

Dauntless 27

Dauntless God Of War

Chapter 27

After Matthew put on his spectacles again, he realized that the young man who had suddenly barged into the conference room was known as “Mr. Campbell” by Craig.

He was so stunned that he nearly fell off the chair.

He's the big shot that even Craig has to kneel and bow before him. What kind of power does he have to make people with a rebellious character like Craig submit to him?

The boss of Galaxy Media, Matthew, didn't dare to think further.

When he saw the actions of Gary from the project management department, Matthew's heart nearly leaped out of his throat.

He hurriedly stumbled forward to stop Gary.

The scene of Craig hitting his head against the ground to the extent that there was blood all over the day before was still fresh in Matthew's head.

Matthew always stuttered when he was overwhelmed with emotions.

The boss' old habit is acting up again. Many people, including Gary, thought Harold's sudden intrusion had angered Matthew when they saw the latter stumbling over.

Gary hurriedly greeted Matthew with a huge smile and said, “This guy is not only barbaric and violent, but something is wrong with his brain as well, Mr. White. I'll get someone to kick him out immediately.”

The moment Gary finished speaking, Matthew landed a harsh slap on his face without hesitation.

Pow! The sound of the slap reverberated across the conference room.

As Matthew had slapped Gary hard across his face, the latter's face swelled up at a speed that was visible to the naked eye, just like a balloon.

The entire conference room went silent.

“A-Are you insane to chase him out? All of you, g-get out of the conference room now!” Matthew stammered again as he yelled at Gary, Steven Quinn, who was the manager, and the others in the conference room.

Except for Harold, everyone else was kicked out of the conference room.

The fact that Matthew could turn Galaxy Media into one of the top three companies within Dellmoor's advertising industry showed that he was a formidable person.

I'm sure there's a reason behind Mr. Campbell's decision to act as an ordinary employee in my small company.

At the thought of that, Matthew didn't dare to expose Harold's identity in front of many people.

Furthermore, he would be doomed if he ruined Harold's plans.

Matthew stuttered, "Mr. C-Campbell, it's my f-fault for being blind. I wasn't a-aware of your identity before, so..."

Matthew had wanted to explain the situation to Harold. However, he was so nervous that his habit of stammering became more serious. Thus, Matthew couldn't complete his sentence even after a long while.