Chapter 281

Just as Brigham was about to signal his men to take the boxes away, Yolanda suddenly spoke up. "Mr. Hansen Senior, you can't accept these items."

Both Nigel and Brigham were taken aback, turning to Yolanda with expressions of confusion.

Black Widow's previously calm demeanor also shifted, and she looked coldly at Yolanda, saying, "Little girl, these are rare treasures, and Mr. Hansen Senior needs them. Why wouldn't you let him accept them?"

Unaware of Yolanda's true identity, she assumed Yolanda belonged to the Hansen family and spoke with a hint of caution and probing.

"Don't speak out of turn! Who do you think you are to make decisions for Mr. Hansen Senior?"

Jimmy glared at Yolanda with disdain. He had been eyeing these treasures for a while. Brigham had invited them to protect Nigel, and once they returned home, Nigel would surely let him take some of them.

Just as the prize was within reach, Yolanda suddenly interrupted and said they couldn't accept it. Wasn't that just ruining their chances?

Jimmy was agitated, and his tone was harsh. "A little girl dares to speak so boldly! If it weren't for Mr. Hansen Senior, I would have kicked you out long ago!"

Yolanda pressed down on Nigel's shoulder and barked, "Get in the storage room!"

There was a small storage room about 10 square feet wide on the right side of the presidential suite door.

"What is this nonsense?" Jimmy responded furiously. "Let's fight our way out—"

Before he could finish his sentence, the presidential suite door was suddenly opened from the outside. A dozen armored assassins swarmed in and immediately surrounded them.

"Go into the storage room!" Yolanda yelled once more.

Ever since she exited the elevator, she had noticed something about the statues in the corridors.

If she were to tell Nigel about it then, not only would he not believe her, but she might have tipped Black Widow off too early.

Jimmy, who was standing guard at the door, cursed at Yolanda coldly. "What nonsense are you up to right now? What did you think you were going to do out there? Die?"

The two young men by Jimmy's side looked at Yolanda scornfully.

"You're just an underage kid. If you go out there, they don't even need to spend time sharpening their knives. They could finish you off right there and then!"

Yolanda frowned with displeasure. She was about to say something back when Brigham responded.

"Don't worry, Yolanda. Jimmy and the rest are highly skilled. It would be as easy as ABC for them to deal with those assassins."

"I'm 100% confident that I can bring all of you out safely," Jimmy said, puffing up with confidence.

At the same time, he was also a little unhappy that Nigel held a puny doctor like Yolanda in such high regard.

He rolled his eyes haughtily at Yolanda and said, "Don't just act on your own judgment, burdensome brat."

"Black Widow's tactics are vicious. Her right and left-hand man are no saints as well."

Yolanda dashed to Jimmy with a stern expression on her face.

Even if he was haughty and annoying, Yolanda, as a doctor, was unable to stand on the sidelines and do nothing as she watched someone die in front of her.

"His heart wasn't injured. I'll stop the bleeding first."

Yolanda assessed Jimmy's injuries and breathed a sigh of relief.

If he had injured his heart, it wouldn't be something that mere acupuncture could solve. He would need surgery.

The environment they were in at that moment had terrible conditions. It was not conducive enough for her to do any surgery at all.

"He'll be okay, right, Yolanda?" Brigham looked hopefully at Yolanda.

Yolanda nodded. She took out the blood-stopping medication that she had made herself and was about to apply it to Jimmy's wound when Jimmy raised his hand weakly to stop her.

"It's no use..." He didn't believe in Yolanda's medical skills. He was worried that Yolanda's medication would make his injuries worse.

Jimmy had lost Brigham with his train of thought. He stared at Jimmy blankly without any response for a long while.

"That's right!"

"It's all her fault!"

"She's dragging all of us down!"

"You knew that Black Widow was no easy opponent, so why didn't you stop us? Are you just going to comfortably watch as we march to our deaths?"

"That's right! If you stopped us, we wouldn't get injured at all."

