

Dear Chief 5

Chapter 5: The First Step to Changing Her Fate

At this moment, Gu Qiqi had no idea about the future ramifications of her actions as she casually wrote these two words. She also had no idea just how much of a big shot that domineering man was!

She looked at the time.

Yes, Zhu You must be in the operating room by now.

She planned on leaving after perfectly avoiding this trap of an operation.

As for that domineering man who ordered her to stay inside the room and not move...

Why would she listen to him? Who did he think he was?

Gu Qiqi didn't fear anything anymore after she was reborn.

Why would she be afraid of this man?

Gu Qiqi left the VIP Room.

She didn't even stop as she passed by the chaotic corridor filled with the strong smell of blood.

The lessons from her previous life were still fresh in her mind. She remembered how hard she worked to treat illnesses and save people, but she ended up benefiting others instead of taking those benefits for herself. In this lifetime, she would definitely not repeat her mistakes.

She turned a corner and saw a three-year-old boy curled up into a ball in pain.

Gu Qiqi nearly tripped over him.

"Where does it hurt?" she asked with a frown.

The boy squatted awkwardly in the corner and held his stomach with his hands.

He would rather draw mushrooms on the floor than talk to her.

She lifted her eyelashes gently and said in a cold tone of voice. "Intestinal cramps. You will end up with all your intestines in a knot. Do you want to try that?"

The boy fiercely shook his head.

He then used his small fingers and pointed to a place on his body that was obviously the source of his pain.

Gu Qiqi reached over and drew a few circles on that part with a gentle force. "You should be okay now. You can go ahead and drink some hot water."

After saying this, she left coldly.

The boy stood up.

His big, black grape-like eyes shone brightly. “It doesn’t hurt anymore? Sister, wait!”

However, that sister doctor was so stubborn.

The other sisters tried their best to curry favor with him. Why was she ignoring him completely?

Gu Qiqi walked so fast that he couldn’t catch up to her with his short legs.

Gu Qiqi rushed out of the hospital entrance. She didn’t want to stay in this place anymore where she would definitely get into trouble.

However—as she prepared to leave with her electric scooter—trouble came knocking on her door.

A few interns were talking and laughing as they walked over lazily.

The leader of the pack was her classmate, Zhu Fen.

Zhu Fen deliberately said out loud, “Oh, Gu Qiqi. The hospital is very busy right now trying to save the wounded in that car accident. How can you slip away at this moment? You have such a bad character, don’t you?”

The other interns chimed in and accused Gu Qiqi of being too ruthless.

Gu Qiqi swept her cold gaze across them.

Zhu Fen was her classmate. She was often bullied by the former. Back then, she used to think that Zhu Fen was only bullying her because their horoscopes didn’t match. But now that she thought about it, this Zhu Fen was actually Zhu You’s daughter.

Furthermore, she was Gu Xuexue’s best friend.

No wonder Zhu Fen always caused her trouble whenever they met!

It turned out that she was a dog that had been ordered to bite her!

After figuring this out, her eyes turned cold and she glared at her. “That’s none of your business.”

“You!” This was the first time that Zhu Fen received such cold treatment.

What’s more was that she was being treated like this by Gu Qiqi—a person who seemed to be the personification of honesty and conscientiousness.

Zhu Fen didn’t know why but beneath the moonlight, this Gu Qiqi seemed different than usual.

She found it strange because Gu Qiqi was a well-endowed woman. With the size of her chest, she was usually hunchbacked. But at this moment, Gu Qiqi’s back was straight, her chest was round, and her buttocks were raised.

Although she was only clad in an ordinary nurse’s uniform, she looked beautiful and unrestrained!

A single glance at her could elicit jealousy from those looking at her.

Zhu Fen gnashed her teeth. “You dare to skip the night shift? I’m going to tell the director and you will be punished! You’ll be given a serious demerit record, and you won’t be able to attend university!”

Won’t be able to attend university?

Upon hearing these words, a trace of coldness flitted past Gu Qiqi’s eyes.

The reason why she was in a hurry was not only because she wanted to avoid Zhu You’s schemes, but also to rush home and amend her professional ambitions. She was going to apply for medical school just as she had always wanted...

This was the first step to changing her fate!

No one would be able to stop her.

Zhu You wouldn’t be able to, and neither his idiotic daughter!
