

Deadly 541

Chapter 541

After Silas and Sidney had cut open all the boulders, the total value of gems revealed was inching up to about 5000 million dollars.

If these were all to be sent to jewelers or auctioned at auction houses, they would be worth more than that.

Even when the original cost of 720 million dollars was deducted, it would be a net profit of about 4000 million dollars.

This was mind-blowing!

Lastly, Yolanda had cut the two remaining boulders, which were revealed to be Grand Pave Sapphires, causing everyone else to be stunned.

"There's no fluke at all!"

"How shocking! I've been in the industry for decades, yet I haven't seen anything like this before!"

In the crowd, an old man with silver hair went up front excitedly. He pointed to all of the gemstones and exclaimed, "This little lady is too good at this! There are so many gem experts in Havaria, and they couldn't even do what she did!"

Yolanda strutted confidently toward Edna and smiled faintly at her.

"Hah! Don't gloat too early. It won't end well for you if you go up against Mr. Caldwell." Edna glared at Yolanda and lowered her voice.

Then, she threatened Yolanda softly with a volume that only the both of them could hear. "When I find a chance, I'll kill you."

"Oh?" Yolanda cocked her eyebrow as her smile widened. "I'll be waiting."

"I'll tell Mr. Caldwell about everything that happened today, Yolanda. Trouble's about to come your way." Julie jabbed at Yolanda proudly, but panic and despair filled her eyes.

"How dare she still use her identity to belittle me now?" Yolanda cast a sideways glance at Julie.

"I'm not afraid of the Mr. Caldwell that you speak of. If you really want to settle scores with me, I'll gladly do so with you.

"Last time you took 8 million dollars from me for nothing. Give me back the 8 million, apologize to me, and the scores in between us will be tallied. If not, your shop won't be able to continue operating anymore."

Just as Edna and Julie were ganging up against Yolanda, Knox, who had just earned his bucket of gold, made his way to them abruptly.

"I may not know the entire story, but I advise you to listen to Ms. Henderson, or she would have ways to make you wish you were dead."

He was very clear about what Yolanda was capable of.

The menacing air around Knox had subsided a lot since he had giddily made a few thousand million dollars at Caldwell Antiques.

His capital was a mere 500 million thousand dollars regularly. How could he not be happy for that amount to have increased so much today?

Initially, he thought that Edna was deliberately trying to get at him, so he wanted to destroy the shop. Now that he had seen Edna and her people suffer so many losses, he felt like this was more satisfying than actually trashing the shop.

It didn't matter if Caldwell Antiques was the biggest antique shop here on the street of antiques. They wouldn't be able to recover from the losses they incurred today, at least not in a short time.

Knox had only heard of Boris, but he wasn't acquainted with him at all. However, he heard some rumors about him. If Boris found out that Edna and Julie had lost so much of his money, Knox could only imagine how difficult their lives would be from then on.

He felt like he had released his anger, so he was naturally more calm and collected.

"What?"

When Edwin saw the new window, his face contorted.

The new window showed that the boulder was just nothing but an ordinary boulder.

"Look at the sapphire. It's stuck on deliberately with super glue." Yolanda gave the windowed boulder back to Edwin and said, "Look carefully here. You can still see traces of it."

When Yolanda was done, there was an uproar.

In gemstone gambling, buyers could only lament their lack of luck when they made the wrong judgment.

However, if the shop was the one that had tampered with the boulders and sold them in place of regular boulders, this was a fraudulent act.

Yolanda looked at the boulder in Edwin's hand and knew that boulders like this couldn't possibly have contained gems. So, it would mean that the windowed portion had to be man-made.

"This is the type of boulder that would only be sold for a few thousand dollars in Mexayko. If it wasn't altered, no one would pay any attention to it at all."

There were a lot of gemstone gamblers who would spend a little more to get windowed boulders so they could have a larger chance and a stronger guarantee. But what they didn't know was that windowed boulders were the easiest to be tampered with.

"How dare you scam me?" Edwin was Caldwell Antiques' long-time customer. After he had retired, he had often come to Caldwell Antiques to gamble for gemstones.

Knox had initially come to apologize to Yolanda. Now, with her help, he had gotten a profit of a few thousand million dollars.

"You can take the first pick of any of these gemstones and I'll take the rest. I'll sell them off and when the money comes in, I'll give you 60% of that. I'll take the remaining 40%."

In some ways, Knox was considerably kind to people he considered part of his community.