Everyone was staring in awe at the ability of Jimmy's clan members to twist the truth as they poured all the blame and pointed all their fingers at Yolanda.

Black Widow smiled. She raised the knife laced with poison up high and brought it down swiftly toward Yolanda's chest.

"Die!" she screeched. Her blade shone an eerie silver glint.

However, her knife was suddenly stuck in mid-air.

"What?"

Black Widow looked at her wrist in shock. She didn't know when Yolanda lifted her hand, but Yolanda now had a firm grip around her wrist. She couldn't move it at all.

"How is this-"

Black Widow tried to exert more strength to wiggle her hand out and soon realized it wasn't working. She fished out the dagger that she always had on her and stabbed Yolanda with her free left hand.

She was sure that Yolanda would be successfully stabbed this time. Sadly, Yolanda merely cocked her head slightly and had averted her attack.

"Hurry up. Clear the scene and leave quickly," Nigel ordered.

Tonight's commotion would attract too much attention, and the officials would be easily alerted.

Thus, Nigel ordered his men to clear the scene quickly and detain those who were still alive back to the Hansen residence for interrogation.

"Mr. Hansen Senior, I hope that you and the Hansens can keep my presence here today a secret."

Yolanda didn't want to get involved in underworld matters or expose herself too early on.

"I understand. I'll make sure the news doesn't leak out. No one will know that you have saved us tonight."

"You guys can go ahead. I'll leave for now."

After Yolanda left the Jades, she got into a cab and returned to the Henderson residence.

The other students agreed with Clara and chimed in.

"Did you think you're a brainiac just because you got lucky and got first place that one time?"

"Wake up. You're not worthy of entering competitions like this."

"You clearly knew how that first place came about. You must've used some despicable ways to get full marks, so won't you feel guilty?"

"If I were you, I'd be so ashamed I won't be able to lift my head, but here you are, parading around without a care everywhere you go. How shameless!"

They were very upset with Yolanda, so naturally, their words were snarky and mean.

However, their words did not harm the current Yolanda at all.

Also, because Yolanda was completely unbothered by what they said, those who were very proactive in mocking her gradually felt like it was a boring and pointless thing to do.

Yolanda calmly collected the registration form under the gaze of many, went back to her seat, and filled it out.

"Is everyone done filling out the registration form?"

Clara saw how Yolanda refused to listen to her advice and decided not to care about Yolanda anymore. Then, she got the class rep to collect all the students' filled-up forms.

It was another ten minutes when Maria finally woke up.

"You passed out from food poisoning again," Darius replied worriedly.

"I don't know what you ate, but I told you to stop eating leftovers."

"I didn't!" Maria felt like she was wronged.

"The portion of the food we've been making at home recently is just enough for us. There are no leftovers.

She added, "Also, I don't like snacks. I usually just eat fruits. Would I get food poisoning from eating fruits?"

"Maybe there could be remnants of pesticides on the fruits that weren't washed clean?" Dunstan walked in with a mug of warm water and asked casually after hearing what Maria had said.

Yolanda's frown sunk deeper. No wonder Harold had been leaving home early and coming back late recently while Diana was unusually joyful. It seemed like they had found a new way to earn money.

However, Harold knew nothing about medicine. He would be easily tricked into buying an unofficial formula that had not undergone clinical trials.

"I'm really sorry, Ms. Henderson. I should be more strict when managing my staff. I've just transferred one million dollars into your account as compensation to you."

Quinlan Pharmaceuticals sold the ingredients to Henderson Group for a total amount of 20 thousand dollars.

Melina used her own money and added an extra 80 thousand dollars to the transfer as a token of apology to Yolanda.

"As for Gregory, I'll make him personally apologize to you."

"Don't make this public yet. I'll investigate the matter."

"Okay, I promise to keep it under wraps," Melina replied carefully.

When Yolanda hung up, Gavin had already driven out from Willow Creek Clinic. "What do you feel like eating?"
