had felt deceived.

Gary yelled, "You have been fired, so what are you doing here, Harold? Brittany agreed to be my girlfriend yesterday, so please get lost. If I see you coming to harass Brittany again, I'll break both your legs!"

Upon seeing the way Harold looked at Brittany, Gary thought that Harold had regretted breaking up with her and wanted to get back with her.

He quickly stepped forward as he warned Harold smugly and grabbed Harold by the collar of his shirt. Then, he pulled hard at the collar.