Yolanda had only contributed 200 million dollars, but he was willing to give her 60% of the earnings.

However, Yolanda did not have much of an interest in these gemstones.

"I'll take the last 2 sapphires. You can take the others. Process it however you want. You don't have to give me the money."

"No! That cannot be done." Knox refused to agree.

"You would have lost money then!"

"These two sapphires alone cost 1000 million dollars," Yolanda said on purpose to see Knox's reaction.

Dunstan watched how ferocious these people were as they marched toward them and a sense of foreboding flooded his heart.

"There are no more slots for doctor's consultation today. If you want a consultation, I can arrange for you to come back tomorrow morning-"

"Fuck off!"

Jamie pushed Dunstan away before he could finish his sentence and barged into the clinic. "You're the one who needs the doctor!"

Yolanda heard the commotion and raised her head to look at the door. When she saw Jamie, she frowned.

She had seen Jamie before.

It was Jamie's car that was there, blocking them and stopping them from saving the others at Adrian's accident the last time.

In other words, she was indirectly responsible for Adrian's accident, so Logan wouldn't have let her go so easily. However, she was still arrogantly gallivanting around town, and that was what surprised Yolanda.

"Those who have come to the clinic are here to ask for help. Why did you have to yell at me?" Dunstan staggered a few steps before he could stabilize himself.

"Get on your knees and slap yourself! Apologize to me or I'll wreck this place and snap those legs of yours!"

"Who's causing trouble at Willow Creek?" Just then, Daniel burst in from the backyard with his men behind him.

One of the nurses had spotted trouble just now and slipped out back to warn him. Daniel had then told his men to grab some weapons and rushed to the front after hearing about the commotion.

Jamie turned to look at Daniel, and then her smirk widened. "Well, look who it is. Aren't you Daniel Miller?"

"Do you know me?" Daniel's face darkened as he reprimanded, "And you still dare to pull this stunt?"

"Of course, I know you. You're the president of Miller Group. And you..." Jamie pointed at Melina, who was standing behind Daniel. "You're the one who's going to take over Quinlan Pharmaceuticals. You, on the other hand..."

Chapter 548

Even those from Riverdale's top families had to show respect to Eternal Clan, let alone Yolanda. Yolanda was just some adopted nobody who was not even in the same league as Jamie, so Jamie had nothing to be afraid of.

Besides, Jamie was not just here to get revenge for herself. She was here to avenge someone else too. She would not let Yolanda off even if she begged for mercy.

"You're disrespecting Eternal Clan if you're going against Ms. Jamie!" the young fighters behind Jamie shouted together. "Get on your knees and apologize to her!"

Some were bare-handed while others were armed, but they all made sure to flex their strength at Yolanda's group.

"Since you've looked into my background, why didn't you investigate your own family affairs?" Yolanda found their attempts at intimidating her amusing. If bullying the weak was what martial arts had come to, Eternal Clan was really getting worse with each generation.

Yolanda's words took Jamie aback, so she asked, "What's that got to do with you? You're it, let me enlighten you." Yolanda appeared calm in the face of Jamie's agitation. It made her want to lunge

Neither Jamie nor any of the Eternal Clan members behind her believed Yolanda's words. "If you actually defeated Raven, I'll leave with my men right now and not wreck your clinic! Too bad you're just bluffing. You're so pathetic!"

"You'd better run if you don't want to end up like Raven." Yolanda cracked her knuckles. None of the recent troublemakers could fight against Yolanda at all. Finding a challenging opponent in Riverdale was getting tough.

Yolanda made a mental note to invite Gavin for a spar at the gym soon. Her joints were getting rusty from the lack of real competition.

The clinic patients who had expected Yolanda and the clinic to be in trouble were shocked. Viktor was actually kneeling before her with such a humble and remorseful attitude. It made no sense!

"Uncle Viktor, what's wrong with you? Why are you kneeling before some worthless adopted daughter? Did you mistake her for someone else?"

Jamie walked over and tried to help Viktor up, but he slapped her hand across the face. "Shut up! How dare you call her some worthless adopted daughter? If you dare disrespect Ms. Henderson again, I'll break your legs and have you grounded for a month!"

Usually, Viktor would have to mind Xavier's feelings no matter how much trouble Jamie caused. He would not have slapped her so hard or scolded her. But his future was now in Yolanda's hands, so he could not risk Jamie ruining everything.

If Jamie made Yolanda upset, Yolanda's impression of Viktor would surely worsen. He would have no hope of getting medical treatment from Yolanda ever again.
